A LIFT FOR TODAY

God is love. —1 John 4:8.
Love is the focal point of Christianity, and is not born of fear but springs from a heart of affection and gratitude.

Almighty God, may we love so genuinely that others may see Thee in our lives and be drawn to Thee.

Heart Sunday -- And You

The heart and blood vessel diseases are now costing this nation about 1,000,000 lives yearly. They account for about 54 per cent of all deaths. Latest statistics indicate that about 14,600,000 adult Americans suffer from heart disease, and an additional 6,900,000 are victims of hypertension. In addition to the 14,600,000 persons with definite heart disease, there are 13,000,000 persons with suspect heart disease.

Is the outlook hopeless? Not at all. For those aged below 65, the tide has seemingly begun to turn. Since the onset of massive cardiovascular research programs in 1950 there has been a 15 per cent decline in the death rate from heart and blood vessel disease among men and women aged below 65. For men aged 45-64 the overall decline was 7 1/2 per cent, 1950-1962, despite an actual increase in the death rate due to heart attack.

Now is the time to remember that this life-or-death fight has one central, spear-heading force — your Heart Association. It has been in the thick of the battle since the first Heart Fund Campaign in 1949. It has the support, confidence and direction of 30,000 physicians and scientists—men and women who represent the most authoritative body of opinion on heart disease in the United States.

Now also is the time to remember that you have a very definite stake in this fight, since hearts come only one to a customer. So be generous. When your Heart Sunday volunteer calls at your home, give her a warm welcome. Open your heart, and your pocketbook. Give —so more will live.

Farm Prosperity Moot

With farm costs zooming to a new record high, farmers were no doubt disappointed in the failure of President Johnson's State of the Union message to give any serious consideration to growing in flation.

Instead the President called not only for acceleration of the domestic war on poverty with billions of new spending, but proposed international programs to educate all of the world and eliminate disease in all parts of the globe. All this is to be done while fighting a war in Viet Nam.

The elimination of poverty and the elimination of disease are commendable goals. The issue is the merits of the political biondoggling inherent in ill-conceived, politically-oriented crash programs.

Apparently the Chief Executive is undisturbed by the recorded scandals and wanton waste of his poverty programs.

While the President appears to believe that he has discovered the secret to perpetual prosperity, government figures show that farm costs hit a new all-time peak during the period ending December 15, 1965.

Yet only scant recognition was given to agriculture in the State of the Union message, with a report that average farm income was up 40 per cent over the last five years, and 22 per cent over last year.

While the President gave the impression that his Administration was responsible for agriculture's claimed financial success, the facts are quite different.

The President used average farm income, and the gains are due in part to the decline in the number of farms. Farm income did improve in 1965 over 1964, but $2.2 billion came from direct government payments to farmers. In 1966, payments are expected to rise to 26 per cent of net income.

Probably the only farmers who liked the President's message were the wool growers. Johnson is pulling their product over our eyes.

"By Buff"

Jack McMullan, God willing, will reach his 84th birthday August 13, and he tells me some people try to conceal their age. He says he has a theory that every honorable year one lives should be a star in his crown, so the more the better. Whether or not it will have any effect on one reaching or passing the four score mark, Jack sent me the following:

Winter Daily Routine of a retired, but contented, Octogenarian. Who is thankful that his vision is good and his mentality remains unimpaired; and his physical condition is good for one of his vintage who has had four major operations:

7 A. M.—Aroused by radio on clock and then tune in for the morning news.
7:10 A. M.—Shave, make up bed and attire myself in casuals and a red necktie.

7:30 A. M.—Breakfast. After which wash dishes (if wife permits).

8:30 A. M.—Spend hour reading, morning paper.

9:30 A. M.—Replenish food in bird feeders.
10 A. M.—Receive mail. Including the Congressional Record which I have received daily since my 21st year. Commune with the Congress one hour.

11 A. M.—Answer all correspondence and draw cartoons giving expression to my views of men and measures, and send them to various news media.

12:30 P. M.—Lunch.

2 P. M.—Spend one hour each day delving into the wonderful love of my Encyclopedia.
3:30 P. M.—Take constitutional stroll around the premises.

3:45 P. M.—Take one hour cat nap.

5:30 P. M.—Have game of canasta with wife.

6 to 7 P. M.—One hour TV news.

7 P. M.—Dinner.

7:30 to 9 P. M.—TV program.

9 P. M.—To bed. Tune in short wave radio for one hour, journey around the world via the air waves with the speed of sound.

10 P. M.—Turn off my memory switch and turn on my forgetter switch and gently enter the realm of Morpheus and temporary oblivion until 7 A. M., the next morning.

Am I bored with life? Positively not. My only worry is that the days are too short and art is long and time is fleeting.

