Jack Williams Wins In Show

LYNCHBURG, Va.—Professional Photographer Jack Williams of Elizabeth City, N. C., recently was awarded three blue ribbons for first place and one second place in direct color pictorial photography at the annual spring seminar of the Virginia Professional Photographers' Association. Competing with 150 of the state's top print selections, Williams again hung all of his prints with ribbons, having won two Court of Honor awards in North Carolina last month. Williams entered unusual fall color scenes taken in the creeks of Weeksville and the struggling red leaves that creep through the rotting wharves near lumber mills. A yellow flower bed with Monticello in the background was his fourth award in the keenly contested Blue Ridge program.

Morris Burchette, president of the Virginia Association, said the VPPA board of directors has recognized the services of Williams, a national award winner and lecturer, by passing a special rule to make him a full-fledged member of the VPPA rather than an out-of-state associate member.
