Exum Announces Candidacy For N.C. Supreme Court

James G. Exum, Jr., of Greensboro resident Superior Court Judge for the 18th Judicial District (Guilford County) has announced that he will be a candidate in 1974 for one of the vacancies which will be created on the Supreme Court of North Carolina. Judge Exum said, "If elected, I would consider it the highest privilege of the people of this State could bestow. As a Supreme Court Justice, it would be my goal to make decisions according to an often delicate accommodation between the law as it is and as it ought to be; second, to express these decisions clearly and succinctly; and third, to be alert to the problems and needs of the administration of our State court system and to work to see that the problems are solved and the needs met."

"I would cite my academic background and my experience as a former member of the N. C. General Assembly, a practicing attorney and a trial court judge as helping to qualify me for this office. Also I have a keen and genuine interest in working to improve the efficiency with which our state court system operates." Judge Exum was a Morehead Scholar at the University of North Carolina where, before he graduated in 1957, he was named President of Phi Beta Kappa. He attended New York University Law School on a Root-Tilden Scholarship and upon graduation there was awarded the Benjamin F. Butler Memorial Prize for his scholarship and other contributions to student life.

While he was chairman of the Continuing Education Committee of the North Carolina Conference of Superior Court Judges from 1969 to 1972, he helped secure a $25,000 grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration for the work of his committee. After serving in the North Carolina House of Representatives from Guilford County in 1967, Judge Exum was appointed Resident Superior Court Judge for Guilford County by Gov. Dan Moore in July, 1967. Before that, after he had served as research assistant to Emery P. Denny, Justice, later Chief Justice, of the North Carolina Supreme Court in 1960-61, he was engaged in the practice of law in Greensboro for six years.

Postmaster Training Is Course Topic

SHELBY — Seventy postmasters from throughout the Charlotte District of the United States Postal Service convened here for an intensive three-day training school October 29-31. Postmaster Janice B. Hobbs of Tyner is one of the designated postmasters enrolled in the training school which is designed, according to the Postmaster William A. Lattimore, District Postmaster Training Officer, "to teach an experienced and qualified postmaster to train new postmasters coming into the postal service."

John J. Wise, Charlotte district manager, told the postmasters at the beginning of the session that their mission was to "go into the field and use this learning experience here in the school plus your own experience in your respective post offices to train new postmasters coming into the service as well as continue to keep your assigned associate office up-to-date on the new postal procedures that are constantly being implemented."

Wise noted that qualified postmasters were being given more responsibility in the management of their respective post offices by bringing the postal service to the people involved on the local level. Wise stated that "during the 27 months the postal service has been operating under the new Postal Reform Act, we have made rapid strides in improving the mail service despite the huge increase in the volume of mail now being handled."

"We welcome Postmaster Hobbs into the ranks of those dedicated career postal management personnel who are striving to bring about a more efficient operation of the postal service," Wise said. Postmaster Hobbs has been in the postal service for 28 years and was commissioned Postmaster of Tyner on May 20, 1968, and is one of the 809 postmasters in the Charlotte District which comprises all of North Carolina and part of South Carolina employing nearly 12,000 postal career employees.

More than 20 instructors and postal officials from the Charlotte District's six Sectional Centers and from the Southern Regional Headquarters, Memphis, TN, were on hand to conduct the school according to Oscar Sloan, Charlotte Officer-in-Charge and Acting Sectional Center Manager, who is the official host postmaster.

New Postmasters Are Announced

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Regional Postmaster General Carl C. Usisker has announced the appointment of 52 new postmasters in the 11-state Southern Region, effective October 28. Florida had the largest number, with 13; North Carolina had 11; Alabama, 7; Texas, 6; Mississippi, 4; South Carolina and Tennessee, 3 each; Georgia, 2; and Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma, 1 each. Postmaster selections are made by the Regional Management Selection Board, consisting of educators, businessmen and arbitrators, from a list of candidates.

"Who-Done-Its?" Back on Radio As Nightly Fare

Mystery dramas had their heyday on network radio of the '40's and one of the most prolific producers at the time was Hi Brown whose squeaking door signature of "Inner Sanctum Mysteries" led a parade of half-hour thrillers. Now he returns as executive producer for hour-long nighttime mystery dramas on CBS radio, seven nights a week, starting in January entitled, "The CBS Radio Mystery Theatre."
