

BROAD STREET BULLETIN...

By Kate

A single rose in a silver vase,
A lovely gift to see,
Giving me much pleasure,
A symbol of love to me.

A longed-for gift in a sheltered spot,
Where we may sit in quiet thought,
Not to worry or wonder "Why"
But being content as the world goes by.

As I've just passed over Allsbrook home again. It's another milestone in my life, I feel so very grateful, yet humble for the precious gift of life, especially when I realize the happiness given to me by those I love. Having good friends and a loving family is truly happiness in every way.

Bill Davis, who enjoys a sort of reunion of relatives and friends each year on his birthday, was honored again this past Sunday with an outdoor picnic, to which we were invited again. We look forward to this feast each year and always have such a good time getting over-fed. It's fine, too, to greet Bill and his family each year and to meet again the folks who gather there. Many more happy birthdays, Bill!

We're glad to see our friend and neighbor, Irma

We still have our precocious little girl with us, who keeps us entertained and busy all her waking hours. When I walk in her room, after she's asleep, I wonder just how I'll be able to let her return to her parents. Grandmothers may act foolish, but that love for grandchildren is so fierce that you just must be a grandmother to appreciate the fact.

How proud the Kehayes family must have been this past weekend to have their son Tommy at home for just a little while and to have him preach an excellent sermon at St. Paul's Episcopal Church Sunday morning. However, altogether this is a fine family, where love and trust reigns.

You can't be a pessimist and expect to be lucky!

A Few Hints

No recipes—please send me your favorites.

If you've been given perfume in scents you don't especially like, use them in your bath water. Diffused in water, they will be more pleasant.

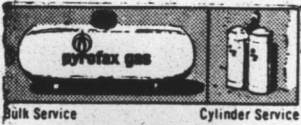

Perspiration stains on washables can be erased if covered with a baking soda paste for a few minutes before laundering the garment.

When you're icing a cake, frost the sides first, then pile the icing high on top.

Ulcerous Source

Doctors agree that stomach ulcers come from something you hate, not from something you ate.
