The Parliament Of Man

U Thant, Secetary-General of the United States, said in a speech at Uppsala, Sweden, in May, 1962: "The concept of taxing the rich according to their capacity to pay in order to cater to the poor according to their needs, is now well established as a simple canon of social justice in all democratic countries. It requires only little imagination to lift this concept to a higher plane, and to extend its scope from the country to the universe."

Karl Marx phrased it a little differently: he said, "From each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs." And he left out the universe.

Maybe what U Thant had in mind was the assessment of UN member nations, one-half of the 122 member nations of the UN, were assessed less than 3 per cent of the UN budget for the year 1967. The precise amount is 2.56 per cent.

If we add 21 nations, bringing the total to 82, or two-thirds of the UN membership, the assessment was 5.52 per cent, according to the Yearbook of the United Nations.

Each of these 82 nations has one vote in the General Assembly. The United States has one vote.

The 1967 assessment upon the United States was 31.91 per cent. The assessment upon the 12 nations with Communist governments totaled 21.69 per

When it comes to the specialized programs and agencies, and the so-called voluntary programs, the gap is even wider. UN contributions amount to about 45 per cent of the overall total. Here the Communist nations lag even farther behind. Among other failures, they refused to contribute to the "peacekeeping operations" in Palestine or the Congo, in spite of World Court rulings that the assessments were legal.

"The expenses of the Organization," says the UN Charter, "shall be borne by the Members as apportioned by the General Assembly."

The contribution of the United States to the regular budget has been limited by Congress to not more than one-third of the total for any year. But year after year, Washington borrows money to pay the assessments and contributions, leaving a colossal debt that our children and their children will have to pay.

Of course, being debt-ridden and poor, our children may find U Thant's dictum to their advantage, and others, richer, · may pay their assessments.

Is Cyclist The Safest?

Security-another way of saying safety-may be the warm blanket that is carried by that celebrated young cartoon character. But we doubt it.

In fact, there probably isn't any such thing as total safety and, in the current preoccupation with developing ways and means of curtailing the rise of death by accident, we undoubtedly have twisted and distorted the true picture of some of the problem areas.

One popular myth has been exploded by Dr. Derek Robinson, a member of the medical subcommittee of the Massachusetts Governor's Committee on Highway Safety. Dr. Robinson told an injury control seminar that, contrary to popular modern myth, the motorcyclist is probably the safest driver on our highways. The cyclist, he said, causes the fewest accidents but gets blamed for being a serious threat. "And to rub salt in his wounds," Dr. Robinson declared, "the motorcyclist pays about the same insurance rates as the average motorist."

The Commerce Department reported that the nation's motorcycle population passed the 8-million mark this year. This certainly emphasizes the fact that cycles have become a factor in our traffic safety picture. The question remains as to what can realistically be done to improve road conditions for the operators of all vehicles. Dr. Robinson seems to be saying that perhaps we should look to the new breed of motorcyclists for the guidelines to safe driving practice.

Sgt. N. E. Hollowell, now in North Vietnam, through his mother, sent me the fol-

"Dear Friends and Neighbors of the Home Front: Very soon the undersigned will be once more in your midst, demoralized and demobilized to take his place once again as a human being with freedom and justice for all, liberty and somewhat delayed pursuit of happiness. In making your preparations to welcome him back home into organized society, you must make allowance for this crude environment which has been miserable for many months. In a way he might be a little Asiatic, suffering from GOOKITIS and he must be handled with extreme care.

"Show no alarm if he prefers to squat on his haunches instead of sitting in a chair, insists on taking off his shoes before entering the house, or has a tendency to bow when somebody greets him. Keep cool when he pours gravy on his dessert or insists on chopsticks instead of silverware and prefers fish and rice to T-bone steak, be tolerant with him when he takes his mattress off of his bed and puts it on the floor to sleep. Don't let it shock you if he is talking on the phone and says CHAO instead of hello and TAM BIST instead of goodbye. In a relatively short time he can be taught to speak English again.

"Never ask him why the boys down the street were able to make higher rank than he, as this is liable to throw him into a violent fit. Don't make any remarks as to the uniforms of the Navy or Marines and how nice they look. He will go insane if the word "re-enlist" is even spoken in a whisper. Don't question him as to why the neighbor's son was stationed in the states for four years, as this will lead to many catastrophic consequences.

"For the first few months be especially watchful when he is around women, particularly those who are young and beautiful. After endless months of seeing beauwomen wooed and loved by handsome men in the movies, he thinks he is a master of the art himself. Keep in mind that beneath his rugged and tanned exterior there beats a heart of pure goldit's about the only thing he has left. Treat him with kindness and an occasional soft drink and you will be able to rehabilitate that which is the hollow shell of the once proud civilian you once knew.

"P. S.—Send no more letters in care of APO. Lock your daughters in their rooms, get the kids off the streets, get the civies out of moth balls and fill the ice box with cold, cold drinks-I'm coming home very

Heading for Nags Head Saturday, I promised three or four friends a mess of salt water fish but they, like us, were disappointed for we ate all three of 'em-two bluefish and a hog fish, and they might have been thrown back to grow a little larger. Anyway, fishing and inspecting the piers from Rodanthe to Kitty Hawk was enough to convince me that the scudders were not biting. Of course, I should have gotten some idea, for I saw E. L. Hollowell hanging around one of the piers without his fishing outfit and rod and reel. Which once again just goes to prove that a fellow can often times have just as much or even more fun fishing in the waters around -and sometimes even catching more

It's a safe bet that a large crowd will gather at Murray Tynch's place at Valhalla Friday night. He's having his annual fish fry, beginning at 5 o'clock and here's betting that a fellow will have to stand in line before being handed a plate of fried fish and the trimmings. But here's one will be in a bind. There's three affairs going on Friday night, the fish fry, a ladies' night banquet at the Masonic Temple and, of course, a football game. How in the dickens can a fellow be at three different places at the same time?

