

Around The Farms In Chowan County

By R. M. THOMPSON

County Extension Chairman
For many people it is time to select the variety of corn that you are going to plant for this year. With the present demand for corn for livestock, which is expanding by leaps and bounds in this area, there are several points which you should consider when you are selecting your variety.

First of all, what do you intend to do with it? Do you intend to sell on the early market? Do you intend to pick and save it for feed on your farm? Get government support prices for it? Or, just hold it and wait for a price rise?

There are many varieties that are real good for storage. If you are planning to store the corn, you should plant one of these varieties. If you are considering selling on the early market, you should plant an early maturing variety. When you select the variety of seed corn that you are going to plant, be sure and read the seeding rate because it has been found that increasing plant population over the recommended rate has not in most cases increased yields. In some instances, if it is too thick, it has actually reduced yields.

You should have your lime requirement brought up to the optimum, which is in most cases a pH of 5.8 to 6. You should have your phosphorus level at a high medium with adequate potash, which in most cases requires from 80 to 100 pounds applied. Provide adequate nitrogen, which should be somewhere around 150 units per acre.

There are other practices which can be used to increase yield in some cases as well as reduce labor which will be discussed at a later date.

To give you an idea of varieties and their yields from some work that has been done in Chowan County, the following table shows the variety and yield results of two demonstrations.

Chowan High School News

By Frank Holley

Tuesday night, January 27, Chowan hosted Oak City. Early in the first quarter of the girls' game the Oak City squad took a lead. They held this until the second quarter, when the Bulldogs seemed to get a hot hand. They went ahead and stayed there until the third quarter, when the Redskins started pouring on the steam and sinking in the points. They defended this lead until they knew they had a sure victory. Chowan rallied back with about a half quarter remaining to win the game 36-22.

The Bulldog boys just seemed to make mincemeat out of the Redskin boys. Their final score was 63-51.

During the school week of January 26-30 Chowan High had a record number of absentees. There were 365 students absent. Monday had the high for one day. That was 100. The flu bug struck. It just might bite you if you don't watch out, so be careful!

Friday night Chowan campaigned against Manteo. Manteo female squad seemed to beat ours by confidence. They came into the game confident and made few mistakes. Their team just outplayed ours. Chowan's girls just couldn't seem to "get it together." Manteo took the lead and held it all the way through the game for a victory. Don't think it was that easy. Chowan's girls fought hard but Manteo proved to be a better team. The final score was 47-32, Manteo.

The big Bulldogs came on the floor looking for revenge. Manteo took an early lead but didn't hold it long. Chowan fought back to tie it up. Then there were about two quarters it happened no one was scoring. Then in the third quarter it happened. The boys got together what the girls couldn't, an 11-point lead. We held this until the fourth quarter. The Manteo boys started "doing their thing."
