Art Show Starts Campaign

Talented children from all over America join singer Vikki Carr in Washington, D. C., to open an unusual art show that will launch the 1975 Christmas Seal campaign against lung diseases.

Lorey H. White, Jr., executive director of the Eastern Lung Association, said, "For the first time in nearly seven decades, children's art is reproduced on the traditional Christmas Seals." This year there are 54 seals created by children in the elementary grades from each state in the country plus four U. S. Territories. The child-created Christmas Seals are being mailed nationwide to more than 60-million homes and businesses as part of the annual Christmas Seal appeal for funds to prevent and control tuberculosis, asthma, emphysema, chronic bronchitis, and other lung crippling diseases.

White of the Eastern Lung Association explained that the young artists who designed this year's Christmas Seals will have the honor of joining a select group of artists whose work has been exhibited in a major gallery. The 54 original children's Christmas Seal paintings will occupy the "Discover" gallery at the National Collection of Fine Arts in Washington, D. C., and will be on display to the public through January.

The white dove of peace designed by Robert Fields of Asheville unites with the red double-barred cross to form a symbol of peace, brotherly understanding, and hope for those with lung disease.

White pointed out that each sheet of seals bears the heading, "Christmas Seal Greetings from the Children of America". He added "Let's not let the children down. Send in a generous contribution to help the lung association continue its work against lung disease."

N.C. Politicians Will Address Federation Meet

Gov. James Holshouser and U. S. Sen. Jesse Helms are among those scheduled to address the annual convention of the N. C. Farm Bureau Federation in Asheville, December 7-10.

Other speakers will include Dr. Joab L. Thomas, chancellor-elect, N. C. State University at Raleigh; N. C. Commissioner of Agriculture James Graham, and Farm Bureau President John Sledge, who will give his annual report to the membership on Monday afternoon.

Sledge said the organization will be holding its 40th annual meeting with membership at an all time high. "We expect a large attendance for all sessions," he said. The Great Smokies Hilton will serve as convention headquarters.

Highlight of the convention will be the drafting of official N. C. Farm Bureau policies for 1976 by voting delegates from all 100 county Farm Bureaus. They will also make final decisions on recommendations concerning national issues to the American Farm Bureau convention, which is set for early January in St. Louis.

Other program highlights will include the selection of Farm Bureau's "Outstanding Young Farm Family" of the Year. Awards will also be made to farm writers and broadcasters for excellence in agricultural reporting.

The election of officers and directors of the federation and delegates to the national convention is scheduled for Tuesday.

Registration for the meeting begins Sunday at 1 P.M. The traditional vesper service will be held Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.
