Examines Role Of Courthouse

in central Oxford, the courthouse has a large cupola and distinctive fan window at the entrance.

Old Orange County Courthouse, a charming temple-like building of brick, was built in 1840. The structure is described in the study as "the dignified Hillsboro landmark which occupies a small well-maintained block with mature native hardwoods."

Another century-old building, Camden County Courthouse was erected in 1847. Its handsome stairs flank the great columned porch to a second level main entrance. The Georgian style structure was built in the Tidewater tradition.

At the county seat in Yanceyville, the old Caswell County Courthouse was built in 1861. Its trefoiled fenestration, Victorian ornamentation and fine central clock tower preserves a piece of the 19th Century.

A large Confederate monument accents the Southern flavor of the Caswell County Courthouse.

Also reflections of a bygone century are courthouses in Burke County (about 1834), Camden (1847), Polk and Hyde (1854), and Franklin and Northampton (1859).

Courthouses built in the late 19th Century include those in Chatham, Clay, Craven, Currituck, Iredell, Martin, New Hanover, Pasquotank and Transylvania Counties.

Other courthouses, ranging in age from those of a recent vintage to those which exceed 50 years in age, are described in the NCSU study.
