

Humanities Consultant Inspects Local Program

Marion Sloan of Chicago, a humanities consultant employed by the Educational Corporation of Encyclopaedia Britannica, visited the Edenton-Chowan schools Monday.

He is a former English teacher in Georgia and Florida. Before joining EBEC as a humanities consultant, he was chairman of the English Department of the Governor of Georgia's Honors Program for the state of Georgia.

As a full time consultant, Sloan was prepared to discuss with Mrs. Mary Partin, arts and humanities coordinator of the Edenton-Chowan schools and with Supt. Franklin L. Britt, the philosophies of the humanities and the philosophies involved in developing a school wide humanities program. With his extensive traveling in the consultant's position, he was prepared to give an overview of what is happening in the area of the humanities development throughout the country—the major trends and activities—as well as the involvement and better utilization of the humanities materials. For an hour - after school, Sloan spoke to the junior and senior high teachers about the importance of the humanities program for our students. He stressed that "the humanities is not an innovation but a renovation—more of a rescue for the students." Humanities deal with an interrelation of all learning. The key ingredients of a definition of the humanities involve man; interdisciplinary exploration—correlation of literature, history, arts, music and philosophy; concern for values, not facts alone; the search for order in chaos; and the identity with man his great potentiality. "Advances in science are so extreme," he said, "unless we come to know humanities, we may not morally be able to cope with the advances in technology." He quoted Carl Sandburg in saying, "Man to man we are brothers be," and emphasized that school people have come to a firmer realization of this after having lived through two world wars, the Korean War and the present Viet Nam crisis. In our neon and asphalt world, teachers know there is a need to develop human beings, to develop thinking people.

When Sloan presented a brief program to the Lions Club on Monday evening, he lauded the humanities program in progress in our local schools and declared that the designing program was an exemplary one in the nation.

"Humanities will not solve every problem in the world," the consultant asserted, "but educators of the nation are pleading for humanities and students are pleading for humanities."

1968 Cotton Quota Referendum

A referendum on marketing quota for the 1968 crop of upland cotton will be conducted by mail during the period December 4 through 8, 1967.

Marketing quotas cannot be continued in effect, however, without the approval of at least two-thirds of the cotton growers voting in the referendum. Those eligible to vote are all producers who shared in the 1967 cotton crop or its proceeds and the owners and operators of allotment farms.

If quotas are approved for 1968 crop upland cotton, the cotton program will provide loans and payments to growers who voluntarily reduce their cotton plantings below the farm allotments. Marketing quota penalties will apply to any excess cotton produced on a farm.

If quotas are not approved, there will be no quotas or penalties, no diversion payments, and no price support payments.

Ballots will be mailed to all producers who are listed on the records as cotton growers in the county ASCS office.

Allotment Notices

Peanut and cotton allotment notices were mailed to all county farmers. These notices also carried the projected cotton yield for 1968.

Students Laud Ciompi Quartet

A marvelous concert Monday by the Ciompi String Quartet of Duke University gave local high school students an opportunity to hear chamber music performed at its highest level.

For the program the Ciompi Quartet formed a wide range of music from Mozart, Beethoven, Ravel to Walter Piston. The audience could hardly have been exposed to a more stirring example of small ensemble playing with its fabulous interplay of thought and feeling.

Giorgio Ciompi, violinist, for whom the Ciompi Quartet is named, came to America from Florence, Italy, in 1948, was invited by Toscanini to become a member of the NBC Symphony Orchestra, toured internationally for 18 years and was appointed Artist-in-Residence at Duke University in 1964.

Gianna Jones and Pat Reaves of John A. Holmes High School felt these were really great performers. Carroll Lassiter expressed the opinion of the majority of students when she stated that it was the first opportunity she had had to hear string music and she was glad she was exposed to it.

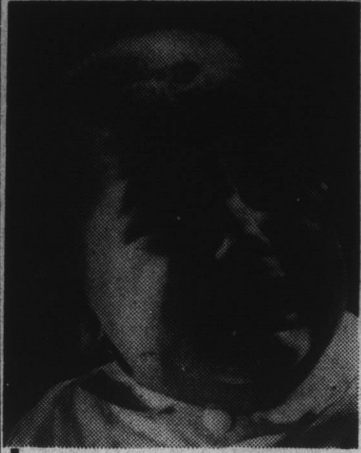

Emily Peele of Chowan High School asserted, "It was an excellent opportunity for the county students to hear chamber music, and we appreciate this program being made available to us. This concert, in addition to the performance given by the N. C. School of Fine Arts in October, makes us Chowan students more aware of the culture in our state."
