TENNESSEANS' PRIDE SHOCKED BY ENGINEER'S REPORT

Tellico Plains Citizen Says Pritchett Did Not Visit "Toll Gate Gap" Section And See Work Under Way

Mr. N. E. Dockery, county road supervisor and a member of the Cherokee County Road Commission, is in receipt of a letter from Mr. D. M. Pritchett, of the Tellico Industrial Association, Tellico Plains, Tenn., which came as a request from Mr. Dockery for an expression of Mr. Pritchett's opinion as to the feasibility of the proposed road connection between North Carolina and Tennessee at some point in Cherokee County, and which report was published in a recent issue of The Scout.

Mr. Pritchett states that it was unfortunate that the locating engineer did not "visit the Toll Gate Gap" on the state line and see the force of opinion expressed by Monroe County at work constructing the "connecting link" between the two states.

"When we learned that there were 'no towns of importance for miles,' states Mr. Pritchett in his letter, 'The pride of us on this side of the state line received a rude shock.'

The text of Mr. Pritchett's letter follows:

Mr. N. E. Dockery, County Road Supervisor, North Carolina, Dear Mr. Dockery:

I have read the published report at Mr. Chas. M. Pritchett, State Locating Engineer, relative to his survey and findings concerning the proposed road connection between North Carolina and Tennessee.

In complying with your request for an expression of my opinion of the information conveyed to Mr. Strickland by Mr. Pritchett in the latter's report, I beg leave to suggest that Mr. Pritchett may have intended his report, as published, merely as a preliminary or a synopsis of a full report to be submitted later, after he should have obtained all of the facts of the general situation. This surmise seems logical to me for the following reasons:

1. He states that the Beaver Dam Route will be 29 miles long with a maximum grade of 7 per cent. The figures that I have from Mr. H. D. Smith, County Engineer, gives this mileage as 26 with a maximum grade of 6 per cent. Mr. Pritchett reports 12 miles of this road as graded. Mr. Smith's figures show that 14 miles have been graded. The former also states that this road crosses "Two mountains." In traveling this road, I recall having crossed two hills, and am surprised to learn now that they were mountains.

2. Quoting Mr. Pritchett again: "There are no towns of importance for miles and consequently would give no direct outlet for the people of Cherokee County except those headed for Knoxville. In addition we have no assurance for the construction of the connecting link in Tennessee."

It is unfortunate that Mr. Pritchett did not visit the "Toll Gate Gap" on the state line and see the force of opinion expressed by Monroe County at work constructing the "connecting link" between the two states. This connecting link soon will have been completed; and it is being constructed according to the Tennessee State Highway specifications, with a minimum grade of 6 per cent and standard width.

When we learned that there were "no towns of importance for miles," the pride of us on this side of the state line received a rude shock! If Mr. Pritchett had progressed in his investigation as far as the foot of Unaka mountain, just over this side of the line, he would have discovered the Annetta Gold Mine in full operation—an industry so unique and important that men of eminence have come far miles to study the geology of the county and the mechanism of the machinery used in concentrating the gold. Also, nearby, he would have found the Chicago Gold Mine full equipped and ready for operation.

Just a few miles further on he would have discovered the progressive town of Tellico Plains on the L. & N. R. R., with its varied industries; and the fertile, picturesque plains, carpeted with wealth and beauty stretch-

Hanging Dog Singing Class Takes Banner At Marble Convention

The Hanging Dog singing class walked away with the banner at the Cherokee County Singing Convention which was held with the Marble Springs Baptist Church on Sunday June 14th, according to information given out here this week by Mr. W. A. Adams, president of the association.

The convention was attended by approximately fifteen hundred people from Cherokee and adjoining counties, and is said to have been one of the largest ever gathered at a like occasion in the county.

This was the 28th annual convention, and the program featured some excellent singing by the different choirs of the county.

