Perhaps in time of reincarnation
I'll be in the form of a Bear,
Then in Winter I can hibernate
And "come to" when Spring's in the air.

Some people think it's a "let down" after Christmas, but it means to me the thought that NOW I can look forward to Spring. Right now, it means four layers of clothing to get comfortable and the dread of catching the "flu." By the way, our friends, Jimmy and Pauline Oglesby are at last recuperating, after a very bad bout with the flu bug. There certainly is a lot of sickness and I blame it all on winter! I read where a French doctor claims that being in love is the best immunity against colds—that should help a lot of us!

Well, the Bufflap household will be alive this week, as my two grandchildren will come with their nurse for a week, then on to New York, where they will live. I'm glad that moving from Texas to New York gives them a reason for letting the children visit us and this diversion will keep us from being bored (except that we never are).

You know, there's a few very special ladies whom you may meet down town who will always brighten your day with their cheerful faces and happy smiles. To mention a few, there's Mrs. West Byrum, Sr., Pearl Moore, Lena Jones, Johnetta White, Mary Hardin and Annie McMullan. Oh, I could mention many more who just unconsciously give you a lift when you meet them.

I just received this recipe from Doris Bufflap, who found it on a recent trip to Florida. She says it's a "yummy" treat:

One 8-oz. pkg. dates.
½ cup coconut.
½ cup granulated sugar.
4 tbsps. butter.
1 slightly beaten egg.
Pinch of salt.

Combine above in heavy skillet. Cook over low heat for about 10 minutes. Set aside a few minutes to cool. Then add 1 tsp. vanilla, ½ cup chopped nuts and 1½ cups rice crispies. These cookies or candies can be formed into small shapes to fit the occasion, rolled into colored sugar or decorative trims.

A FEW HINTS
Store your shoes in cardboard boxes, marking the outside of each box with crayons in matching color of your shoes and they can be easily identified.

For a crisp, shiny crust off a pie, pour a cup of ice water over entire crust before placing it in the oven. Tilt pie so that water will run off, then bake.

If you take children out to eat, keep a damp cloth in a plastic bag in your purse for sticky fingers.
