FHA Area Office Wins Citation

The Farmers Home Administration office located in Hertford was presented a Certificate of Merit by State Director James T. Johnson at its annual program meeting held last week at Atlantic Beach.

The award was presented to the Hertford office in recognition of the outstanding "Public Information Program" by a county office unit within the FHA district for the period July 1 through June 30, resulting in a greater public awareness of the Farmers Home Administration services and thereby improved living conditions for its farmers and rural residents.

The Hertford office is staffed by Melvin Howell, county supervisor; Mrs. Inez Sawyer, county office clerk; Mrs. Ida H. Newbern, assistant county office clerk; O. Waldo Winslow, assistant county supervisor and Jacob Stafford, construction inspector. The office serves Chowan, Perquimans, Pasquotank, Camden and Currituck counties.

Other counties in the district competing for the award were Gates, Hertford, Bertie, Martin, Washington, Tyrrell and Dare.

The Hertford unit will be competing against 10 other district winners for a state award to be announced later. Farmers Home Administration in North Carolina instituted this awards program this past fiscal year as a means of stimulating more effective public information programs by its 73 county offices and to recognize outstanding efforts by county office staffs.

Criteria included in selecting district winners included how well county offices utilized all news media, personal contacts with the public, relationship with fellow employees and other agencies; educational efforts in talks and programs before groups; use of tours and exhibits and relationship with the business community, such as bankers and other lenders and local government.

Bandon Notebook

By Mrs. Eleanor F. Jackson

Church-Going
Last Sunday G. Douglas Tise, acting superintendent of Bandon Chapel, announced that in November there will be two guest ministers to preach: Rev. Bennie Crawford of Edenton (Baptist) on the first Sunday, November 5; Dr. William J. B. Livingston of Hampton, Va. (Presbyterian) on the third Sunday, November 19. The hour for church service begins at 11 A. M.

Ever faithful and efficient teacher of the junior Sunday School classes is Mrs. G. Douglas Tise (Evelyn) who welcomes all of the younger group in fellowship hall.

Thomas Frederick Smith of Portsmouth, Va., and Arrowhead Beach, gave the lesson for the adult Sunday School class at 9:45 A. M. His subject, "The Sinful Exploitation of Race."

Bryant Kent Rowley of Portsmouth, Va., and Arrowhead Beach, led the singing, with Mr. Smith at the piano and Mrs. H. Truiston Bunting (Margaret) at the organ. Mr. Rowley will teach the adult Sunday School class and Mrs. Gus H. Perry (Myrtis) will play the organ. The subject: "Freedom Under Authority."

Next class meeting at 7:30 o'clock, in the hall, is on November 7. It is open to all interested in Bandon Chapel.

Party-Going
On Friday night fellowship hall fairly bounced with some 50-60 (who could count?) assorted unguessables; the majority by far, so well disguised.

Prizes went to G. Douglas Tise, Mrs. Fred W. Jolly (Evelyn) and little Miss Suzanne Carol Rountree, as most original at the time of the judging at 6:30 P. M.

A production number, "The Miss America Pageant" saw Mrs. Alfred J. Church (Jeanne) as the star, accompanied by the former queen, Mrs. Willis O. Schie (Grace) and in lieu of Bert Parks, Willie N. Waters was master of ceremonies. There never was more fun generated than those "hams" produced—unless it was when "Moms Mobile" straddled in, a perfect characterization of the TV personality. (Name withheld to protect the fun-loving mimic).

Chairman of the whole evening, Mrs. Willie N. Waters (Louise) said that when she attended church, "It was so hard to recognize the pretty faces on Sunday, having seen such weird ones on Friday night. Everybody enjoyed the delicious food and through Christian love and fellowship, one can always have the best of times."

The next covered dish supper at 6:30 November 17, the Friday before Thanksgiving.

Eat Breakfast And Be More Alert

In most homes, breakfast is a hurried, fix-it-yourself meal since each family member starts the day at a different time. But breakfast is still important. Studies at the University of Iowa have shown that people who eat a nutritionally adequate breakfast work more efficiently and are more alert than people who skip breakfast.

Junior Girl Scouts Visit National Guard Armory

Girl Scouts Visit Armory

Sgt. Carroll Jones recently took the Girl Scouts on a guided tour in rooms of the Armory not usually seen by everyone. One of the rooms was the supply room, where he demonstrated the gas masks, radios and telephones. The girls went into the guns and ammunition room and to the motor pool.

Sgt. Jones told the troop about the POW and MIA bracelet. He gave each of the girls a form if they wanted to send for a bracelet.

Girls attending were: Cathy Lassiter, Rhonda Kirby, Jill Stutzman, Annette Evans, Teresa Daynport, Debbie Jordan, Julie Chance, Debbie Griffin, Peggy Walker, Pamela Flowers and Wanda Bunch.

Leaders are: Mrs. Shirley Kirby, Mrs. Judy Davenport, Mrs. Lucy Lassiter and Mrs. Jackie Griffin.

Wood To Head Episcopal Drive

J. Gilliam Wood has been selected as chairman of the Every Member Canvass for St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Edenton for the 1973 campaign now being conducted throughout the Diocese of Eastern North Carolina.

Co-chairmen are P. Byron Kehayes and Dr. Allen L. Hornthal, who are now preparing for "C-Day" known as Canvass Day, Commitment Day and Christ's Day.

A parish pot-luck supper is planned for November 5 when Rev. James Horton and members of his Young Churchmen who rendered volunteer services in Grenada, West Indies, this summer, will be guest speakers.

The Every Member Canvass is set for November 12 and will feature telecast from 11 A. M. to 11:30 A. M. over WTAR, WITN and WECT television stations. This will be a forthright report to the people of the Diocese combined with a tribute to Bishop Thomas H. Wright, retiring bishop of the diocese.

A Corporate Communion and canvassers' breakfast is planned to begin the canvass with a coffee hour following the service November 12, enabling parishioners to pledge at that time.

The best help that one can get is self-help. Assistance from others is usually expensive.

WCDJ Is Aid To Girl Scouts

Usually the Girl Scouts get praises for doing good deeds. This time it's the North Carolina broadcasters who deserve the praise for doing a good deed for the Girl Scouts.

The University of North Carolina Television Network is sponsoring and coordinating a statewide project to help Cadette Scouts earn their radio TV badges. A broadcast facility tour is the first badge requirement. WCDJ came to the aid of the Girl Scouts by offering to give tours of their studio to the Scouts in Edenton.

After completing the badge requirements, the Cadettes involved in the project will write television scripts on Girl Scouting. These scripts will be judged and two winners selected. The winning troops will be invited to a University Television studio to produce their program for a special during Girl Scout Week.

Once again North Carolina's broadcasters are proving that there is more to radio and television than just the ratings.
