

DRAMATIC COMPETITORS—These Holmes High School advanced drama students recently received several awards in district dramatics competition sponsored by the Carolina Dramatics Association at Chapel Hill. They were awarded for outstanding play production and costuming, and several members of the cast received individual recognition for their acting. Directed by Mrs. Sandra Boyce, second row center, they will now compete on a regional level, just one stepping-stone away, from state-wide competition.

Holmes Drama Group Praised

Though still in its youth, the drama department of John A. Holmes has begun to receive notable recognition for its excellence. With awards received this past Saturday at the District Drama Festival in Greenville, the club will take part in more competition on a regional basis in Rocky Mount on March 23.

Sponsored by the Carolina Dramatics Association from Chapel Hill, the festival relinquished several awards to the Holmes club, both collectively and individually. A Distinguished Award in Play Production and Most Effective Costumes award was presented. In addition, awards for excellence in acting were presented to Jason Weeks, Alice Hines, and Calvin Vaughn.

For the event, the club performed a one-act play "And No Birds Sing", reported Mrs. Sandra Boyce, director. Involving the advanced drama students, it is serious drama which takes place in a train station. They will also present this production for the regional event. Winners in this phase of competition will go on to the state final in Chapel Hill.

Members of the cast are Alice Hines, Wanda Johnson, Michelle Roberson, Jason Weeks, Wendy Crandall, Steve Keeter, Calvin Vaughn, and Charles Foxwell.

Casting for the major production of the year will begin Tuesday. The performance dates have been set for April 11 and 12. Tickets will go on sale in March and may be purchased from any member of the drama club.

This year a change in pace will be offered, said Mrs. Boyce. Three one-act plays by Noel Coward will be presented, and this will include comedy, romance, and drama. Aside from getting away from the three-act comedy trend that had begun to emerge, this will facilitate casting more people while lessening the load on each person.

The plays will be billed as "Tonight at Eight-Thirty".

Social Security Administration News

By DONALD S. MORRIS
Social Security Representative

People can own a home and still get the monthly Federal supplemental security income payments that start in January. Supplemental security income is a new State-Federal assistance program for people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 or over, or blind, or disabled.

Under this program limited resources means possessions worth up to $1,500 for one person living alone and $2,250 for a couple. A home of "reasonable value" isn't counted as a resource. A home is of "reasonable value" if the market value is $25,000 or less. (NOTE: Use $35,000 or less in Hawaii and Alaska.)

The Federal Government will not put liens on the homes of people because they get supplemental security income payments.

Some other possessions aren't counted as resources, depending on their value. These may include a car, personal effects, household goods, and life insurance policies.

The supplemental security income program will establish a nationally uniform income floor for people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 or over, or blind, or disabled. The amount of the monthly payments eligible people get will depend on how much other income they might have.

People with no other income at all will have a basic cash income of at least $140 a month for one person and $210 for a couple. People with other income may get reduced supplemental security income checks.

Social security offices are taking applications from people who aren't getting monthly State or local assistance payments, but who think they may be eligible for supplemental security income payments.

The Federal supplemental security income program will
