WORK TO BE RESUMED ON NEW M. E. CHURCH

At a special meeting of the building committee of the M. E. church Monday afternoon, it was unanimously decided to resume work at once on the new church, in order to finish the main auditorium by the time the windows and doors are shipped. Plaster has already been ordered for the building and just as soon as it is received the walls will be finished. It is the plan of the committee to finish at the present time only the auditorium so that it can be used. A little later it is hoped to complete the entire building and put in its usable shape.

Mrs. W. D. Carter Gives Convincing Testimony

Here is another instance where gratitude finds natural expression in words of praise. "To me Tanlac has meant the difference between health and misery, and my most heartfelt praise is none too good for this grand medicine," declared Mrs. W. D. Carter, 323 Walnut Street, Covington, Va.

"For years I hardly knew a restful night, and was so badly run-down I was just a shadow of my former self. I had practically no appetite, and for days tea and toast or a little soup was all I could take. I had blood headaches, my back ached nearly all the time, and my health was so wretched my friends and neighbors as well as myself were greatly worried."

"But now I am as happy over my health as a little child with a new toy. I only wish I could convey my faith in Tanlac to others. It is truly a blessing, and all that I say right from my heart."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitutes. Over 37-million bottles sold.

HOW TO BUTCHER LAMB OR MUTTON

Raleigh, July 23. To butcher a sheep the animal should be at least a day before he is to be slaughtered. This lets the grease out of his system. Then, when butchering, being the animal fed instead of overfed as it necessarily would be if caught and butchered at once. It is often develops characteristic odor in many other animals, so the lamb or sheep ought to be kept cool and quiet, explains G. P. Williams, Sheep Field Agent for the State College and Department of Agriculture.

"Cutting the throat under the jaw is a sure way to kill a sheep," says Mr. Williams. "First knocking the animal on the head many over-stretches it and results in internal bleeding, which is very undesirable if sweet clean flesh is desired. There is practically no pain in cutting the throat. Getting the pelt off immediately is of prime importance, both as a means of rapidly cooling the carcass and avoiding rotting through four contact. Remove the innards at once, including the kidneys. Don't cut the internal cavities with any instrument so obtainable as a pair of sharp knives. Chill it as soon as possible under the circumstances." He says that the reason Mr. Williams believes that slaughtering a sheep is best done in the evening is that the "meats" are cooled, especially so when no icing facilities are at hand. In putting a cut of lamb or mutton to cook, when ever possible, the tough, white membranes of the meat should first be stripped off.

County Agents Hear Miss Berry

Chapel Hill, July 24.—Miss H. M. Berry, who has been promoting an interest in credit unions among the farmers of the State, has just returned from beautiful where she addressed the County Agents of the eastern district on the subject of "Credit Unions and their Value in North Carolina Agricultural Development." Last week Miss Berry addressed a group of county agents at Monroe and is now leaving for Newland, Avery County, to speak to the western group of county agents.

GRAND OPENING OF Everybody's Bargain FESTIVAL AT THE J. C. Slocumb Variety Store
