

Furnishings Needed

The Iredell House needs furniture! Participants attending the second biennial Edenton Symposium recently were asked to help with the furnishings of the James Iredell House, now one of the state's historic sites.

Home of the noted Revolutionary leader and Supreme Court judge, the house, built circa 1775, stands as a monument to the early

Think About This

Have you ever thought how lonely Jesus was while He completed His mission on earth

Think about the hay of His bed, the stable over His head at the night of His Virgin birth

Think about His leaving His mother and family when He knew His time had arrived

And the sorrow in His heart and the tears in His eyes when His beloved friend Lazarus died

Think about the time He was praying at Gethsemane and told His disciples beware

Even His closest companions, the only friends He could trust, could not His burden bear

How about the ten lepers He had healed, only one came back with gratitude

Can't you see the compassion and the sorrow He felt at the others attitudes

Jesus is the same yesterday and today If there's sin in your life, my friend

Then Jesus' blood will clear it away and His comforter He will send

If you'll ask and remember the pain on the cross with love for you He bore

And tell Him, "My Jesus, I'm lonely too, won't you forgive, I open the door"

The tears in His eyes and the compassion for you is still in His heart today

He's promised He'll enter and a new creature you'll be and in your life He'll stay

The loneliest man there ever was can turn the tide of your life

Look into His eyes at the compassion He has for your trials and troubles and strife

The angels in Heaven will rejoice over you one sinner who's repented of sin

And my brother you too will feel the angels joy when our sweet Jesus enters in

Now begin your new life with the bread of the word Feed your soul with the Bible each day

And when King Jesus returns for His beloved church, in Heaven, forever, you'll stay

Praise God, I love you brother, wondrous times are ahead for us

I thank God for you now, and in Jesus name I pray, that in Him you'll love and trust patriot. In 1949 the Edenton Tea Party Chapter, National Daughters of the American Revolution, purchased the house to save it from possible demolition. In 1951, the State of North Carolina assumed ownership and has maintained the house with the cooperation of the DAR and James Iredell Association.

Restoration of the house is expected to be completed in the near future, and proper furnishings are a must. Since the James Iredell Association, the DAR, and the Division of Archives and History, like most restoration organizations, have limited funds, and because of the spiraling prices of antiques, it is nearly impossible for the groups to acquire quality furnishings that the Iredells might have owned. So the appeal for tax deductible donations of furnishings or cash went out to symposium participants and the general public.

Since no records specify the furnishings used in the Iredell House, it will be furnished as a typical 1770-1825 Edenton town residence. A guide just issued, based upon extensive research using period sources, outlines the many and varied needs for the restoration. The organizations involved urgently request the help of everyone in preserving a portion of North Carolina's and the nation's heritage.

Some of the items listed in the guide include furniture pieces such as Chippendale style four-post bed, American or English, 1770-1790, mahogany; Sheraton style field bed with arched canopy, American, 1790-1810, mahogany; Queen Anne or Chippendale style wing chair, American or English, 1750-1780, walnut or mahogany; 4-6 Chippendale style side chairs, American, North Carolina, Philadelphia, or New York origin, 1770-1685, walnut or mahogany; Sheraton style chest of drawers, American, New York or New England origin, 1810-1820—and the list goes on, including desks, mirrors, tables.

Also in the guide, in addition to furniture items, are listed ceramics and glass, between 1770-1825; glassware, such as bottles, salts, wine rinsers; metalware, including fireplace equipment; lighting devices: lanterns, lamps and chandeliers; dining utensils and other silverware, and kitchen utensils between 1780-1820. Textiles, including bedcovers, floor coverings, and needlework—examples of schoolgirl samplers or other pieces, between 1790-1815, are also needed.

Michael O. Smith, furnishings specialist with the Department of Cultural Resources, emphasizes that the Division of Archives and History is always glad to learn about objects related to the Iredell family or those with an origin or long history of use in the Edenton area. Inquiries should be addressed to Smith at the Department of Cultural Resources, 109 E. Jones St., Raleigh, N. C. 27611.
