A LIFT FOR TODAY

My mother and my brethren are these which hear the word of God and do it.—Luke 8:21.

Note The Big Difference

Actions taken at almost the same time by the Presidents of two nations in the Western Hemisphere offer an excellent opportunity to examine some very interesting contrasts and similarities of political practice in North and South America.

In Brazil, the President issued a decree which enlarged the Supreme Court (perhaps to enable him to "pack" it, so to speak, with persons who share his political philosophy), and abolished all opposition political parties. A report from Rio de Janeiro states that the decree "at once gave legal substance to . . . supremacy of the armed forces and the executive branch of the government over Congress, the Judiciary, and the civilian population," and that it enabled Brazil's President to "cancel legislative mandates at all levels."

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, the President of the United States, in signing a "Rivers and Harbors" bill passed by this nation's Congress, announced that he intended to ignore a part of the legislation which he didn't like, on the grounds that he considered it to be unconstitutional.

Ordinarily, one might think that the constitutionality of a piece of legislation was something to be decided by the Judiciary, before it should be ignored by the Chief Executive. But, of course, in this country the Supreme Court was brought under the supremacy of the Executive Branch long before the same thing happened in Brazil.

As to the Congress itself, the last Chief Executive who served notice on that body that he would arrogate to himself the right to disregard that branch's duly enacted legislation found a monumental revolt on his hands. We're thinking it is time for another such revolt. And if the FDR landslide Congress could find his arrogance revolting, surely this one can, too.

Heard & Seen

"By Buff"

Though a little belated but nonetheless sincere is my expression of deep regret in the loss by death of our First District Congressman, Herbert C. Bonner. Like his predecessor, Lindsay Warren, he was truly dedicated to the welfare of the people of his district and many times he made personal sacrifices in order to be of service and to demonstrate that he appreciated the people he served. Unlike some legislators, Mr. Bonner was always very prompt in answering letters sent to him and, to his credit, he was always very frank in his replies if he was in accord or not with the many requests made of him. He was a true friend and one whose shoes will be hard to fill. He was always very cooperative with The Herald, often telephoning or wiring news affecting this area even before they were sent out to other news media. The first issue of The Herald back in 1934 is vividly recalled by yours truly when a letter sent from Congressman Lindsay Warren, and no doubt written by Mr. Bonner, then Mr. Warren's assistant, which in part stated: "Dear Mr. Bufflap—I have your letter of August 21, informing me that you are beginning the publication of a weekly newspaper at Edenton to be known as The Chowan Herald. I congratulate you upon the initiation of this enterprise, and you may be assured that if I can aid and cooperate with you in any way, it will be a pleasure." This cooperation continued when Mr. Bonner became our Congressman and very seldom did he come to Edenton but that he stopped in The Herald office for a brief chat. A visit to Washington many years ago is also recalled. Yours truly, Frank Hughes, Jimmy Partin, West Leary and probably one or two more whom I cannot recall went to Washington to see a crucial baseball game between Washington and Detroit which decided the American League champions. We had arranged with Miss Margery Powell, then an airplane stewardess, to reserve rooms for us. Arriving in Washington too early to rouse Miss Powell, the group tried to catch a nap in the automobile. Later, getting in touch with Miss Powell, we were informed that all hotels were filled to capacity. We were not quite satisfied, so we made a round of motels and learned that Miss Powell was right. When we had just about decided to return home, one of the group suggested that we contact Mr. Bonner. I agreed to be spokesman, so off we went to find his office. As soon as he saw us come in his office friend Bonner said, "Yes, you guys are up here for the game and can't find rooms." It wasn't long, after a brief friendly chat, that Mr. Bonner called a hotel to give instructions to let us have his suite and he appeared to be just as happy to accommodate us as we were to be able to spend a night and enjoy the baseball games. Herbert is gone and, again I say it will be hard to fill his shoes.

And speaking of friends, The Herald has lost another "dear friend" in the passing of Mrs. J. A. Moore. Again memories flit back to the early days of The Herald when yours truly worked like a Trojan in several capacities on the paper in order to keep The Herald going. It was a tough assignment and many times very discouraging, but friends like Mrs. Moore very often gave encouragement and spurred us on to produce the best weekly newspaper possible with what we had to work with. Many times Mrs. Moore was kind enough to come to The Herald office to offer her congratulations for what appeared in editorial comment or what was said in a news story, especially pertaining to tuberculosis. She was vitally interested in the fight against tuberculosis and many times furnished interesting and informative information from which a news story was written. She was a sweet woman and the sort of citizen that Edenton can ill afford to lose. She many times offered constructive criticism relative to The Herald and various phases of community life, but was the sort of person who could criticize without hurting one's feelings, for she was ever mindful of other people's opinions and was only interested in what was best for people and the community. She was a sweet woman and here's one who joins in extending heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family.

News from relatives in England is to the effect that it has turned very cold over there and that snow covers the whole works. Just another reason to be thankful that we arrived home safely and missed the snow.

I see in the hospital news that Mr. and Mrs. Bud Parker became the parents of their second son. I haven't seen Bud, but it's about time he shows up with a cigar and a good 'un at that.

Edenton football fans will have an opportunity to see another game Friday night on Hicks Field. They will tangle with the Havelock High School in the first round for a state championship. According to comparative score with Elizabeth City, the Aces should have the edge. However, comparative scores do not mean so much at times, so go out and watch the game.

Bible News

By MARY ALLED
Member of Women's Speakers Bureau, American Bible Society

Into how many languages has some whole part of the Bible been translated and published? 1,232 languages as of April, 1965. The entire Bible has been published in 235 languages; a complete Testament in 290 additional languages; and at least a Gospel or other whole book has been published in 707 languages. New languages are added to the list at the rate of about one a month.

How many languages and dialects are there in the world? The French Academy lists 2,796. It is impossible to make an accurate list because of the difficulty of determining the distinction between dialects and because of various other factors. It has been estimated that there may be about a thousand languages and dialects in which some part of the Scriptures should still be translated and published.

Is there any translation work being done now? Every year Gospels and other portions of the Bible are translated into languages formerly possessing no part of the Bible. The entire New Testament or the whole Bible appears from time to time in languages in which only a lesser portion of the Bible has been previously translated and published.

By whom is this work done? Most of the translations are made by missionaries, working together with Christian nationals skilled in the use of their language.
