

Death Claims

Mr. Hines, 70

They buried such a man in Beaver Hill Cemetery Sunday afternoon. The greatest of all electricians and administrators removed Richard N. Hines from us at Duke Hospital in Durham on Friday.

So, Edenton's "Mr. Ready Kilowatt" has moved to his final sub-station.

We got to know Dick Hines early upon our arrival here. As director of utilities he "called the shots" for the most profitable arm of the municipality. He was a tough administrator and maintained a good shop, with an enviable track record for efficiency and economy.

However, we could envision more efficiency and more economy in a single elected board in the Town of Edenton. This is where we crossed in theory, logic, words, but never lack of respect for each other.

He was a tough foe, and because of the high regard he enjoyed within the community, the first efforts to merge the Town Council and the Board of Public Works was soundly defeated. Dick mellowed a bit in the following months and was forthright enough to admit he had let his personal feelings cloud his professional judgement, and the good of the community.

Dick Hines was truly a man of vision, a man who looked down the road to where the community needed to go rather than back where it had been. We only knew him to be impatient, even to the point of anger, with those of lesser faith in the future.

He possessed an almost uncanny ability to seize a difficult situation and turn it around—always for the benefit of the community.

Dick Hines loved his family, his church, his friends and his community. He was a proud man, proud of all of the above, and proud to the point of boasting of having one of the best outage records in the industry.

He was a strong advocate of Electricities, a consortium of municipal electric towns who fight to keep rates as low as possible. He was recognized by his colleagues through election to the board of directors of the American Public Power Association.

Everywhere he went he was a good ambassador of this community. But the Master of the Big Switch has chosen to cut off the current. We are all the losers.

Sacrifice Not Legislated

Edenton Cotton Mills is the dean of industry along the Public Parade. Now in its 78th year, the firm continues to be one of the community's greatest assets, and largest employers.

The company has been fortunate to recruit good people who strive to see the firm continue to be a good corporate citizen. This was evidenced last week when Philip S. McMullan was named chairman of the board and C. A. Phillips became president, treasurer and chief executive officer.

In keeping with the tradition of obtaining and keeping good people of leadership, the directors re-elected Thomas C. Phillips, vice president and added the duties of treasurer.

In 1974 the textile industry was in low cotton (pun intended) yet the local mill continued almost on a regular schedule. This is evidence of the confidence their customers placed in production capabilities and quality of product, as well as the report those in command enjoy within the industry.

Al Phillips has been a dedicated public servant, as well as a valuable employee of the firm he now directs. He was on the Town Council when former Mayor John A. Mitchener, Jr., successfully pressed for an Administrative Ordinance. He has served with distinction as a member of the Chowan County Board of Commissioners during the county's most progressive years.

All of this is to say that ability is recognized along the Public Parade. Sacrifice is something which is volunteered, not American Public Power Association.

Funeral services were held at 3 P.M. Sunday at St. Paul's with Rev. Fred Drane and Rev. Raymond Storie officiating. Burial was in Beaver Hill Cemetery with Williford-Barham Funeral Home in charge.

Pallbearers were: Frank Holmes, William Crummey, J.H. Conger, Jr., Roland Vaughan, Jr., A.B. Harless, Jr., and Richard Dixon.

Planning Grant

Dr. J. H. Horton said the establishment of a reward would demonstrate the board's concern over the incident which could happen to other people in the community.

Dr. Dunn and James Pressley, director of instruction, presented a plan which would make the central office staff more accessible to staff in the schools in various areas.

The board approved a three-day trip to Washington, D. C., by 24 members of the gifted and learning class of Ernest A. Swain Elementary School. There would be no cost to the county and Mrs. Betty Bissette said it was something the students had looked forward to for three years.

During "The Public Speaks" portion of the agenda, Mrs. Ruth Lane expressed concern over the condition of the parking lot between North Broad Street and Hicks Field. Dr. Dunn explained that weather conditions had compounded the problem but he would seek continued cooperation from the Town of Edenton and the State Department of Transportation in making improvements.

Certain budget revisions were made and when questioned by Dr. Horton, the superintendent said they did not exceed the existing budget limits.

The board approved the use of funds from the Community Education Project to extend the parent-volunteer program at Walker School and what Dr. Edward B. Bond called the "important purpose of an advisory committee through proper selection of members."

Dr. Dunn said the project would make the schools more available to the community.

Mrs. Mary Rhea Gardner reported that the NCAE banquet will be held May 8. It was also announced that a special budget session will be held on April 24 and board members were invited to breakfast with Rep. Walter B. Jones of the First Congressional District at 8 A. M. on April 14.

legislated. Officials of Edenton Cotton Mills have recognized this through action rather than conversation.

Branch Welcomed

We want to be among the first to roll out the red carpet of welcome to the Edenton Branch of Statesville Flour Mills Company to the business community along the Public Parade.

