

Historic site hosts Easter egg hunt April 3rd wedding set

For the second year, Historic Edenton State Historic Site welcomed local kindergarten students to the grounds of the James Iredell Home-site for an Easter egg hunt.

Five classes from D.F. Walker Elementary School participated on Wednesday, March 24th. Approximately 100 students from the classes of Mrs. Biggs, Mrs. Leary, Mrs. Stallings, Mrs. Ellis and Mrs. Williams were hosted by the site.

While the students viewed the 14-minute slide presentation in the Visitor Center, staff members of the site hid—not too completely—plastic eggs filled with Easter candies.

The students were accommodated in three separate groups throughout the day. The second group, students in Mrs. Stallings and Mrs.

Williams' classes, enjoyed a picnic lunch before engaging in the hunt.

Additionally, on Thursday, March 25, nearly 120 second graders from D.F. Walker visited the historic site to participate in Easter egg dyeing. The classes of Mrs. Williams, Mrs. McCall, Mrs. Simpson, Mrs. McLaughlin and Mrs. Freshwater learned how dyes made from natural materials were used in the colonial period while the students dyed their eggs. The entire program was organized by Deborah Sliva of the Historic Site staff.

"This is but one phase of our ongoing program of providing students with a look at how people lived more than 200 years ago," she explained.

Ms. Bigg's students anxiously await the start of the Easter Egg hunt.

Local music teacher Jackie Copeland will be giving an organ recital on April 8 at 7 p.m. at Memorial Baptist Church in Greenville.

Local music teacher to perform in Greenville

Local music teacher Jackie Copeland will be giving an organ recital on Thursday, April 8 at 7 p.m. at Memorial Baptist Church in Greenville. The program will feature organ works by Baxtehude, Howell, Messiaen, Franck and Alain, and is given to fulfill the requirements for the Master of Music degree in church music at East Carolina University.

A special section of chorale-based works by J.S. Bach will feature soprano Sherry Jordan of Edenton singing the Lutheran hymns in their original German. Each hymn will be followed by Bach's elaboration of the tunes on the organ.

Mrs. Copeland lives in the Ryland section of Chowan County with her husband Jeff and their two children, Sam and Callie. She is the daughter of Jack and Trudy Parker of Edenton. Mrs. Copeland currently teaches music at Central Elementary school in Elizabeth City and was recently named February Teacher of the Month there.

INSIGHT INTO EYESIGHT

SEEING AND SKIING

In winter, the sun is lower in the sky and starts to set much earlier. It's harder to see clearly, even with perfect vision, and any visual defect can be exaggerated by poor light.

Skiers need goggles to cope with the varying light conditions on the slopes and to protect the eyes from ultraviolet rays. Some goggles have interchangeable lenses of various tints: darker ones to be worn when the sun is strong, lighter ones to let in more of the afternoon light. Goggles are also available with chromatic lenses that respond to light automatically.

Lenses that filter blue light are particularly effective in hazy, foggy or overcast weather conditions. That's when vision is obscured by scattered blue light caused by particles of dust. When the blue light is filtered out, the remaining colors focus more sharply on the retina. Snowy surroundings are easier to see and safer to ski.
