Brides find new kitchen tasty idea

Today's modern bride is truly an individual. Her clothes and especially her home reflect her personal taste. Therefore, the kitchen—usually gets more than its ordinary share of attention when planning for the start of a new life.

Some modern brides faced with such an ordinary unsightly kitchen—might flee home to mother.

One enterprising couple tackled the problem and converted an ordinary area into a conversation piece as well as a happy work-living area. The unsightly radiator was covered with ordinary caning from the hardware store.

Inexpensive curtains covered window area and extra matching material was pasted over inexpensive window shades.

They installed the exciting new Aztec pattern in G.A.P. Luran Foamcraft Sheet vinyl. To ease the bride's cooking chores, they chose the modern "Counter That Cooks" by Corning.

A white, flat sheet of glass-ceramic installed flush with countertop, with heating elements out of sight underneath, the controls on the two-element model can be either to side or rear. The cooktop, installed while remodeling, fitted neatly into the space.

Some writing own ritual

The "now generation" has created something of a revolution for itself by writing its own marriage vows. The wedding ceremony, which had been a formal ritual unchanged for generations, has become highly personalized for many of today's young brides and grooms who script their own.

Many of the clergy were the first to recognize these new beginnings. They accepted the couple's desire for deep and personalized spiritual involvement and understood that religious values were not changed—perhaps even strengthened.

BIG BLUE SEA

By MARY LIZZIE LANE
I saw a ragged little boy
Standing out on the street.
His face was rather thin and pale,
He was in his bare feet.

When I passed him he whispered,
My mother has gone away.
I am cold and hungry,
And have no money to pay.

Then I asked him for his name,
He looked at me with a blurry eye.
I could hear a very low whisper,
Then soon he began to sigh.

My dad is a captain of a boat,
Way out on the big blue sea.
I've started down to the harbor,
He's coming back to get me.

by MARY LEE THOMPSON

Big news comes in small packages for the home this fall. At a recent home furnishing show in Chicago accessories were the kind of important accents that make a room sing.

Wall decorations, planters, art objects, striking lamps—all had a touch of decorator showmanship about them. Even traditional lighting styles took on new finishes and colors. Sleek modern chrome accessories and Oriental designs also were enriched.

CLUB WILL MEET
Edenton Women's Club will have its September meeting at the home of Mrs. Angie Wright. The meeting will be September 6, beginning promptly at 12:30 P. M. All members are urged to attend.