And speaking about football, the Edenton Band was on hand Friday night when the Aces were defeated by the Elizabeth City Yellow Jackets 13-0-mostly on account of one certain Lindsay Riddick, who was as slippery as an eel and chalked up considerable gains almost every time he ran with the ball—and that was quite frequently. Anyway, the band put on a good show at half time and while greatly outnumbered, the Edenton Band, per capita, tooted out just as good music as the famous Elizabeth City Band. The visiting band, however, also put on a very delightful exhibition at half time, so that both bands added color and interest in the game. Friday night the Aces lock horns with Northampton High on Hicks Field, which will be the last home game for three consecutive Friday nights.

There's some things I just cannot understand. For instance, at my house a good crop of grass grows between the cracks in the cement, and all the while I have a dickens of a time getting tomatoes and other vegetables to grow in a small garden, despite all the care and attention given to it. Think I'll try planting tomatoes between the cement cracks and see how they turn out.

After having something to say about the flags at the foot of Broad Street, a reader again has me puzzled. I was asked why the British flag is one of the four flags on display. "The flag is just out of place," I was told. "The Confederate Plaza is symbolic of the Civil War. The place for the British flag should be near the Court House which is associated with the Revolutionary War." Well, who can wiggle out

Legionnaires are busy preparing for the annual Chowan County Fair, which they sponsor. Like other years, they hope the fair will "be the best yet." Many times in the past the fair was a good reason for the weatherman to dump down a lot of rain. The fair will be held September 25-30, and here's hoping the weatherman will

Don't forget the county-wide fish fry Saturday, October 14, which is sponsored by Saturday, October 14, which is sponsored by Chowan County Shriners. The proceeds of this affair will go toward helping the hospitals for crippled children, supported by the Shriners of the county. Buy a ticket, get a "square" meal and make a little contribution toward helping crippled children to walk

Postal Services Day activities will be designed to point out that the Post Office Department is the one Federal Government agency that comes in closest contect with the public on a day-in-dayout basis.

The postal service is the prime artery of commerce and the tie that binds friends and loved ones across the miles. It is one of the biggest businesses in the world with interests ranging from swearing in Peace Corps volunteers, to watching out for forest fires, and it is the main shipping agency for everything from bees to baby chicks.

Last year approximately 2,500 addresses were ZIP Coded by the Edenton Post Office as part of a similar program using only one card with spaces for as many as 13 addresses, Postmaster Bond time they had second thoughts before ink on the minutes dried.

Now, this week a Chowan County Grand Jury reported in Superior Court that the building is "inadequate and unsafe" for use for county offices.

The reaction of our county commissioners to this finding will be interesting.

While we have advocated for some time that the county get out of the hotel business, we believe, with only a little work, the structure could be used for many years to house county agenciesincluding the Edenton-Chowan Board of Education.

It will be some years before Chowan County can afford a new administration building. This makes the hotel property quite valuable and a county holding our commissioners should be serious about.

Maybe the grand jury report, which used stiff language, will impress upon the commissioners what public opinion has failed to do. There is an easier solution to the problem than a court order.

Proof In Pudding

During last fall's unsuccessful hospital bond campaign one of the hidden and unanswerable questions was how much participatiton could be expected from outside sources.

Medical Care Commission, which handles federal funds in this department, still must allocate construction money as it becomes available from Washington. Therefore, a lot depends on how many applications are on hand when another is presented, etc.

Recently the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced that during the first six months of this year, $11,969,075.39 in federal funds was approved to help finance the construction of hospitals, mental retardation and mental health facilities in North Ca-

One has only to go down the list to realize that federal participation in hospital constructtion is a determining factor if improved medical facilities are to become a reality.

The total estimated cost of Duplin General Hospital was $2,156,000 with the federal share being $906,000; Swain County Hospital's cost was set at $781,-448.60 with $622,400 coming from the federal government; and Anson County Hospital, $1,920,000, with $1,000,000 coming from Uncle Sam.

Chowan County needs additional and improved medical facilities. The taxpayers must be willing to pay their fair share because they are the ones who will primarily enjoy the services and benefits. Nevertheless, the federal government, as is shown here, goes the second mile in construction costs.

So, it isn't writing the county commissioners a blank check when we approve bonds for hospital construction. They would be fools to use an unseasonable amount of local money before making sure every outside source had been contacted.

It's time to start calling.

that he will appoint a Housing Authority within the week. This authority would investigate the establishment of low-rent public housing in Edenton.

Councilman Henry Quinn said he has received complaints about policemen not checking doors in the downtown area during the night.

Police Chief James H. Griffin stated that doors were checked once on the second shift and twice on the third shift. He read off a list of establishments found unlocked during the past few months to substantiate his remarks.

The matter of getting high school students to work as school crossing guards was revived by Gardner who stated that Supt. Bill Britt favors it. The guarded crossing points would increase from two to eight and policemen would be relieved
