G. White, N. C. Savings & Loan League Board Chairman and President of First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Winston-Salem.

Highlighting the speeches on October 12, will be a presentation by United States House of Representatives Majority Leader James C. Wright, Jr. His topic will be "Is Reaganomics Working? If Not — No Second Chance."

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader highlights Tuesday's speeches. Nader will speak on "Why I Question Alternative Mortgage Instruments."

Other speakers include Edwin B. Brooks, Jr., immediate past president, U.S. League of Savings Associations and current president of the Thrift Institutions Advisory Council to the Federal Reserve Board; and Michael R. Law Passed To Protect Homeowners

The household silver, gold watches and heirlooms made of other precious metals of North Carolina citizens should be a lot safer after October 1.

That is the date that the "precious metals" law passed by the last session of the General Assembly goes into effect.

Burley B. Mitchell, Jr. Secretary of the N. C. Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, reminds all citizens, and particularly dealers in precious metals, to be aware of the law.

"The intent of the law," Mitchell said, "is to regulate the buying and selling of precious metals, such as gold, silver and platinum in North Carolina."

"When the price of gold and silver rose meteorically several years ago, unlicensed, unregulated dealers in precious metals sprang up in trailers on almost every street corner in the state.

"They were an open invitation to burglars to trade in precious metals—the gold and silver of the people of this state," he said.

The need to bring order to this chaos became obvious and the result was the "precious metals" bill. It is a uniform, statewide law which replaces all local ordinances regulating the trade in precious metals.

The main tenets of the law are as follows:

—Requires all dealers in precious metals to acquire a permit from the local law enforcement agency to operate. The applicant must provide a background statement on himself and all principals involved in the business when the application is made.

—Prohibits the purchase of precious metals from anyone under 18 years old.

—Requires all dealers to provide a description of items purchased to the local law enforcement agency within 48 hours of purchase.

—Prohibits the use of portable smelters.

—Prohibits the dealer in precious metals from doing business in anything other than a permanent structure.

—Prohibits resale of any item purchased for a period of five days.

—Requires dealers in precious metals to post a $10,000 security deposit or bond to do business in North Carolina.

—Requires registration of all employees who work in a precious metals business with the local law enforcement agency.

"We feel the provisions of this law," Mitchell said, "will make it a lot less tempting for burglars to go after the gold and silver of the people of North Carolina."

Schedule Is Revised

KILL DEVIL HILLS — The South Atlantic Fishery Management Council has changed its monthly meeting schedule to a bi-monthly one to save tax dollars, according to O. B. Lee, Jr., Chairman of the Council.

Lee said the Council, holding its September meeting here, decided to change its meeting schedule to once every two months because "We are far enough along in our fish management plans so we can maintain our efficiency and save money at the same time."

He said the Council, nearing completion of its Snapper-Grouper, Billfish and Swordfish management plans can do its work on a bi-monthly schedule and still make its deadlines. "In the future, our meetings will of necessity be more businesslike and efficient.
