

NEW NU NU's - This happy (?) group of students at College of The Albemarle represent the newest and largest pledge class of the Nu Nu Chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, national junior college scholastic fraternity. The group, which is displaying its brand new beanies, is participating in a two-week pledge period during which it will be involved in both fun and serious activities. Tentative plans call for a formal initiation ceremony to be conducted April 27. The pledges, who are selected for membership because of their high scholastic standing, character, leadership and service as COA students, include front row, left: Pat Hilbert of Camden; Jill Tarkington; Mike Felton of Eure; Sheryl White of South Mills; Melaine Gallop of Harbinger; Carolyn Covert of Hertford; Linda Turner of Edenton; Sharon Johnston, Mary Stillson, Davis Stillson of Elizabeth City, and Tom White of Camden. ## Growers Penalized For Mixing Peanut Types against mixing florunners with Virginia type varieties at planting, according to Joe S. Sugg, executive secretary of the N.C. Peanut Growers

Sugg pointed out that the florunner, a small non-Virginia type peanut, which was imported from the Southeast by some growers three or four vears ago, will create considerable problems for shellers if they are mixed at planting or get mixed during the harvesting and marketing

Mixtures of types will not be purchased by the buyers in the Virginia-Carolina area and will carry severe discounts and penalties when offered to CCC for price supports.

Sugg stated that in a recent of growers, meeting commission buyers, shellers and marketing officials the question of mixtures was discussed and it was pointed out that such mixtures created problems in shelling in that the runners were small and would break up in the shelling operation and that any runners which escaped and got into the Virginia type roasting stock would not cook uniformly due to their thin shells.

Sugg pointed out that the florunner is an approved variety, is supported under CCC price support program so long as it is kept separate and its identity preserved from any other type. The runner peanut is being grown quite extensively in the Southeast and in the Southwest and growers in those areas have made a constant practice of not mixing the types due to the penalties involved.

Sugg pointed out that he felt that it was most important at this time, just prior to planting, that all growers be warned against any possible mixture
