

'This Atomic World' Program Scheduled

A demonstration lecture sponsored by the Atomic Energy Commission on atomic energy and its uses will be presented at John A. Holmes High School on March 6.

The program, titled "This Atomic World," is designed to acquaint students with the basic principles of nuclear energy, its sources and role in industry, agriculture and medicine.

Phillip Lamm will present the assembly program which breaks down into student terms topics including the structure of atoms, radiation, reactors and fusion. Lamm has completed extensive training at the Oak Ridge, Tenn., facilities of the Atomic Energy Commission. He is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, and has done graduate work at East Carolina College, Greenville. He holds a bachelor of science degree.

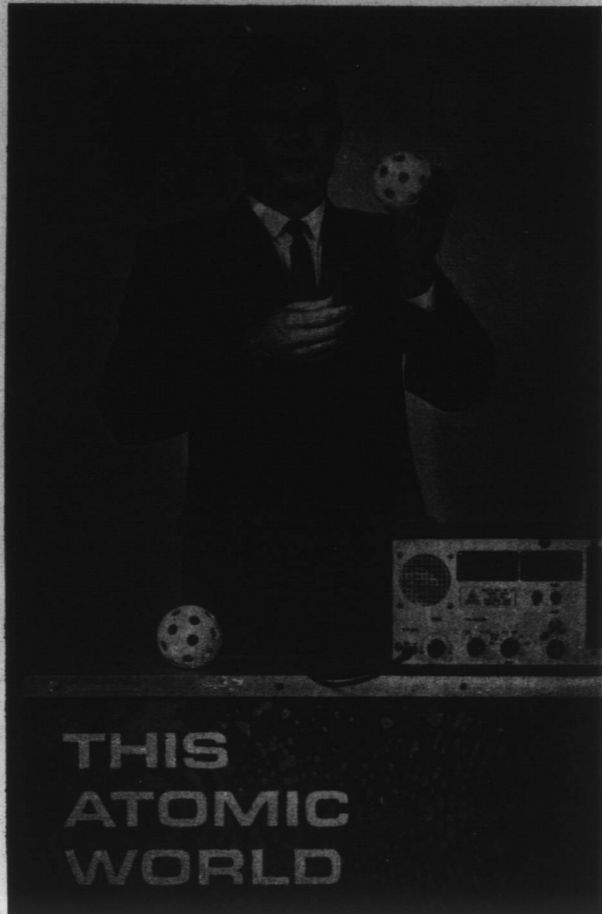

Specially designed electronic equipment is used during the 40-minute program to show such things as sources of radiation, how nuclear energy is harnessed to furnish electric power for cities, the use of radioisotopes as aid in diagnosis and treatment of diseases and to learn more about life processes.

A blackboard talk to science classes, which deals more specifically with such topics as atomic structure, radioactivity, radiation biology and careers in nuclear science, follows the assembly.

The program is operated by Oak Ridge Associated Universities which handles the nationwide exhibits program for the Atomic Energy Commission. The association is a non-profit educational and research corporation of 41 southern colleges and universities.

The "This Atomic World" program scheduled here is one of 11 similar units appearing daily at high schools throughout the country. They are part of the AEC's extensive traveling exhibit program designed to bring the public a greater understanding of atomic energy and its uses.

TO APPEAR HERE — A plastic ball "tagged" with harmless "tracer" atoms is part of the demonstration equipment used in presentations of "This Atomic World" to be presented at John A. Holmes High School on March 6. Phillip Lamm is the exhibits manager shown here.

Colonial Lockers End 20th Year

Colonial Frozen Food Lockers, 705 North Broad Street, this week observes its 20th anniversary of service to the people of this area.

John A. Mitchener, Jr., started the business on March 1, 1947, with Elwood Nixon as manager. Nixon has held that position since the beginning of the operation.

Mitchener, who has many local business enterprises, said Nixon has distinguished himself as one of the top specialists in his field. "Because of the undivided attention he devotes to his job, Elwood has gained a reputation for excellence," Mitchener said.

For the past few months the local operation has been swamped with pork. Nixon said the firm cures between 150,000 and 300,000 pounds of pork annually.

Over the years he has seen the producer completely change his attitude toward pork production. He said farmers today are producing better hogs, although often time he only handles the scrubs. "Some producers will sell off all the best hogs and cure the scrubs for themselves," he noted.

Nixon added that he does not render one-half the fat he did a few years ago. "A farmer used to measure his hog by the number of stands of lard they put up," he said. In the field of beef, the manager said eastern animals now measure up to the quality of western beef. "We, at one time, looked to the west for good steaks and other premium cuts of beef," Nixon said.

"Now we are producing this high quality beef in the east."

While the firm handles thousands of pounds of beef and pork annually, all the work is to the customer's specifications. They do, however, put up their own brand of ham: "Ye Ole Towne."

Except for the ham, the only product of Colonial Frozen Food Lockers is service. Nixon said this is a specialty with the firm. The local locker takes the animal alive and gives it back to the customer ready to drop in the pan.

