

Abuse Threatens Availability

"Hunter Ethics" is a term many sportsmen are probably tired of hearing. During the last few years, it seems to come up anytime hunting is written about. Hunter ethics is now a major part of the experience to be dealt with since its display can mean the difference in land being available for the sporting public's use.

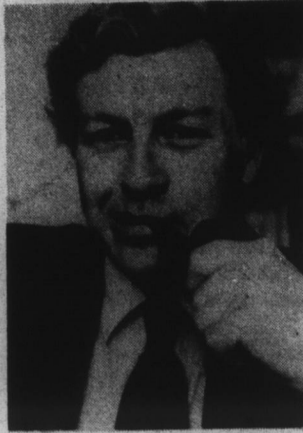

Abuse of public and private land is a problem which may threaten the future availability of hunting areas in District I and the N. C. Wildlife Resources Commission. One example of this abuse is occurring on the Georgia Pacific Game lands in Washington County.

Abuse of this area, through road and gate damage, could possibly jeopardize the cooperative program between landowners and the Wildlife Resources Commission.

Road damage is a problem due to the expense involved in repair and maintenance. In G-P Game Lands, there is extensive damage occurring on 17 miles of roads located in the State Board Tract area. Irresponsible people are indiscriminately driving these roads in 4-wheel drive vehicles during the wet periods of spring. Since the roads are new and unstabilized, they can not withstand heavy vehicular traffic, especially during wet periods. Gating off the road is the usual route taken, but company officials assume discretion will make this unnecessary. It has also been reported that hunters have torn down or damaged gates which were erected in problem areas.

The honest sportsman must realize these costs are being passed to someone, and that someone is himself. Due to the irresponsibility of a few hunters, we are all paying the price, and in the long run losing something the sportsmen strives for daily respect for a sport under a growing bombardment of criticism.

Dr. William Francis Ryan

Begins Humanity Seminars

The initial segment of "The Human Dimension" will be conducted at 7:30 P.M. March 2 in the lecture auditorium, Room B-202 at College of The Albemarle.

The six humanities seminars are components of a series selected for on-campus presentation by COA from "The Measure of Man: Humane Value in Western Civilization" programs developed by the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and the N. C. Humanities Committee. The last lecture will take place on April 6.

The stage for the remaining sessions of the series will be set Tuesday night when Dr. William Francis Ryan, director of the Institute of Humanities at Old Dominion University, presents the opening lecture, "The Goody Frame."

The scholar will trace the spread of The Renaissance northward from Rome and Florence in Italy, to Germany, France, and ultimately England. His discourse on the period of intense creativity will provide illumination for later discussions of events which evolved during the mid-16th century Reformation.

Ryan, who earned his doctorate in Modern European History, with second fields in Medieval and French Literature from the University of Connecticut in 1970, has gained extensive experience in the field of humanities. Since the institute was founded at ODU in 1976, its enrollment has grown from 24 to 177, with large percentages from professional fields of education, religion, military and government services, medicine, and business.

He also has served on or chaired undergraduate curriculum planning boards, and has been a permanent consultant to non-profit agencies seeking foundation funding. He has taught courses on aspects of European thought or French politics and culture.

Ryan is a member of the President's Task Force on Undergraduate Education. He has held offices in the Virginia Humanities Conference and currently is a member of its executive board.

He is an active lecturer, and has appeared as host, guest and panelist on a number of radio and television shows relating to humanities in Connecticut and Tidewater, Virginia. He was interviewed on Radio Vatican in Rome, Italy.

He is the author of many papers and publications. Ryan, at the present time, is engaged in research for an article dealing with French politics in the late 1800s, including a monograph on La Croix's influence during the period.

Proclamation

A proclamation declaring March 9-15 as National Employ the Older Worker Week will be signed by Gov. Jim Hunt following his 10 A.M. press conference on Thursday.

Attending the ceremony will be Ernest Messer, Asst. Secretary for the Division of Aging of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources as well as Glenn Jernigan, Chairman of the Employment Security Commission.

Secretary Messer's Division administers a Title V program working to meet the needs of elderly low-income persons by supplying part-time community work. To date over 370 people have been employed through this.

The Employment Security Commission has an older worker specialist who coordinates a Title V program with the Division of Aging.

The U.S. Silver depository is at West Point, New York.

Reflections From Bandon

prayer. Friends, I humbly urge each and every one of you to pray that God will comfort that loving family and give them the strength to carry on and that somehow, through this tragedy, something good will emerge; Robert (Bob) Lepley is confined to DePaul Hospital, Norfolk, Va. following surgery; Jessie Baines is semi-bedridden at home and desperately needs prayer; please remember Mrs. I. T. Jennette, Washington, N.C.; Grace Harvey, Eugenia Castellow, Mrs. Sue Britt, Joan Wilshire, Lucy Shelton, Robert Humes, Pearl Furlough, M. W. Darden, Jerry Marlowe, our nation, its leaders and its people; our missionaries; and our Pastor, Robert S. Harrell and his family.

"Happy Birthday" was sung by all as Jean Johnson placed her contribution in our Birthday Bank.

At our morning Worship Service, the Shepherd of Bandon's flock, Rev. Robert S. Harrell, presented a soul stirring message entitled "Maturing in God's Word", based on Heb. 5:1-14; 6:1. Pastor Bob emphasized that one of the saddest things in the world was to see a Church where the people were not maturing in God's Word but still fooling around with the elementals and letting that divide them. We must come together to study, to pray, to mature and to grow in God's Word. Let's pray that our Heavenly Father will show us the way, help us to feed upon "meat", the solid "meat" of Jesus Christ.

Next Sunday, Feb. 28th, Rev. Kermit Braswell, Dist. Supt. of the Methodist Church in this area, will share the pulpit with Pastor

Bob. He will share information concerning the missionary work being carried on at our college campuses in North Carolina; also, a report of foreign Medical Missions. Don't miss it.

On Friday, Feb. 26th, Women of the Church - Bandon Chapel will hold its second meeting at 7:30 P.M. in Fellowship Hall. All women in the community are invited to join in this effort to enrich our spiritual growth.

CONGRATULATIONS! Miss Margaret O'Brian and Mr. Max Rosenberry were joined together in holy matrimony on Sunday, Feb. 14th. We pray that God will shower his richest blessings upon this union and grant them many years of health and happiness.
