Sunday School Lesson

must be patient and—if necessary—long-suffering no matter what ills befall us; we learn that we must be forgiving, instead of vindictive. From it, too, we draw comfort and reassurance in our times of need. It is our tower of spiritual strength. Fortified by an intimate knowledge of its contents, we can face anything—dare anything.

But we must fully understand those contents if we are truly to learn. Mere "lip service" per se, is not enough. The concepts of Christianity, as set forth in the Bible, must be translated into action in our daily lives.

Texas Gulf Establishes Farm program, Vaughn has worked closely with the local game protector of the State Wildlife Resources Commission and with officials of the Federal Soil Conservation Service in Washington.

Improvement of the land for a horse farm began about two years ago. It is an outgrowth of TGS's beef cattle and forestry programs which began over five years ago on the south side of the river, near the mine and production complex.

Vaughn's counterpart across the river is Hayes Gregory, formerly a faculty member at N. C. State University. Gregory manages the cattle and forestry programs at Pamlico Farms South, and hopes to eventually have a herd of 4,000 Black Angus beef cattle.

Gregory's programs have been on land waiting to be mined. He is moving this year onto land already mined to restore it to productivity.

Efficient use of land and profitable raising of horses and cattle are integral parts of Texas Gulf's program as a corporate citizen of North Carolina. The successful raising of stock will testify to the effectiveness of Texas Gulf's air and water pollution control devices used in the production of phosphate.

A Thought to Remember

By MARVIN BARHAM

A sophomore in Washington College was summoned to the President's office and gently admonished that only perseverance and industry would prevent that failure that would inevitably come to him through college and through life.

"But, General (President Robert E. Lee), you failed," remarked the sophomore.

"I hope that you will be more fortunate than I," was the tranquil answer.

To fail is no disgrace, but to fail and never rise again is tragic. Sometimes a treasure reclaimed from a shipwreck at the bottom of the sea is twice as valuable as before.
