30th Division Veterans Plan Spring Gathering

FONTANA VILLAGE, N. C.—Veterans of the famous Old Hickory (30th Infantry) Division, of World War I and World War II will hold a reunion at Fontana Village Resort, Fontana Dam, May 20-22, 1966. Attendance of 500 is anticipated.

Broadus Bailey of Greenville, S. C., who was president of the 30th Division Association in 1936, will show movies made during World War I and at the first reunion of the World War I Old Hickory veterans when they convened in 1919.

A "reunion within a reunion" is expected, as a very large turnout of 105th Medical Battalion troops and other special medical detachment personnel of World War II is expected to pay tribute to Col. A. J. Treherne of Atmore, Ala., who will be a guest of honor at the reunion.

Frank Swan of Andrews and Bob Sloan of Fontana Dam are reunion co-chairmen. Swan has been particularly gratified at the large number of World War I survivors who have indicated they plan to attend. Because of their age, many will be flying in, with one reservation on hand from as far away as South Dakota.

Host for the gathering will be the Tar Heel Chapter of the 30th Infantry Division Association. Officers are president, E. L. Hollowell of Edenton and secretary J. B. Liles of Raleigh. Capt. Frank Swan of Andrews is vice president in addition to being reunion co-chairman.

The 30th Division, originally made up of national guardsmen of North and South Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee, distinguished itself during World War I with a breakthrough of the Hindenburg Line. During the second World War it was given the accolade of being the "Workhorse of the Western Front" by war correspondent Hal Boyle. The Division landed in France in June 1944, shortly after D-Day, and remained in combat until it reached Magdeburg, Germany, in one of the furthest penetrations of Germany by the American Army.

Maj. John Craig, a historian and writer of Charlotte, will attend, to augment his collection of human anecdotes he plans to use in a personal narrative of World War II, where he served as provost marshal to the Old Hickory Division. One of his anecdotes regarding Col. Howell P. Hatcher, formerly of the 30th Division, appeared in the April issue of the Reader's Digest.

The reunion will be primarily a gathering of old friends, with their children and grandchildren, with a de-emphasis on business sessions, according to co-chairman Sloan. In lieu of the traditional banquet at such affairs, a lakeshore charcoal broiled steak cook-out will be held across Fontana Lake in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

Col. James W. Perkins, Adjutant General of the 30th during World War II, presently living in Nashville, Tenn., will also be present, as will some of the World War I commanders, including Maj. W. H. Hyde who commanded the 113th MG Battalion during the first World War.

This will be the first large gathering of World War I survivors since their 1936 reunion held in South Carolina.

All World War II veterans were saddened to learn that Maj. Gen. Leland S. Hobbs, division commander in the European Theater during World War II, died March 6 at the age of 74. A special memorial service will be held in his memory, at a short business session Saturday afternoon, May 21.

Promotion Given Local Guardsman

The promotion of Kenneth L. Stalls from first lieutenant to the rank of captain in the North Carolina Army National Guard was announced by Gov. Dan Moore. Capt. Stalls was born in Williamston and presently resides with his wife at 12 Albania Street in Edenton. He is a teacher at John A. Holmes High School.

Captain Stalls graduated from Washington High School and received his bachelor and master's degrees from East Carolina College at Greenville. He attended the U. S. Army Infantry School at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Capt. Stalls joined the U. S. Army in October, 1953, and served on active duty until October, 1956. At that time, he became a member of the U. S. Army Reserve where he served until February, 1963, when he joined the North Carolina Army National Guard with Headquarters 4th Battalion, 119th Infantry in Ahoskie.

He has served with the North Carolina National Guard since that time. Capt. Stalls' present assignment is with Company C, 4th Battalion, 119th Infantry in Elizabeth City.

Association Given Award

HALIFAX — The James Iredell Association, Inc., of Edenton, has been given the annual Halifax Resolves Award.

The local association, headed by Mrs. Wood Privott, was cited for outstanding accomplishment in historical restoration in North Carolina.

Mrs. Privott and Mrs. J. L. Pettus were on hand April 12 for the 190th anniversary of Halifax Resolves, when the plaque was given.

Ray S. Wilkinson is chairman of the Historic Halifax Restoration Association, Inc.
