SENIOR

"The mother passed away this year, so that was her very last Christmas, but we could make it nicer," Lamb said.

Lamb said the commission is currently compiling an intake form for those in the Santa program with information like their clothing size, favorite color and what kind of candy they like. She said she should have that information by the end of the month.

People who want to adopt a senior, can call Lamb at 404-7088 or e-mail alamb@accog.org.

The commission has more than 350 people in the 10-county area that get a home delivered meal, but the majority have family or friends that will be with them during the holidays. Still, the agency will be collecting small items like lotion, lap blankets, tissues, hand soap that can go in gift bags for the seniors.

"This way everybody will get something," Lamb said.

Those items can be dropped off at the commission's office at 512 S. Church St. in Hertford or at any of the 10 senior centers in the region.

As of Monday morning, Chowan County Senior Center had not received its drop-off box, but expect to have it soon. Once it arrives, people can leave items that can be used for gift bags for each of the home delivered meal clients.

The center is at 202 E. Church St., Edenton. Individuals take part in the Santa program, as well as groups, like churches.

"This is the fourth year of the program and there is room to grow," Lamb said. "We could open it up to people outside the food program, but there is no way for us to track and confirm that situation and that need. Our caregiver clients know what where the needs are."

LAYTON

people I learned more about at the Edenton-Chowan Food Pantry Volunteer Appreciation Luncheon.

Lois Armstrong, a native of Edenton, moved away but came back. Food Pantry Executive Director Joe Rizzo and Lois both lived near New York City around the same time, but in different areas.

After Sept. 11, 2001, Rizzo's family made the decision to leave the Big Apple, eventually making their way here. Luckily for us, Armstrong also heeded the call to come back home. Edenton and Chowan County are better because of their contributions.

For another couple, they were trying to help their daughter get a home loan. The loan officer mentioned Scotch Hall, across the Sound in Bertie County. He talked it up so much, they decided to visit and eventually moved here. They listened to a Nicholas Sparks book about Edenton on the trip down.

I haven't read Sparks books yet, but maybe I should. Miles says since it's Halloween, I need to read some Stephen King too.

My family's story: My husband is a native of Greensboro and went to ECU. As a child, he frequently saw signs for Edenton during his visits to the coast, but never really came here.

In October 2014, my husband and I dropped off resumes at the Daily Advance. We were in the area so my husband could run the Outer Banks Marathon with his brother. About a year later, then-publisher Mike Goodman called and notified us about a job opening. But we had just accepted jobs with another paper in West Virginia. Then in 2017, he called again with a different job — the editor's position at the Chowan Herald.

And the rest, they say is history.

This weekend, I hope you enjoy Homecoming weekend. Remember, the kids are out of school Friday for a teacher workday. Feel free to send us pictures of the activities, as I'll be adventuring with my boys and their friends in Cub Scout Pack 164.

Enjoy the rest of your week. Thank you for reading the Chowan Herald. Editor Nicole Bowman-Layton can be contacted at nlayton@ncweeklies.com.

families, schools and communities across the nation.

The first official Red Ribbon Week celebration was created by the National Family Partnership in 1988 to honor the death of Enrique S. "Kiki" Camarena, a Drug Enforcement Administration Special Agent.

According to the 2013 and 2015 National Survey on Drug Use & Health, 19 million Americans abuse prescription drugs. Substance Abuse and Mental Health Administration (SAMHSA) states that more than 1,700 children and young adults begin to experiment with prescription drugs each day. Trillium is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week at 1-877-685-2415 for anyone in need of treatment for a substance use disorder. The public can also visit our website at www.TrilliumHealthResources.org to search for a provider and learn more about services available.

Please support the Girl Scouts' goal of having a drug-free community.

just cook your collards at a low simmer so that all the nutritional benefits will remain for you.

It's best to wash your collards to remove any dirt, fold the leaf like a book and cut away the stem that runs through the leaf. Roll the leaves like a cigar and then julienne them.

If you find yourself with an abundance of collard greens you can even freeze them. Simply blanch the washed, trimmed greens in a large pot of boiling water for a few minutes. Immediately plunge them in a bowl of ice water to stop the cooking process. Drain thoroughly, spin in a salad spinner, or pat dry and place in freezer-safe storage containers, removing as much air as possible to prevent freezer burn. Freeze immediately.

Collard greens are a nice accompaniment to fried chicken or country ham with cornbread and are known for good luck in the new year. But these dark leafy greens can be used many ways. Collards are a nice addition to pastas, soups, stews, in a southern eggs benedict, sandwiches and salads.

This week I have included my favorite collard recipe.

Enjoy!
