

St. Louis Observes 75th World's Fair Anniversary

Since the hot dog and the ice cream cone were first introduced to visitors at the spectacular 1904 World's Fair in St. Louis, this Midwestern community has maintained a fantastic tradition of summer fun at affordable prices. St. Louis' more than 60 tourists attractions and its average per diem expenses (28 percent less than Chicago's) make it an ideal family vacation destination.

This summer St. Louis celebrates the 75th anniversary of the 1904 World's Fair at its original site in Forest Park. A World's Fair Exhibit, including memorabilia, photographs, furniture and costumes will be displayed at the Jefferson Memorial, home of the Missouri Historical Society.

Visitors will want to take advantage of being in Forest Park to visit other famous attractions: the Art Museum, the only remaining World's Fair building; the world-renowned Zoo; the Jewel Box floral displays; the Planetarium's cosmic show schedule; and the Municipal Opera's outdoor musical productions.

Near Forest Park, and a "must" for every visitor, is the impressive Missouri Botanical Garden, where a glistening geodesic dome provides a tropical climate for exotic jungle flora. The most recent addition is the Japanese Garden, a place of serene beauty and the largest and finest of its kind in North America.

No visitor to St. Louis passes up the opportunity to spend time on the riverfront, where the Gateway Arch gracefully spans a myriad of attractions along the shoreline which include everything from helicopter and riverboat rides to restaurants and museums. The Arch is a monument to the city's historic role as the Gateway to the West, graphically domed in its underground Museum of Westward Expansion.

A short distance north of the Arch is the Eagle Bridge, one of the world's great engineering feats. In its shadow is Laclede's Landing, the site where St. Louis was born when Pierre Laclede established a trading post there in 1764. The Landing is now the scene of an exciting revival in which some of the city's oldest buildings have been transformed into restaurants and shops perfect for afternoon or evening enjoyment.

Two other important historic landmarks grace the riverfront; the Old Cathedral, the oldest cathedral west of the Mississippi, and the Old Courthouse, where meetings and trials, including the famed Dred Scott slavery case, helped shape the nation's course.

Scores of buildings in the Greater St. Louis area have been designated as historic landmarks. Many of them are open to the public, including approximately 15 gracious old homes. Among them are the Chatillon-DeMenil House (near Anheuser-Busch Brewery which offers guided tours illuminating its own history and industry), the Eugene Field House and Toy Museum, home of the famous "children's poet," and the Hanley House, which is the oldest building in suburban Clayton (a thriving corporate and professional center).

At Grant's Farm in St. Louis County, history is surrounded by nature, and both are accessible to visitors via trackless trains that wind through the spacious grounds, where deer, buffalo, longhorn steers and other animals roam freely. Grant's cabin, hand-built by Ulysses S. Grant in 1854, stands as a shrine to the Civil War era.

Throughout the summer, St. Louis is alive with the sound of music — every kind of music. There is the classic sound of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra playing in park settings, the grand opera sound of the Opera Theatre of St. Louis performing at the Loretto-Hilton Theatre, the lilting sound of musicals at the outdoor Municipal Opera, and popular sounds of rag, jazz, rock, folk, disco and country, playing in parks and establishments from the riverfront on the area's eastern border to Six Flags Over Mid-America in West St. Louis County.

Six Flags theme park boasts not only music, but also a rhapsody of rides for kids of every age. The Screamin' Eagle roller coaster ranks among the world's most hair-raising, heart-pounding experiences, and brand new thrills await the riders of the Sky Chuter, the world's tallest ride. Three other new attractions feature eerie and exotic glimpses into the realm of outer space.

For kids who are hooked on planes, trains or dinosaurs, museums in St. Louis County provide a mesmerizing experience. The National Museum of Transport exhibits everything that ever went on wheels, including buggies, busses, trucks, trains, automobiles, streetcars and aircraft. For an in-depth study of the history of aerospace technology, the McDonnell-Douglas Corporation Prologue Room exhibits crafts developed during the last 60 years. Huge dinosaurs welcome visitors to the Museum of Science and Natural History, where the history of man and technology can be traced from the beginning of time.

Baseball fans are rarely disappointed when the National League St. Louis Baseball Cardinals are in town giving their action-packed performances. Day and evening home games are played in modern, airy Busch Memorial, fashioned after the classic Roman Coliseum. (Call 314-421-3060 for game schedule.)

For shoppers in the family, St. Louis is miles of malls and a kaleidoscope of boutiques and specialty shops. Major stores and shops are located in Crestwood, Chesterfield, Frontenac, and North, South and West County. For the antique sleuths and artwork collectors, there are the small charming shops of Webster Groves, Clayton and the Central West End.

In the evening, St. Louis becomes an impressive host with restaurants offering a fantastic array of dining possibilities. For family fare, the riverfront provides several interesting spots.

Dining "on the Hill" in the city's famous Italian neighborhood is an ethnic and epicurean delight. Those who wish to venture further into international cuisine will find their most exotic dining fantasies fulfilled, whether they hunger for German, French, Mexican, Greek, Chinese, Japanese or Polynesian.

Whether it is tasting the gourmet treats of the St. Louis restaurant world, or cheering a team to victory, it is all fun in St. Louis! For more information, write to "St. Louis: The Fun Place," 500 North Broadway, Room 1545, St. Louis, Mo. 63102.

New Report On Bookmobiles Is Issued

"Bookmobile Service in North Carolina: A Profile" by John W. Jones is the title of a newly published research report issued by the Division of State Library of the Department of Cultural Resources. Jones is the head of reference at the Forsyth County Public Library, where he has been employed since 1970.

Having driven a bookmobile for three years while he finished his graduate work, it is understandable that he chose this subject for his Master's thesis. It was presented to the Faculty of the School of Library Science, N.C. Central University, July, 1978.

Bookmobile service continues to help reach library patrons that do not receive regular service because of location or lack of transportation. The study shows that the average bookmobile spends 15 percent of its time in transit, and that the length of time the bookmobile stays at a stop does not necessarily relate to the number of books circulated. It also discovered that there was little difference in travel time and circulation between urban and rural routes.

The publication was funded with Library Services and Construction Act (LSCA) Title I funds as part of the Continuing Education Program. It has been widely disseminated and it is hoped that the study will help libraries gain insight into the problems and rewards of this kind of library service.

Copies are available upon request to the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources, Division of State Library, 109 E. Jones St., Raleigh, 27611; or by telephoning (919) 733-2570.
