Medicare Depends On S. S.

Some people who reach 65 in 1969 or later will not have full medicare protection unless they have worked under social security. The medicare program is divided into two parts, hospital insurance and supplementary medical insurance.

Hospital insurance, known as "Part A," provides hospital care for up to 150 days during a spell of illness, with the patient paying a small proportion of the charges. To be eligible for this protection, a person reaching 65 this year must either:

(1) Have six quarters of social security work credit, or

(2) Be entitled to monthly social security benefits as dependent or survivor of an insured worker.

For those who reach 65 after 1970, the amount of work credits needed increases by three quarters each year. Those who reach 65 in 1970 will need nine quarters of social security worker credit. Eventually, the amount of work required for hospital insurance protection will be the same as that required for monthly cash benefits.

Most 65 year old wives and widows will get benefits on their husband's work records. Under these conditions, the woman has full hospital insurance protection even though she may have no social security work.

Supplementary medical insurance, often called doctor bill insurance or "Part B," does not require any social security work credit. This part of medicare is financed by monthly premiums paid by enrollees and matched by the federal government out of general revenues.

For more information about medicare provisions contact your local Social Security office located at 401 South Dyer Street, Elizabeth City, N. C.

Sunday School Lesson

we do fully realize His sacrifice, His self-effacement, then we have no choice but to abandon our lives to His bidding.

In the face of such love, we must—of necessity—feel humility; in the face of His resurrection, after three days in the sepulchre, we must experience hope. And how precious that last experience, in the face of court, despair, pain and aloneness. Without hope, mankind would, indeed, be lost.

This was the gift of Christ to mankind—repentance, forgiveness of sins, life everlasting. We must, perforce, ask ourselves: "How can we repay?" As self-confessed Christians, the answer must be obvious.