Please note that the above is Jack's winter schedule, for I see no period listed when he sits in a chair in his back of his house and enjoys fishing if he catches anything or not. Incidentally, Jack was among the first persons I became acquainted with when coming to Edenton back in 1923 and it's a real pleasure to number him among my best friends over the years. He was very helpful back in those days, but I hardly think I can adopt his schedule on my march toward the four score mark. Then, too, in reading the Congressional Record I lack clipped a page from a 1955 issue in which were listed Presidents who were members of the Masonic fraternity. They include George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, James Monroe, Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk, James Buchanan, Andrew Johnson, James A. Garfield, William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Warren G. Harding, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry Truman. In the article it also lists Masons who signed the Declaration of Independence, among whom were William Hooper, Joseph Hewes and John Penn of North Carolina.

In the mail last week was an attractive postcard picturing Bourbon Street in New Orleans. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd C. Bunch were down that way and on the card was written: "Wish you and Kate were here with us. We would live up the town and again be 16."

An interesting letter was also received from Harry Smith, Jr., former secretary of Edenton Chamber of Commerce. Harry wrote:

"Dear Buff: It's been a long time since you have heard from me and I apologize. But I can assure you and our other friends in Edenton that you all have been in our thoughts many, many times since we left, despite the lack of physical evidence.

"This job keeps me snowed under—my desk looks like yours used to. I think we have more paper, work in our sport of boat racing than they have in the Pentagon. Also, I am out of town a good deal, so magazines and papers pile up at home. I often do not read the Herald until weeks after it arrives and sometimes not at all.

"I am very glad to know that Edenton is making continual progress in all directions—industry, tourism, education and agriculture. I still feel the county and Edenton have a bright future under the leadership of Mayor Mixtner, the Chamber of Commerce, the County Commissioners and other groups. It is bound to be the hub of activity in Northeastern North Carolina.

"Best wishes and kindest regards to you and my friends in Edenton."

Then Carlton Haskett, who lives in Rochester, Indiana, sent a letter complaining that he did not get his January 27th issue of The Herald. In part he said, "The same Saturday night the mercury registered 12 above in Edenton, the mercury got down to 18 below in Rochester. It must have gotten so cold in Edenton that I didn't get my January 27th issue of The Herald. After 32 years of getting The Herald, you, of course, are excused." But a few days later Friend Haskett wrote: "I received my Chowan Herald dated January 27 on February 8. It must have been in a snow bank some place."

Among the large number of subscribers now renewing their subscriptions, to The Herald was Mrs. Sam Allen, now living in Salisbury, N. C. A note read: "Kate is great. Keep up the good work."

Rudolph Dale had a very busy time Saturday blowing up balloons for youngsters to give for a contribution to the Heart Fund. Last year Rudolph filled the balloons by blowing in them, but this year, I noted, he used a bicycle pump—a little easier, no doubt.

And talking about bicyclists, I'm sort of fascinated by a local youngster who

Poverty Meeting Report Is Given

"Home economists in North Carolina have an unique responsibility to assist low-income families," according to Miss Doris Ragland, vocational home economics instructor at D. F. Walker High School.

Miss Ragland was among 200 key home economists in the state who attended a workshop, "Working With Low-Income Families," February 10-12 in Raleigh, sponsored by the North Carolina Home Economics Association.

"We attended the workshop to learn, to be inspired to greater effort and to become more personally involved. In workshop sessions we saw how home economists already are assisting low-income families through such areas as teaching, housing, health and welfare," she said.

"As a result of the workshop we are now able to go back to our own area of the state to give other home economists the information we received at the workshop and to develop more effective programs to meet the needs of low-income families."

At the opening session of the workshop Howard Barnhill, health educator for the Mecklenburg County Health Department, said: "We must see a 'grassroots' approach at the neighborhood level. The poor will break out of poverty if given the chance."

Program speakers included Dr. Frank Riessman, author of "The Culturally Deprived Child," and some 13 representatives of state organizations and agencies.

around a good bit on a unicycle. All he has to stay on top of the one-wheeled rig a seat and a couple pedals. Gives him a good chance to wave at his friends—with both hands if he wants to.

Edenton Rotarians, headed by Ed Bass, will stage a pancake and sausage supper and breakfast Friday night and Saturday morning of this week. The meals will be served at the Barker house, 5 to 8 o'clock Friday night and 7 to 9 o'clock Saturday morning. There are plenty of tickets for sale, for each Rotarian is armed with a batch of 20. Besides, the tickets can be purchased at Mitchener's Pharmacy and Hollowell's Drug Store. Ed says he has enough supplies to feed a small army and he hopes many a bit will be left over. Proceeds go to youth projects in Edenton, so here's hoping a "small army" will turn out and help the Rotarians to make some money.