As an added service to local customers, the firm has come under state inspection. Every animal processed is inspected by the state inspection service which allows producers to sell locally.

Another service of the firm is to act as a contact between the producer and customer.

While the food lockers are not as popular as they were several years ago, most of the 417 bins at Colonial are in use. Too, the firm can provide quick freeze for items which normally, if put into a home freezer in quantity, would take several days to freeze. The firm has seven employees who are trained to do most any job in the plant.

washington report by Rep. Walter B. Jones

On Monday, February 20, the House passed and sent to the Senate, H. R. 2 the title of which is "Reserve Forces Bill of Rights and Vitalization Act." Many of you will recall that a few months ago, S. Secretary McNamara brought forth plans to consolidate certain parts of the reserve Armed Forces. Many interpreted this as being an effort to do away with the Army Reserve and seriously cripple the National Guard.

And so it was that H. R. 2 was enacted to insure the integrity and the future of the Army Reserve and the National Guard. Some members felt that the President already had the necessary powers, but notwithstanding, it was deemed advisable to enact this legislation. Among other things, it brings the full-time personnel of Army Reservists and National Guard under Civil Service coverage providing a retirement plan and other benefits now available to Civil Service employees. This passed by a vote of 324 to 13, indicating the overwhelming approval of the House. I do not foresee any problem with the Senate taking a similar action.

Congressman Adam Clayton Powell continues to be the main topic of conversation both here and in the District. I would like to repeat emphatically that this is not a question of race, but is one which involves standards of conduct of an individual. On Thursday the special committee made certain recommendations for punitive action and by the time you read this column, no doubt the resulting action by the Democratic membership will be known. I think it is most important to realize that this appointed committee, was one to say the least, was friendly to Congressman Powell, for each of the members of the committee originally voted to accord him his seat.

Also, creating much interest was the disclosure of the activities of the CIA regarding college students and college organizations. It has raised a serious question in the mind of many of us as to the functions of the CIA and their failure to be held accountable to any branch of Government except the Executive. I feel that as a result of this disclosure, not passing judgment on the wisdom of their actions, that certain Congressional Committees should exercise a more direct control over the secret operations of the CIA. After all, it is an important function of our Government, charged with our ultimate security, and should be directed by the elected officials of this Nation. I feel that this procedure could be followed without any impairment of our National security in anyway.

Those interested in agriculture problems, particularly the Minimum Wage Act of 1966, will be delighted to know that the Department of Labor has interpreted the landlord-sharecropper arrangement as being a joint operation and that for minimum wage purposes, the sharecropper, under most conditions will be considered an independent operator and not covered under the minimum wage; and further will be responsible for providing the labor within his own operation. This is the interpretation that both the landlord and the sharecropper can continue to survive.

Prayer can be a sustaining thing, when all else seems to have failed us. It can be an unburdening of the heart, an unbearable load intangibly shared with One who is stronger than us; wisely used, it can be a release—a strength—a re-affirmation of faith. Prayer is an exciting privilege in the life of a Christian. Let us be sure that we use it well.

Student Seeks Reynolds Grant

GREENSBORO — Ivy Faye Lowe of Edenton is one of 24 outstanding high school senior girls, finalists for Katharine Smith Reynolds Scholarships who will be interviewed Friday and Saturday on the campus of the University of North Carolina here. The Reynolds Scholarship Central Committee will interview the finalists, and select the winners. Dean Katherine Taylor is chairman of the committee.

Miss Lowe, a National Merit Scholarship finalist, is a student at John A. Holmes High School. Twelve Reynolds scholars will be chosen to begin study next fall. Each scholarship is valued at $1,200 annually, renewable for four years' study. The six-hour visits by the girls will include interviews, a luncheon, and a campus tour. District committees selected first and second alternates from 251 nominations submitted by high school principals throughout the state.

The second District One finalist is Susan O'Neal Stalls of Everetts. Alternates are: Harriet Ann Hathaway of Sunbury, and Dianne Parker of Murrefreesboro.

Local Scouts Brave Weather

Edenton Scout Troop No. 156 camped in the coldest weather of the season this past weekend. Thirteen boys, under the adult leadership of Chester Stevens and Brad Williford, participated in the scheduled troop pre-camporee event at Camp Perry.

Extremely high wind forced the troop to use one common fire. Normally small groups of boys each enjoy a camp fire. These fires were prohibited because of forest fire threat. Scoutmaster Stevens stayed up all Saturday night tending the one fire. Several times Mr. Stevens visited the tents and made each sleeping boy to be assured that no cold weather health problems had developed.

Scouts attending the Saturday night campout were: Art Beeler, Tommy Jackson, Tom Gainor, Mark Stevens, Mike Hall, Lyle Hunnicutt, Joe Beeler, Jeff Covington, Lin Lee, David Shoaf, Hana Habit, John Williams and Pat Gainor.
