It's good to be busy, but I'd like a chance To relax a while and take a glance At the piled up papers and magazines, But I reckon I'd better go outside and rake the leaves.

Even though I yearn for leisure time, I honestly believe it's better for a middle-aged, fat woman to be busy, on account of it leaves less time to worry about oneself and other inconsequential things. I don't even have time to be sick or even think I'm sick. Here's hoping good health stays with me - I'll gladly rake the leaves.

I found out yesterday that Catherine and Philip Robey finally realized their dreams by moving into their RED BARN ANTIQUE SHOP, right beside their home near the Macedonia Church in the Advance section of the county. So this morning I hurried out there to see it and take some pictures and, of course, the devilish camera went haywire. Even so, it was worth the trip out there, as it is really an attractive place and it goes to show you that with dreams, ingenuity and "know-how," a dream can really come true. It's hard to believe that this place had been used for a farm barn for many years.

What was once the corn storage room is now used for an attractive display of antique furniture, bric-a-brac and beautiful lamps of all kinds. Back and at the side of this room, which was formerly the fertilizer room, is now the fabric shop and those fabrics just make one want to redo and re-upholster every room in the house. The fabric room in itself is so attractively arranged with pretty gold wall to wall carpet on the floor, matching draperies and pieces of antique furniture which compliment the display of interior decorating materials. Catherine tells me that she has even sold some of the brocades for holiday and evening dresses and then I wished more than ever that I could sew. On the other side of the barn, the part of which was once the horse stable, is now the upholstering shop and sewing room and is really a busy place. The Robeys know their "stuff" when it comes to re-finishing and re-doing furniture and slip covering and it's good to see this husband and wife team working together.

Did you ever try making citron preserves? Not many people around these parts grow citron that I know of. One day last week John A. Taylor brought us some citron which he grew at his home on West Queen Street extended. I wasn't quite sure what to do with them and he said Mrs. Taylor made them into preserves and that they are delicious. The citron resembles a small green pumpkin or watermelon. Here is Mrs. Taylor's recipe for citron preserves: Prepare citron by peeling and removing seeds and then cut into small cubes. Add 2½ cups sugar to three cups citron, cover and let stand overnight. Next morning, add one whole lemon, chopped fine. Cook until thick and clear. (Thanks, Mrs. Taylor).

Our folks from Pennsylvania did not get to Florida as they planned, but have returned home, after one of them suffered a severe heart attack. It is quite sad to know that after having worked hard all his life and just recently had the opportunity to take a long dreamed-of trip to Florida, this illness had to happen. It is not ours to question, but we can't help to wonder—why?

Here are a few tricks of the trade for housekeepers: Use a small paint brush for many cleaning aids—such as for dusting the phone carved furniture and other knick knacks. Dip scissors in hot water from time to time when cutting foam rubber to keep a smooth edge. A few drops of cologne in the rinse water for hankies will leave a pleasing fragrance. Place small pieces of macaroni into cake icing as vases to hold flowers. It will tell: If the first love letter you ever wrote had a 4-cent stamp, you're young; if it had a 3-cent stamp, you're middle-aged; if it had a 2-cent stamp, brother, you're a granddaddy!
