Local bards wanted for library's poetry reading set for Dec. 17

The Friends of the Library Book Club's December meeting will be a poetry reading on Thursday, Dec. 17, at 3:30 p.m. at the library. Interested people are asked to bring their favorite poems to share. The Friends are providing refresh-

Spend the holidays with Kay Scarpetta and Pete Marino in Scarpetta's Winter Table by Patricia Cornwell. Kay's kitchen is not only where Christmas meals are prepared, but also the place where a lonely young visitor finds warmth. In Jerry B. Jenkins 'Twas the Night Before Christmas, a cynical newspaper reporter's faith is restored while he is on assignment in Germany.

A murderous Christmas tale, Midnight Clear by Kathy Hogan Trocheck, is called "New South sassy" by one reviewer. A crime-solving cleaning crew has no time for holiday festivities until they can prove their friend did not kill his ex-wife.

Tom Wolfe takes on Atlanta in A Man in Full. The story set in this dynamic Southern city is told via several representative characters: football star turned executive, upscale black lawyer, and out-of-work young father.

David Baldacci is back. In his fourth novel he has focused his lawyer-turned-author eye

HEROES

LLOYD F. HOLBROOK

Navy Petty Officer 1st Class Lloyd F. Holbrook, son of Ruth and Lloyd F. Holbrook, Jr. of Edenton, is currently halfway through a six-month deployment to the Mediterranean Sea and Arabian Gulf aboard the attack submarine USS Atlanta, homeported in Norfolk, VA.

During the deployment, Holbrook participated in Sharem 125, a seven-day exercise held in the Central Mediterranean Sea. The operation was conducted to test and evaluate underseas warfare tactics, weapons, sensors and procedures. In addition to Holbrook's ship, 10 ships and 30 aircraft from Canada, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, Spain, and the United States participated.

Holbrook's ship also participated in Exercise Shark Hunt, an undersea warfare event held off the coast of Spain to train units in countering diesel submarines operating in shallow water.

Local wood-carver to visit library Dec. 16

Erik Van de Bogart can came to the area from Bangor, change wood into feathers with a few deft strokes of a knife. His accurately detailed carvings of fish, fowl, and mammals are on display at the library now. Wednesday, Dec. 16, at 3:30 p.m., he will demonstrate and explain his carving techniques at Shepard-Pruden Memorial Public Library in Edenton.

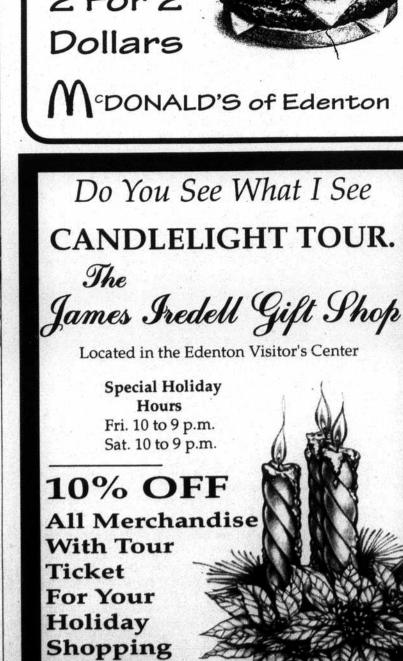

Van de Bogart and his wife Eda have lived in eastern North Carolina for the last ten years and are currently residing at Albemarle Plantation in Perquimans County. They ME, where he worked in public broadcasting as a staff educator or, as he says, laughing, "doing everything no one else wanted to do that had to do with education."

He began to carve in 1985 after Hurricane Gloria knocked down a big white pine tree in his yard. He says he has been trying to get rid of it ever since!" From that one pine tree he made a panel bed with relief carvings of oak, holly, magnolia, and dogwood leaves and fruit on the headboard. So far he has also made a couple of hundred carvings, mostly loons, from the tree.

"As a rule he prefers carving on basswood and tupelo gum, but he still works with some of the original white pine that started it all," said Shepard-Pruden Librarian Rosalie Boyd. "He enjoys teaching classes and sharing what he's learned over the years. He has offered to teach a class at our library if there is sufficient interest. Please join us on Dec. 16 for a chance to see a skilled craftsman at work. Then, give it a go yourself!"

Survey: COA graduates are securing jobs

College of the Albemarle's graduates continue to find work or continue their education, according to statistics released Nov. 30 by COA's Placement Office.

Every year, Debra Williams, director of Cooperative Education and Job Placement, conducts a survey of COA's graduates to determine their progress. Of those who graduated last May and responded to the survey, 94 percent said they were either employed or continuing their education.

Of COA's vocational graduates, 100 percent said they were employed. Ninety-four percent of COA's technical graduates were either continuing their education or were employed and ninety-three percent of COA's college transfer graduates said they were continuing their education or employed.

Williams said the good statistics are due to the quality instruction provided by COA's instructors coupled with the willingness of local employers to hire new graduates.
