Pretty Teller Claims Honor

A pretty green-eyed bank teller from Eastern North Carolina has won the national title of "Miss Drive-In Teller of 1969" following a vote by presidents of 14,000 banks in all 50 states.

She is Miss Nell Jones who just completed an intensive four-month campaign for the coveted title which is tantamount to "Miss U. S. Banker of 1969."

Miss Jones is a teller for First National Bank of Eastern North Carolina in Jacksonville. She grew up harvesting tobacco for 50 cents an hour and driving a school bus for $1 a day. Part of her campaign took her to Chicago for a week of "politicking" at the American Bankers Association's annual convention during October. The final stage was her selection from among three finalists through a mail balloting by presidents of the nation's 14,000 banks.
