Peanut Hulls Provide New Fuel Source

It's not peanuts, but their hulls that are warming the hearths of ecology-minded homeowners this year.

A non-smoking, long-burning fire log made from peanut hulls is agriculture science's newest approach to the energy crisis.

Produced commercially for the first time this winter, the logs are made from ground hulls mixed with waxes and compressed into standard fireplace-size.

Besides providing a new fuel for home owners, the logs solve a disposal problem for surplus hulls.

Traditionally, hulls left over from usual uses like cattle feed, poultry litter, and garden mulch have been burned in large incinerators near shelling plants.

Wheat's Not The Culprit

At current prices, the farm value of wheat in a 1 1/2-pound loaf of bread is just over seven cents. That's a rise of 3.4 cents in five years, compared to a 10.3-cent rise in other costs involved in producing the same loaf of bread.

No Shoe-String Operation

It now takes a capital investment of about $250,000 to start a typical full-time owner-operated farm, reports the Farm Credit Administration.

News From The Chowan County ASCS

Producers will no longer need measurement service to assure themselves of eligibility for price support on flue-cured tobacco acreage, according to W. T. Reece, State Executive Director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

"Current tobacco procedures have been amended to permit price support on all flue-cured tobacco up to 110 per cent of a farm's poundage quota," Reece said. He added that price support would be available without regard to the amount of acres planted provided DDT or TDE is not used on this crop. He went on to say that tobacco marketed over 110 per cent of the farm's poundage quota will be subject to penalties.

"Producers will, however, be required to certify their flue-cured tobacco acreage on the standard measurement form, ASCS-580," Reece said.

Formerly producers had to stay within their farm acreage allotment in order to be eligible for price support on flue-cured tobacco. Some producers had been requesting and paying for acreage measurement service to assure themselves of eligibility for price support. Reece stated, but this is no longer necessary.

1975-CROP WHEAT ALLOTMENT PROCLAIMED

On April 11 a 1975 national wheat allotment of 53.5 million acres was proclaimed by Acting Secretary of Agriculture Clayton K. Yeutter.

The allotment does not represent a limit on the amount of wheat that may be planted. It is used solely to determine what payments would be made to wheat growers if the national average market price for wheat during July-November 1975 falls below $2.05 a bushel.

For 1974-crop wheat, the national acreage allotment was established at 55.0 million acres and farmers are expected to plant 71 million acres. Acres planted to wheat are expected to exceed the allotment again in 1975; the acreage of wheat sown will likely be significantly influenced by the price outlook for wheat at planting time.

Legislation requires that the Secretary of Agriculture not later than April 15 of each year proclaim a national wheat acreage allotment for the crop to be harvested in the next calendar year. The national allotment shall be the number of acres which the Secretary determines on the basis of the estimated national average yield will produce the quantity (less imports) that he estimates will be used domestically and for export during the marketing year for the crop. The allotment for 1975 is lower than for the present year because of an estimated slight decline in total wheat utilization and an expected increase in national average wheat yield.

The 1975 national allotment is computed on the basis of an estimated national yield of 32.8 bushels per acre and estimated total utilization (less imports) for the use 1975-76 marketing year of 1,754 million bushels. Domestic use is projected at 805 million bushels, exports at 950 million bushels and imports at 1 million bushels.

The projected total use for the 1975-76 marketing year of 1,755 million bushels compares to 1,974 million bushels for the 1973-74 marketing year and 1,760 million bushels projected for the 1974-75 marketing year. Carryover stocks are expected to increase slightly over 300 million bushels during the 1974-75 marketing year rising from 180 million bushels on July 1, 1974, to 494 million bushels on July 1, 1975.

Full details of the 1975 wheat program will be announced later.

Farm Decline Seen

By 1985, the U.S. will have some 700,000 fewer farms than it does now, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.