The singing of the Yellow Hill Indian Choir from the Reservation was exceedingly good. Other features of the program included the leading of choirs by Prof. Eller, of Hayesville, and Prof. George W. Sebren, of Asheville. Mr. Sebren is compiler and publisher of "Winning Prizes," the songbook which was used throughout the convention singing. The singing of Victor Johnson's quartet of Copperhill, Tenn., was said to be exceptionally good feature of the program, also.

The Regal singing class held the banner last year, and the holding of the banner is considered no minor honor. There were ten classes which competed for the banner this year, with an average of from 67 to 93 points, and the singing class of ing away for miles down the river. Having beheld this picture of nature, he might have fallen under the same spell of wonder and admiration that has moved others who have traveled the world over. A few miles further on he would have found Madisonville, the county seat, busy with commerce and surrounded by great agricultural wealth. Then eight miles further on, Sweetwater in the basin of the river valley of the same name. At that point the Lee Highway affords the traveler an outlet over most excellent roads to any point in the United States—as well as those who are "headed for Knoxville."

There are many towns of importance situated in this territory, but as they may be found on any map of Tennessee it is useless to enumerate them.

Let us consider some of the reasons given by Mr. Pritchett for recommending the "Hothouse Route":

1. "The devastated area, which is also a very interesting sight to all tourists." The object of this sentence is so obscure I must leave it to a lighter intellect than mine to interpret. But I can't refrain from reporting that, while I am writing this, there are ten citizens of Copperhill in Tellico Plains who have come here to escape the fascination of the "devastated district."

2. "This road will furnish the cheapest transportation for this quartz rock which will be a means of large incomes for the Cherokee county farmers." These farmers who live within three miles of the copper smelters may derive some profit from hauling this quartz, but a haul in excess of three miles will not pay a farmer for his trouble.

3. Mr. Pritchett adds this P. S. to his report: "The people of Copper Hill have granted a connection at Jellies Gap with the Tennessee highway system. This is not true of either of the other two routes."

It is quite true that the people of Copperhill have not guaranteed a connection at either of the other routes; but Monroe County, Tennessee, is now pushing forward the construction of a connecting link that will give the people of Cherokee County a direct outlet to all of the West, North and South over the Lee Highway and its various connections, without entailing the necessity of detouring town to the Georgia state line, and from there turning back again through the "devastated district" to wind back and forth for hours over steep mountain in order to find an outlet that will lead them to the open roads of Tennessee, and all the rest of the continent as well.

Very truly yours, D. M. BRIGHT.

The Hanging Dog community is to be congratulated for the splendid accomplishment in meriting the honor of being the best singing class in the convention.

The convention meets twice yearly and classes of the county compete for the banner. The next convention will meet the second Sunday in October with the Valley River Church near Andrews, it was announced.

The officers of the convention include: W. A. Adams, of Hanging Dog, President; E. L. Ballard, Andrews, Secretary; and the directors are D. R. Wright, Topton, Chairman; C. J. Marcus, and Mr. Crawford.

Cooke Players Tent Theatre Here Next Week

The Cooke Players are coming to Murphy for the week beginning Monday, June 29, which is next week. This organization is headed by Mr. H. M. Cooke, who has been here each year for several years past, and has always had an exceptionally high class of entertaining plays. See their ad elsewhere in this issue.

The car was loaded to capacity before the morning was over and forty coops were shipped by express.

McIver's Studio To Be Closed After First

Mr. H. B. Stewart announced the other day that after the first of July, he would close McIver's Studio, and that those who had work in the studio should call for it before the first of the month.

Mr. Stewart stated that the reason for the closing was due to the fact that business did not justify his remaining. Mr. Stewart came here a short while ago from Sumner, Ga., and took charge of the studio for Mr. A. W. McIver, whose health necessitated that he take a rest.

Mr. Stewart contemplates going to either Sumner or Sylvester, Ga. He and Mrs. Stewart have been occupying rooms with Mr. Elliott, on West Central Avenue.

In Vance County, farmers are finding it possible to arrange their work that they may have sometime to sell every week in the year. County Agent J. O. Anthony states that some 90 farm families now sell regularly on the curb market.
