GACPD Program Aids Disabled

What do you want for Christmas? That's a question often asked this time of year. And some answers may be surprising.

Ask the man with the seeing eye dog at the bus stop what he wants for Christmas. Ask the woman confined to a wheelchair who lives down the street. Ask the child, your daughter's classmate, who walks with the aid of braces and crutches.

According to the Governor's Advocacy Council for Persons with Disabilities (GACPD), the greatest gift most disabled people could receive would not be preferential treatment, charity or sympathy ... but acceptance, an opportunity to join in the mainstream of society.

GACPD works to make that Christmas wish a reality year 'round for the thousands of disabled men, women and children in North Carolina.

GACPD's job is to protect and advocate for all citizens with disabilities. In Chowan County the council's community field advocate is Lynn Whitley, who is available to help local disabled people to move toward the mainstream and full participation in the life of society.

The advocate assists in providing legal, administrative and other appropriate remedies to insure protection of the rights of the disabled, and also investigates complaints concerning rights violations. The regional advocate may be contacted at Greenville or by telephoning 756-8746.

Appointed To Water Study Committee

RALEIGH — Representative Vernon G. James of Pasquotank County was appointed December 2 by House Speaker Liston B. Ramsey to a special legislative committee to study water pollution problems in the Chowan River and Albemarle Sound basins.

The committee was authorized by the 1981 General Assembly to study pollution problems and water resource needs in the Chowan-Albemarle region. A report is to be made to the General Assembly by January 1, 1983.

James is chairman of the House Agriculture Committee. He represents Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Tyrrell and Washington counties in the first House District.

Nightingale Contract Signed

NORFOLK, Va. — Chesapeake and Potomac Airways, Inc., of Baltimore and Medical Center Hospitals signed a contract Tuesday of last week for the lease of the Nightingale helicopter.

Nightingale, which is scheduled to begin service by late February, 1982, will be the first hospital-based air ambulance in Eastern Virginia and Northeast North Carolina. The emergency-medical service will be based at Norfolk General Hospital, but will augment existing ground transportation systems within a 125-mile radius of the city.

The leasing contract, which was signed by the executive vice president of C&P Airways, Paul Tomlinson and Nightingale's project coordinator, E. M. Holmes, III, calls for MCH payments of approximately $400,000 for the first 13 months. According to Holmes, the Nightingale's total operating budget will be nearly $700,000 for the first year.

For that amount, C&P Airways will furnish a Bell Long Ranger II helicopter, which will be fully equipped for sophisticated emergency care and life support systems. In addition, C&P will provide three pilots and one mechanic.

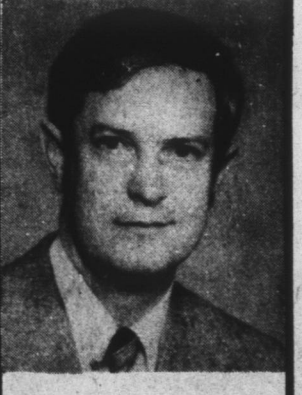

"We think this is a model contract," said Holmes. "It's more comprehensive than any other air ambulance contract we've seen."

Along with the signing, the first two Nightingale crew members were announced. Connie N. Schneider, is the new Chief Flight Nurse and Jerry Bonham is the Lead Pilot.

Hints For Winterizing Your Home

The winter season is just around the corner! So take the hint from mother nature and start preparing for winter now. According to the North Carolina Medical Society, you are not totally prepared for winter until you have completely winterized your home both indoors and out. Once you have completed the following recommendations, you can sit back and enjoy a safe and cozy winter.

1. Thoroughly inspect and clean the furnace, fireplace, chimney and connector pipes.
2. Remove combustibles (such as cans of paint and old newspapers) far enough from heat sources, such as flue pipes, furnaces, water heaters, incinerators, space heaters, and electrical equipment.
3. Use a fire screen whenever the fireplace is in use.
4. Cover and -or drain the swimming pool for the season.
5. Safely store away lawn equipment and accessories (lawn mowers, hedge trimmers, and pesticides.)
6. Inspect the home wiring system to make sure it can handle the increased load of winter lighting and appliances.
7. Make sure that ladders-for putting up storm windows and cleaning gutters, etc., are in good working order.

8. Check to make sure that there is ample lighting outdoors from the street to the driveway and to the entrance of the house, and throughout the interior of the house. (This is important because inclement weather combined with early darkness can make dangerous falls a real hazard if proper lighting is not provided.)

9. Make sure all outdoor lighting equipment is designed for outdoor use with weather proof cords, plugs, sockets and connections.

10. Make certain that walks, stairs, porches and driveways are all in good repair.

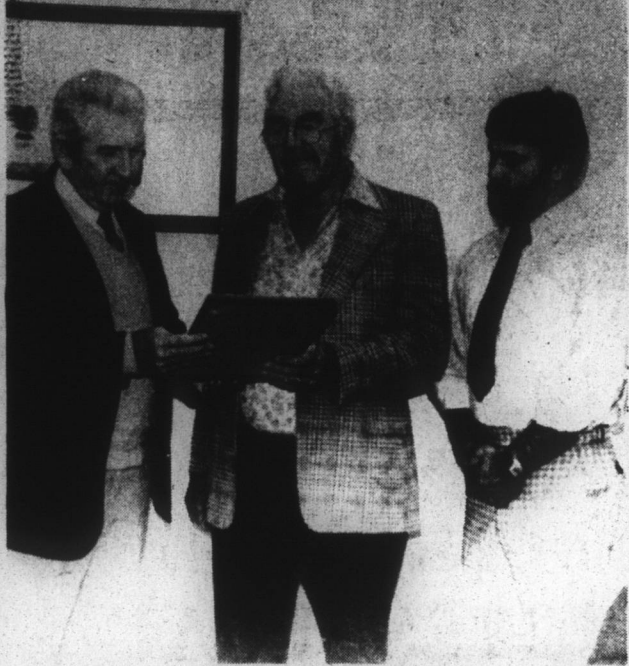

11. Properly prepare gas barbecue grill for winter so that gas leaks due to frost do not develop.

12. Remind everyone that unsupervised open flames, such as candles, are not to be left unattended throughout the house.

13. Remove all dead limbs from trees before the winter storms hit.

14. Devise an emergency escape plan that everyone will understand and follow since winter seems to generate more tragic home fires than any other season of the year.

Expect little and you will spare yourself disappointments.

"Some of my best salesmen don't even work for me."

It's a funny thing about the Sonys we sell: We don't really have to do much selling.

That's because there's a whole bunch of people who do a terrific job for us.

Our customers.

Once they take home a Sony, be it a Trinitron, Betamax, Walkman, portable stereo, or tape recorder, it isn't long before they show it to their friends. And they tend to extol the virtues of their Sonys better than we ever could.

Once you take home a Sony, we have a feeling you'll be singing its praises to your friends, too.

Expect great performance from your Sony. Expect a lot of pleasure from your Sony. But I'm afraid there's one thing you can't expect: A commission.
