H. W. Temple Park Committee Praises Western Carolina

The Congressional committee appointed to investigate the southern Appalachians with a view to selecting a site for a national park has recently completed its tour of inspection through western North Carolina, Georgia, South Carolina and other Southern states and has taken a wonderful store of information back to Washington with it. Some days ago airplanes were seen encircling the immediate section and it is generally believed that these aviators were taking photographs of this region for the park committee.

The recent session of the North Carolina General Assembly appointed a committee of the two houses to confer with the national committee with a view to having the park located in North Carolina. Cherokee's own representative, Col. John H. Dilard, is a member of that committee and is responsible for an amendment to the resolution under which it was appointed appropriating a sum of money to be used in gathering data to present to the national committee.

The national committee was tremendously impressed by its visit through Western North Carolina, according to a recent article in the New York Times on the subject of the proposed national park.

Members of this committee assert that there are natural phenomena in the region inspected which will rival in their way, if not surpass, the phenomena of Yellowstone or Yosemite Parks.

A ball of fire that appears from nowhere to cross the mountain face and disappear into nothingness. Peaks piled chaotically as if by giants in a frenzy. A towering mountain that resembles a huge and benign grandfather reflecting on the way of the world beneath him. A rock from which it is impossible to throw one's hat. A river that shouts with a cannon voice as it drops 1700 feet in five miles. Innumerable waterfalls that tumble in a fashion that recalls New York's own Niagara.

These are some of the sights which the committee experienced as it examined what North Carolina had to offer in the way of a site. Their experience in North Carolina was repeated in other states visited, but not to the same degree and effect.

MICROBE OF LOVE IS TITLE OF LOCAL TALENT PLAY

Musical Comedy Will Attract Throngs To School House On Friday Night

One of the most amusing and entertaining features to be offered in Murphy in a long time is "The Microbe of Love" which will be staged at the school auditorium Friday, September 12. This is a musical comedy full of rare humor and refreshing lines. There are forty or fifty in the cast, all local talent. The production is being put on under the direction of Miss Hannah Dixon, who is a representative of the Wayne P. Sewell Company, which owns the play rights on this popular drama.

The women's club is sponsoring the production. The proceeds will go to the library.

A brief synopsis of the play follows:

In the town of anywhere lives a number of charming young spinsters there being only five eligible bachelors in the place (and these five determine to remain unwed), the spinsters see but little chance for them to overcome their husbandless condition; so they decide to organize a club for the sole purpose of devising ways and means by which they may secure mates for their lonely hearts.

The "Microbe of Love" opens with a grand chorus of charming girls and youthful bachelors. After their triumphant flourish the spinsters begin a recital of their woes and their hopes. Among the many schemes offered whereby they may secure husbands, is that of getting them from the various mail order houses by means of trading stamps. But upon reading the description of the men given as premiums, with the various household articles quoted, the hearts of the spinsters are saddened to find them but a bargain counter lot and not a model one among them. However, Madam Cupid enters with little love microbes and guarantees it to penetrate the male heart just as the boll weevil does the cotton boll. Developments prove that she knows what she is talking about.

Nothing could be funnier than the little "Left Over" scene which will be played between the acts. They have a meeting to discuss the awfulness of their left-over condition, but instead of getting sympathy, they get only roars of laughter.

The second act shows a meeting of the bachelor's club portraying a chronological history of man's suffering from the time of Adam, blaming each and everything to the mischievous activities of woman. The mention of Simon says into the club of safety will bring pleasant memories to every secret order man present.

Mr. Henpeck, who has been working in double harness for sometime, visits the bachelors and warns them against the spinsters scheme to lure them into matrimony.

The last act is a garden party where the spinsters have invited the bachelors to meet Madam Cupid. Here the hapless, hopeless, helpless bachelors become inoculated with the microbe. The wrecking of this club and the kidnapping of its members is too funny for expression.

The climax is the wedding scene, which is perhaps the loveliest of them all, made so by the dainty little flower girls and ribbon bearers.

This brief scenario gives you only a vague idea of what your home talent will do. Come and enjoy this rare production full of wit, humor, music and philosophy. The plot is deft and its lines and lyrics as bright as sparkles and as refreshing as pattering showers on a hot day. It is the kind audiences cheer and cheer and go to see again and again.

NOTICE TO VOTERS

In reporting the result of the Democratic County Convention held here on Labor Day, this paper stated that B. B. Palmer, George Hendrix and Sheridan Dickey were the nominees for County Commissioners. Mr. J. M. Vaughn was the nominee instead of Mr. Hendrix.

This error occurred on account of the fact that a representative of this paper was unable to attend the convention and had to rely upon the reports of others for the facts. This error is greatly regretted and the correction is gladly made.

Little Brasstown And Junaluska To Form Poultry Clubs

At meetings held at Little Brasstown and Junaluska last week the question of forming a community club of farmers and their families to be known as a Poultry Club was discussed. Mr. V. W. Lewis, live stock and poultry marketing specialist, and Mr. H. H. Ellis, county agent, explained to those present the need for a community organization for the purpose of bringing the farm folks together once each month to study their problems together. This club would help in getting information on correct methods of growing and marketing of poultry and would also help in that it would be possible through the club to agree on a single breed of poultry for one community which would give them a standard uniform product to market which is of more value than a mixed product. It would also make possible the grading and bringing together sufficient quantity of any one product to market it to the best advantage and for the highest price. The young folks could take part as it would include the boys and girls poultry club members. An interesting program could be put on each month at the meeting in addition to the business and give the club some value as a social organization. Various demonstrations could be put on in connection with the meeting from time to time by the poultry specialist and county agent in culling poultry, grading eggs, building houses for poultry, etc.

