Mr. Kinion Is Promoted

James Kinion has been promoted to the position of Associate Superintendent for Edenton-Chowan Schools. He has been Assistant Superintendent since 1978, at which time Cecil Fry retired.

When making the promotion announcement at the School Board's November meeting; Supt. John Dunn told Board members that "over the past three years, Jim Kinion has carried out his responsibilities as an assistant in an exemplary manner." "He has exhibited that degree of professional growth," Dunn continued, "which has been most valuable at the decision making level, above his many routine duties."

As Associate Superintendent, Kinion will continue to oversee the system's Administrative Services, including areas of transportation, food service, maintenance and federal projects in addition to expanded responsibility in the decision making process.

Kinion, who has worked in the field of education since 1955, came to Edenton in 1963 as a teacher-coach at John A. Holmes High School. He served as D. F. Walker School's assistant principal in 1967 and was elected principal in 1968, a position he held for ten years until becoming Assistant Superintendent.

Architecture

Program Is Held

GREENVILLE — Approximately 50 persons from North Carolina and Virginia attended "North Carolina Architecture, 1690-1940: A Survey," a program sponsored by the Pitt County Historical Society and the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education.

Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. William Ticknor of Tyner.

The event featured illustrated lectures by John B. Flowers, III, founding director of the Stagville Preservation Center. Located near Durham, Stagville is the nation's first state-owned teaching center for historic preservation.

Flowers' presentation traced the development of North Carolina architecture from its earliest known beginning in the late 17th century to World War II, with emphasis upon various building styles.

Also on the program was Dr. Keats Sparrow of the ECU English faculty, vice president of the Pitt County Historical Society.

Sessions were held at the ECU Regional Development Institute.
