

Chalk Dust By Mary Rhea Gardner

Continued from Page 8-A undertake projects for the benefit of their school. For the second consecutive year students in grades 5-7 at Chowan have participated in the "Perfect School Plan" to raise money for special school projects, audio-visual equipment and to finance the transportation costs of educational field trips. Under the sponsorship of Doris Litchfield and Dorothy Cooke, these students simply outdid themselves.

Last year, through the sale of magazines, tapes, books and records, they sold $1,900 worth of merchandise; this year, $2,700. Even though they didn't reach their goal of $3,000, they are more than just a little proud of these accomplishments and most, most appreciative of their parents, friends and community supporters who encouraged their efforts by buying their wares.

Competition ran high in every room during the two week sales period. Students and classes selling the most each day were rewarded daily in some small way. The culminating activity was a Magazine-Marathon, in which the 100 participating students were eligible to participate in numerous events for prizes. The ultimate money prizes were awarded to Renee Nixon, who was the individual high salesman and to Renee Byrum, second high salesman. During a standing broad jump event, Nixon won by jumping over that amount of $5 bills, and Byrum won $18 by jumping over that amount of $2 bills. Overall, Miss Miller's sixth Grade class was the winning room in sales and Mrs. Jernigan's Fifth Grade, second.

The educational colors in the Mosaic Kaleidoscope change as students start the spring rites of educational field trips. From now on we'll probably be seeing right many "big yellow fellows" loaded with students on the highways. Cultural Arts field trips have been the thing this week, and John Smith, manager of Taylor Theater has helped to make this possible. In connection with English and drama students of Shakespeare's "Hamlet", at Chowan and Holmes, arrangements were made by the schools with the theater or a special showing of this movie to students. On Wednesday morning, Chowan's junior and senior English classes were invited to attend and Holmes' English and drama classes on Tuesday.

In another unique trip, the French Club at Chowan has an opportunity to put their French reading and speaking skills to work, expand their cultural knowledge of France and sample some real French cuisine. This all happened on a trip to Virginia Beach Monday to the La Crepe Restaurant, which was an activity culminating from their studies on French foods, cooking preparation, and life styles. These 33 club members were duly impressed with the Brittany decor of the restaurant, the authentic costumes of the staff, and the delicious crepes quiches and mousse which were served. Needless to say, this is not your average home cooked fare, and lots of students have probably come home to try and improvise pancakes for crepes.

The fifth, seventh, and eighth grade GT classes at Chowan are not leaving the county to re-inforce their history lessons. On Tuesday these groups toured the historic sites in Chowan County as a supplemental enrichment activity of that period in time for which Chowan County has received national recognition.

While many students are out, the buildings have become relatively quieter for all students in grades 1, 2, 3, 6, and 9 who are taking achievement tests this week as a part of the statewide testing program. These students will take their turn later at peeping through the colorful kaleidoscope; and if they don't get CHALKDUST in their eyes first, they just might develop tunnel vision.