Quite an interest was shown at each meeting and it was decided to meet with the county agent on the following dates for the purpose of organizing the organization.

At Little Brasstown, Saturday, September 20th, at 7:00 p. m., central time.

At Junaluska, Tuesday, September 16th, at 2:30 P. M., eastern time.

Mr. Bryant Raper was elected temporary secretary, and Mr. Sam Carringer temporary chairman at Little Brasstown.

SCHOOL CHILDREN RAISING FUNDS FOR ATHLETICS

Three Teams Competing in Selling Subscriptions to National Magazine

Seventy-five children of the local high school are this week competing in a whirlwind campaign for subscriptions and renewals to the Country Gentleman in order to raise funds to buy athletic equipment for the school. Through an arrangement with the publishers of the magazine, The Curtis Publishing Company, the local school will keep one half of the money realized from the subscriptions, which funds will be used in buying athletic equipment for the girls' and boys' basketball teams and for the boys' baseball team.

An interesting feature of the campaign is the keen rivalry that has been stirred up between the three teams, which has been brought about by the fact that the winning team will enjoy a party at the expense of the losing teams at the end of the campaign of one week. The plan was gotten under way Monday when the three teams were organized. Harvey Akin was elected business manager of the entire three teams and Misses Alline Richardson and Lucile Hill and H. A. Mattox were made team managers. There are 25 students on each team besides the managers. Red, blue and orange are the respective colors of the teams and the names are Barney Google, Spark Plug and Sessie Susans.

Subscriptions to the Country Gentleman are being taken at $1.00 each the school being allowed to keep fifty cent of each dollar collected. Renewals count just as much as new subscriptions. Student interest in the plan comes from three sources. First, they are interested in selling as many subscriptions as possible so as to swell the athletic fund so that equipment for the school can be had; second, for each three subscriptions any student sells, he or she will be given an ever-sharp pencil; and third, the fact that the winning team will enjoy a party at the hands of the losers. Just the nature of the party is not known by anyone. Recipes for the things that are to be prepared for refreshments at the party and directions for playing the games are sealed up in an envelope, the contents of which no one yet knows. This envelope will be opened and read to the entire three teams at the close of the campaign of one week.

Every morning during the week the team leaders have cast up the total number of subscriptions secured by each and the leading team is made known, but not the number of subscriptions secured by either. This information will not be given out until the end of the week.

It is expected that the citizens of the community will encourage the children in this undertaking, which, aside from the fact that it is teaching them to work to earn money to buy their own athletic equipment, is supplying them valuable training in salesmanship.

A representative of the Curtis Co. was here the first of the week to indicate the plan, which is being put on in school all over this state and all over the country.

Shoal Creek Sunday School Convention

The Shoal Creek Sunday School Convention met at Suit, Aug 30th, at 10 a. m. After a short devotional service conducted by Rev. E. A. Beaver, the convention went into permanent organization by electing Rev. E. A. Beaver as chairman and R. L. Keenum as secretary. After talks by Rev. E. A. Beaver and W. A. Witt and a few good songs by the convention, the people were served with a very sumptuous dinner prepared by the good women of the community.

The special features of the program for the afternoon were good talks by Rev. W. A. Witt and Rev. Frank Birchfield. After the general routine of work had been transacted by the convention, the appointment of certain committees, etc., the convention adjourned to meet the following morning, August 31st.

The convention met at 9:30 A. M. August 31st, after prayer and a short devotional by Rev. Birchfield. The people were delightfully entertained by the reading of beautiful essays by the following: Misses Lexie Allen and Pearl McNabb, and Messames C. H. McNabb and C. H. Sparks. Nice songs and recitations by the following children: Song by little Miss Juanita Hill; recitation by little Miss Geneva Hill; song "Jesus Wants Me for a Sunbeam," by five little girls; Bessie and Pauline Thompson, Hazel Pope, Vesta McDonald and Ruth McNabb.

The principal feature of Sunday's program was an excellent speech by Superintendent A. L. Martin in which he plead for a more co-operative spirit on the part of parents to the end that their children may receive 100 percent of all money expended by the state and county for educational purposes. The convention adjourned to meet with the Baptist Church at Liberty on Saturday before the first Sunday in May, 1925.

New Teacher Added To School Faculty

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the graded school the latter part of last week, Mrs. T. L. Sasser was employed to take charge of part of one of the lower grades of the school. ## L. & N. Gets Joint Control of Coal Road

The Louisville & Nashville and the Atlantic Coast Line Railway companies have jointly leased the C. C. & O. road and will operate the system as an individual line, according to the terms prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission in granting the lease. The Seaboard was a cotender for the road.

This fact is of significance to Murphy as the L. & N. enters here and as that will give this point direct connection with another coal field. The C. C. & O. is largely a coal road, tapping the Clinchfield coal fields of Virginia and West Virginia.
