Cost List Released

A list of the state's Provisionally Certified Cost Containment Hospitals was released Tuesday by the N. C. Voluntary Effort steering committee. The Voluntary Effort, co-sponsored by the N. C. Hospital Association and the N. C. Medical Society, is a program designed to restrain hospital costs.

Each of the hospitals gaining provisional certification has submitted a resolution from its board of trustees and medical staff in support of the statewide Voluntary Effort.

A resolution has been submitted by the board of Chowan Hospital but not by the medical staff.

Harold G. Koach, president of Forsyth Memorial Hospital in Winston-Salem and chairman of the Voluntary Effort steering committee, reports that 106 of the 124 general acute hospitals in North Carolina have submitted resolutions in support of the Voluntary Effort to date. "This represents 93.5 per cent of the 21,140 acute care beds in the state," Koach stated. He continued, "We are gratified by the support and results of this voluntary cost containment program."

The Voluntary Effort (VE) program is significantly impacting cost escalation across the state. Through March of this year the cost per patient day in

Welcome Is Peace College Tradition

RALEIGH — When incoming Peace College freshmen arrive on campus August 26, they will be personally greeted by Peace president Dr. S. David Frazier, other administrative officers of the college and smiling sophomores offering helping hands. The special welcome has become a tradition at the two-year college for women.

The 51 Peace sophomores, including at least one from this area, comprise the orientation committee which will greet the new students, assist in moving their luggage and help alleviate any fears and apprehensions.

Peace expects 247 freshmen to begin classes Tuesday, Aug. 28. Among the first-of-the-year activities will be the President's Reception honoring freshmen on Monday, Aug. 27, and the 108th Academic Convocation on Tuesday, Aug. 28.

Among those students serving on the orientation committee is Penny Powell, 206 North Broad Street, Edenton.
