

Dwight Flanagan ECU'S Mr. Hyde

Dwight Flanagan, who thrilled many a fan of the Edenton Aces and caused many sleepless nights for foes, was a key to the defense of East Carolina University Pirates until he received an injury in the opening game with Parsons.

The speedy defensive back pounced on a loose ball only to save several Parsons' players do likewise—not on the ball but on Flanagan. The Edentonian received an injury to his leg and is expected to be out of action for at least four more weeks.

He is the son of Mr. and

DWIGHT FLANAGAN

Mrs. Pat Flanagan, Country Club Drive.

Following is a recently published story about the former star of Edenton Aces:

If you saw Dwight Flanagan walking down the street the last thing you would take him to be is a football player.

He's got a face you might find on that of a choir boy and the build of somebody who looks to be a candidate for a Charles Atlas course.

But put him in football togs and turn him loose in a defensive backfield, and the biggest change since

Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde takes place. For somebody who stands 5-10 and with all four pockets filled with rocks weighs about 165 pounds, he can promote more damage than a fireman wielding a frantic axe.

Except for size, he has all the qualities you want in a football player. He is fast, and he has a quickness that seems to get him to the right place at the right time. And although he plays defense, he's a good ballcarrier and displays his talents as a returner of kicks.

"He's one of our outstanding backs," Coach Clarence Stasavich says. "He's gained a lot of poise, and we're fortunate we are able to use him at a vital defensive position."

Despite the fact he has steadily improved since he joined the Pirates, Flanagan is never satisfied with himself. He started several games last year, and hauled back 24 kicks for a total of 380 yards.

"Overall I guess I'm doing a lot better," he says "but I could do better. I know I'm quicker than I was last year. I don't use as many wasted steps. And I'm surer of myself."

"I'm stronger too. I used the weights in the summer, but I didn't gain any. I'm just stronger. I feel like it, particularly in my arms."

When it comes to talking about himself, you have to gouge him a little, but when he talks about the team, his reaction is free.

"We're going to be tough," he says. Fella (Rhodes) is gonna do the job at tailback; and on defense, we're supposed to be tough. All of us want to go to that bowl game so bad we can taste it.

"I'd really like to see us go undefeated, but all I've heard people talk about is that bowl game."

The spirit and the aggressiveness of the team has been impressive, too. "It's the best I've ever been associated with," Flanagan says. "I think we have good leadership in our captains (Ben Grieb and Wayne Lineberry) and everybody's working hard." Flanagan, a junior from Edenton, is starting defensive left halfback.

Insurance Program Provided For Young Groups

A new insurance program for local organizations who might qualify for the program include youth groups such as the Boy Scouts and Campfire Girls has been announced by Aetna Life & Casualty. The program is basically low-cost accident insurance to protect the group's youngsters, Aetna explained.

Typical local organizations who might qualify for the program include bands, nursery schools, dance and drama groups and such organizations as Boy and Girl Scouts, Dismolay, Rainbow Girls, 4-H groups, Cub Scouts, Future Farmers of America and Brownies.

Group activities and travel are covered under the policy, which provides a variety of hospital and medical services and supplies. Aetna, largest multiple-line insurance organization in the U. S., is making the program available to youth organizations across the nation.
