

Report From Washington

By Rep. Walter B. Jones

Now that the 91st Congress has convened, we are happy to resume our weekly Washington Report through the medium of the press of the First District.

On Friday, January 3, the 91st Congress convened and the first day was involved with a four-hour debate over the question of seating Adam Clayton Powell of the City of New York. In an historic action, the House finally decided to seat Congressman Powell upon the condition that he pay a fine of $25,000 and re-enter minus certain privileges. It is difficult for me to reconcile my thinking to this action. Basically I do not think the Congress has the right to impose financial conditions upon any member being seated. Either Powell should have been seated or he should not have been seated. The valid reasons for his exclusion in the 90th Congress still exist, and I find nothing has happened in the two years in the way of restitution, apology or correction. Along with the other North Carolina members of Congress, I voted against the action to seat Congressman Powell. In any event, he was finally given the oath of office at about 6:45 P. M. and 20 minutes later a roll call was held and Congressman Powell was absent.

On Monday, January 6, the question of interest to many North Carolinians was the electoral vote of Dr. Bailey of Rocky Mount, who had cast his vote for Governor Wallace even though he was a Republican elector. Senator Muskie and Congressman O'Hara saw fit to challenge this vote as being invalid. The question before the Congress was whether the Congress under the Constitution had the right to challenge any electoral vote. The North Carolina delegation, including myself, took the position that Dr. Bailey had violated no election law of the State of North Carolina and that the returns of the electoral votes had been certified as being in order by the proper officials of the State of North Carolina. The motion to discount Dr. Bailey's vote was defeated and the North Carolina returns prevailed. Although I vigorously opposed the action to challenge the North Carolina electoral vote, I will agree with others who insist that we have outgrown our Electoral College system of electing Presidents, for we are using the machinery of the 18th century here in the 20th century. I am convinced that legislation should be devised which will permit more direct participation of the voters in the naming of the Presidential nominees as well as in the election of the President itself.

Of some interest to our district is that I, along with 14 other members of Congress, introduced a potato referendum bill which will permit the potato producers of this nation to be given an opportunity in an election to vote upon themselves a one-cent per hundred weight assessment with the proceeds going towards the research

Duke Memorial Lunch Room Menus

Gifts Increase

CHARLOTTE—Financial aid available to Duke University students from the Angier B. Duke Memorial, Inc., has been increased again this year because of the higher cost of education.

The annual report of the corporation for 1968, released December 23, 1968, shows the Angier B. Duke Memorial fellowship provides a $4,000 grant, which is $200 more than last year.

The fellowship is awarded annually to a graduate student. Scholarships, also given annually, are for undergraduates and provide funds on a basis of the financial needs of the individual students. Grants-in-aid are tuition grants to needy and deserving students. The corporation also makes loans to worthy students who may apply for assistance after completing a semester's work.

The Angier B. Duke Memorial, Inc., was established in 1925 by the late Benjamin N. Duke in memory of his son, Angier B. Duke. Its funds were derived primarily from gifts of Mr. Duke and bequests made by him and his widow, Mrs. Sarah Pearson (Angier) Duke. Approximate market value of its assets was $6,475,000 on June 30.

In 43 years awards and loans have amounted to more than $4 million and have benefited students from practically every state in this country and from many other countries. They were made with the aid of recommendations of committees established at Duke University for this purpose.

and promotion of potato and potato produce. It is estimated that in a year of normal production, this one-cent assessment will raise some $2 million.

Much of the time since convening on January 3 has been consumed with House members seeking to be elected to different committees, ones with more prestige or on committees of particular interest to their own districts.

Thursday, January 9, we had the pleasure of meeting and hearing the Apollo 8 astronauts, Borman, Lovell and Anders. Colonel Borman served as spokesman before the joint session of the House and Senate as well as the members of the Cabinet and Supreme Court and everyone was impressed with his sincerity and his humble pride in being an American citizen. Equally impressed were the members of Congress with the clean-cut patriotic appearances of these three gentlemen. There are some who question the advisability of spending such vast sums of money for space exploration, but if science is to explore and unfold the mysteries of the universe, then America has no choice but to contribute its part in this exploration. This should be approached with the insistence that each dollar spent will contribute to a tangible return.
