

Peanut Blight Found Here

By R.M. Thompson
County Ext. Chairman
Sclerotinia Blight on peanuts for the past several years has been a real problem in Virginia and has gradually moved into North Carolina. We have found some of it in Chowan County this year for the first time it has been identified. It has a cottony, white mold with black seed spores.

Following are recommendations for this disease:

1. Apply Botran 75W with 8006 or 8010 LP nozzles (one-row) at or just below leaf canopy height. Spray must reach the soil surface and cover all tissue in close proximity with the soil. Consequently, large droplets rather than a mist will be necessary to get the chemical to the soil surface and also get thorough coverage of all plant tissue. Adjust tractor speed and spray pressure so you deliver 30 or more gallons of water per acre. Be sure to adjust volume for 36-inch nozzle spacing instead of 20-inch spacing as shown in most spray charts.

2. Botran 75W can be applied from mid-July through September, depending on weather conditions and the presence of infestation. Therefore, apply Botran 75W when disease first appears in each field. Fields with prior history of blight may be sprayed when disease first appears in your locale. (We will keep your county agricultural agent apprised of the disease situation.)

3. Applications prior to August 15 should be made at the rate of 2.5 lbs. of product (Botran 75W) per acre. This will enable application of an additional 2.5 lbs. of product per acre should another disease outbreak occur.

4. An application of 5 lbs. of product (Botran 75W) per acre may be applied between August 15 and September 30 only in fields where no previous applications have been made.

5. Cool, wet weather conditions in August and September favor this disease. Growers should keep a close watch on their crop during this period.

Restrictions
1. Do not apply Botran 75W to peanuts after September 30.

2. Applications of Botran 75W in a given field must not exceed a total of 5 lbs.-acre.

3. Botran-treated vines or hay must not be used as livestock feed.

4. A minimum of 30 days pre-harvest interval must be observed.

5. All applicable label directions, precautions and restrictions must be adhered to.

Peanut Field Day
We will have a Peanut Field Day at Lewiston on Thursday, September 7th. We will have more information on this later.

Eighty-one children in all were enrolled in the program, thirty-five each on the white and blue teams, and eleven on the red team.