The branch, managed by Lee Leary of Edenton, will distribute livestock feed and additives from a warehouse on Badham Road. The service area will be North-eastern North Carolina and Tidewater Virginia and is the firm's seventh branch.

Statesville Flour Mills Company was founded in 1900 and 52 years later we came to know the Jones' and Deaton's who followed the plan of the founder, F. A. Sherrill. They are good stock and although the company has been purchased by a larger firm, we are confident the basic goal of providing quality products at competitive prices continues to prevail.

Too, the branch occupies a portion of a discarded plant which Jimbo's Jumbos, Inc., gave to the Town of Edenton. In fact, then, it demonstrates that the good deeds of some can contribute to a better deal for others.

NEW LOOK—New awnings have recently been installed on the Leary Building on South Broad Street which houses The Chowan Herald. The striped design is in keeping with the recommendation growing out of a study of the downtown area by the School of Design at N. C. State University.

Rep. Walter Jones Series Slated Breakfast Guest

Rep. Walter B. Jones of the First Congressional District, will appear at a dutch breakfast in Edenton at 8 A.M. on April 14. The breakfast will be held at Mrs. Boswell's Restaurant.

Arrangements for the event are being made by George Alma Byrum and Warren Twiddy, who have previously co-managed Jones' campaigns in Chowan County.

Those who desire to make reservations for the informal affair should contact either Byrum or Twiddy.

Power Outage

Continued from Page 1 In case of inclement weather, the outage will be rescheduled for April 16.

The area involved is generally along Badham Road from Second Street, Eden Heights, Oakum from Park avenue to Northside Shopping Center and all the area east served by the town department, including Highway 32 South, Highway 37, Yeopim and St. John's.

Herald

Amburn also announced the promotion of E.N. (Pete) Manning to the new position of general superintendent.

Flynn Surratt moves from being a combination reporter and compositor, to advertising director, a position which has not been filled in recent months.

Sue Bunch becomes office manager-receptionist.

Becky Bunch, who has worked in advertising for more than a year, will concentrate on layout and composition.

Heading the composing room will be Pat Riddick, who has worked in that department for the past 15 months.

Amburn said the decision to reorganize the newspaper and commercial printing department was made in an effort to improve the quality of both facets of the business.

"We are fortunate here at The Herald to have a dedicated staff and it is felt that the changes announced this week will put people in the proper slots where their talents can best be utilized in the overall operation of the business," he stated.

Health Programs Differ

By Lee Wallis

Even though Medicare and Medicaid have been operating more than 10 years, many people are confused and think the programs are the same.

Although both programs pay for health care, they are different.

Medicare, entirely a federal program, helps pay for hospital care, doctors' services and many other health services for almost everyone 65 and over and for certain disabled people under 65.

Medicaid, a federal-state partnership, pays for health care for certain kinds of needy and low-income people.

Some people can have both Medicare and Medicaid.

Medicare is the same in all states, while Medicaid varies from state to state since the states design their own program within federal guidelines.

Medicare has two parts—hospital insurance and medical insurance. Hospital insurance helps pay for in-patient hospital care and post-hospital care in a skilled nursing facility or at home from a home health agency.

Medical insurance helps pay doctor bills and other services not covered by hospital insurance.

Medicaid pays the full costs of these and other health care services for those eligible.

Since Medicare pays only part of health care costs, Medicaid can pay the difference for those eligible for both programs.

Medicare hospital insurance is financed by payroll contributions from employers and employees.

Medicare medical insurance is financed with premiums, with those enrolled paying about 30 per cent of the cost and the federal government paying the remainder.

Medicaid is financed by federal and state governments.

The federal share ranges from 50 per cent for the richest states up to 78 per cent for the state with the lowest per-capita income. States pay the remaining costs, often with help from local governments.

National Sales Position Filled By Cascadden

Jim Cascadden of Edenton has been promoted to national sales manager for Fiberform, a division of U. S. Industries, Inc. He also has been appointed to the Fiberform Executive Committee. In his recent appointment he has been Eastern sales manager and before that Eastern Canadian sales manager.

Cascadden will assume the responsibility for Fiberform and Executive Yacht sales throughout the United States and Canada. Although Cascadden has worked in the marine industry for many years, he also used to race boats. He was an O.M.C. professional team driver, in addition to capturing three national racing championships.

Fiberform offers a complete line of quality fiberglass boats from 14 feet through 28 feet, and Executive Yachts through 34 feet.

Cascadden, his wife Connie, and their two sons will make their new home in Spokane, Wash., the home office of Fiberform.

Representatives from the Albemarle Speech & Hearing Clinic will be available to make appointments with parents wishing to have their children screened for possible speech, hearing, or oral language problems. Health Department representatives will also be available to help parents with records.
