

L. W. Revels, 57, Taken In Death

L. W. Revels, 57, died at his home at Arrowhead Beach Tuesday after a six-month illness.

He is a native of Chester, S. C., but had made his home at Arrowhead for the past three years.

Mr. Revels was a retired equipment specialist at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mildred D. Revels of the home; his mother, Mrs. Mary Tritt Revels of Kings Mountain; three sons: M/Sgt. Kenneth A. Revels of the Air Force stationed in Fayetteville, Ark., John D. Revels of China Lake, Calif., and James Michael Revels of Orlando, Fla.; two brothers, Frank Junior Revels of Richmond, Va., and Roy Gene Revels of Kings Mountain; two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Herring of Durham and Mrs. Naomi Mitchell of Kings Mountain and three grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete at press time. Colonial Funeral Home was in charge of the arrangements.

ELECTED TO POSTS—Miss Brenda Sessoms, extreme left, was elected a vocational senator recently when elections of the Student Government Association were held at Martin Technical Institute. Others are: Curtis Brown, Debbie Raper, Dickie Brown, Decephus Lee, Patricia Edwards, Eddie Price, Ronald Ruffin, Kathryn Edmondson and Heber Coltrain. Miss Sessoms is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood E. Stanley, Route 2, Edenton, and is a graduate of D. F. Walker High School. She is enrolled in the cosmetology program at Martin Tech.

Rep. Holshouser Enters Race For GOP Position

RALEIGH—State Rep. Jim Holshouser of Boone, Republican state chairman since 1966, Monday announced his candidacy for the GOP nomination for Governor of North Carolina. The announcement had been expected for some time.

The candidate immediately made his campaign statewide as he conducted a five-stop news conference from Hendersonville to Wilmington, stopping along the way at Charlotte, Greensboro and Raleigh.

A native of Watagua County, Rep. Holshouser has served in the General Assembly since 1962. He is 37.

In a statement issued from his headquarters in Hilton Inn here, the candidate said: "For some time now I've been weighing a decision about how I can best continue to serve the people of North Carolina. I've received much encouragement throughout the state, and have made the decision which I would like to share with you.

"At this time, I'm announcing my candidacy for Governor of North Carolina. Our state stands on the threshold of greatness, and yet so much needs to be done. During the years I've served in the legislature, I've taken part in many of the critical decisions which affect our lives. I've studied our problems of environment, of highways, of taxation, of education from the inside, and I see them not so much as problems but as opportunities—as challenges.

"Now I believe that I can best serve our state in the unique position of leadership that only a governor can have. We must win the battle against pollution in North Carolina.

"We must win the battle against clogged highways in our cities and muddy roads on our farms.

"As a parent, I know that we must build an educational system second to none. For young and old alike, we must make a stand here and now to stop the surging crime rate in North Carolina.

"Finally, we must recognize that the average working man in North Carolina takes home less money every week than the working man in 40 of our 50 states. We must see to it that every man and woman in North Carolina is able to earn a decent living for themselves and their families.

"These goals are vital to our future and the future of our children. These goals can be reached.

"It's going to take a fresh approach to state government. You know, many people today have lost confidence in government's ability to do the job. We've got to restore that confidence.

"Never before in our history have we so needed leaders in whom we can believe. I recognize the awesome responsibility and enormous task in the job I seek. I don't take it lightly. I know that no man can do it alone. At the same time, I also know that people in North Carolina have a spirit equal to any challenge.

"Going into the 1970's and 80's, North Carolina needs a man of vision who can lead and a man of conscience who can act. You, the voters, must ultimately make the decision as to whom that man will be.

"Throughout the upcoming campaign, I'll be traveling across the state—listening to your ideas and speaking out on the issues. I invite you to watch me closely, listen to my ideas and judge my ability to lead the state of North Carolina.

"I ask all of you—whether you're young or old, of whatever race or creed—to join with me in my mission to build a state for today.

"A state which meets today's problems head on—and because we meet them head on, we'll build a base for a better tomorrow."

Our state stands on the threshold of greatness, and yet so much needs to be done. During the years I've served in the legislature, I've taken part in many of the critical decisions which affect our lives. I've studied our problems of environment, of highways, of taxation, of education from the inside, and I see them not so much as problems but as opportunities—as challenges.

AROUND CHOWAN FARMS

By R. M. THOMPSON
County Extension Chairman

FARM-CITY WEEK — The Farm-City Week banquet, sponsored by Chowan Ruritan Club, Ryland Ruritan Club, Edenton Jaycees, Edenton Lions Club, Edenton Rotary Club and the Chamber of Commerce, is planned for Monday night, November 22, at 7 o'clock at the Edenton Armory. This is a banquet that is free to all the farmers and businessmen in Chowan County. Because of the lack of space in the Armory, the number is being held to the farmer or businessman and not his wife and family. Dr. George Hyatt, director of N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, will present the main address with Wallace Evans serving as master of ceremonies. The Edenton Jaycees will present their OYF award, which is an award to the outstanding young farmer under 35 years of age. The Edenton Lions Club will present an award to the 4-H Club corn contest participants and the Chamber of Commerce will present an award to the 1970 peanut growing champion.

We would like to see all farmers and businessmen make an effort to attend this banquet.

HAY—If you are a farmer that has need for hay for the coming year because of the disaster that hit our area there is a possibility of securing some through the ASCS office. We would suggest that you contact the ASCS office and tell them just what your needs might be. They will explain to you the procedure that you go through to get this. We have had several questions concerning feed for cattle and this might be one of the best sources for securing some hay for wintering.

SOIL SAMPLES—Regardless of when you soil sampled last, it might be real wise to take new soil samples for the coming year because of the adverse weather that we have had. If you need boxes, they are located at the fertilizer dealers and we will be happy to get them off.

Fire Department Answers Alarms

Three fire calls were answered by the Edenton Fire Department over the weekend.

The first call was received on Saturday at 2:35 P. M. from 308 South Broad Street where a car was on fire. The car belonged to Luginia Overton and damages of $100 were reported. The fire was caused by a wire shortage under the dash.

The department answered two calls to the Stanton Outland residence at 226 East Church Street on Monday at 7:15 A. M. and 8:15 A. M.

An electrical shortage near a couch in the living room caused the sofa to catch on fire. The flames blazed up again in about an hour and the department extinguished the fire again.

Damage was confined to the couch.
