WELFARE SUPTS. IN CONFERENCE AT BRYSON CITY

Mrs. Warren and Mrs. Campbell, of this County, To Address Meeting

A conference of superintendents of public welfare of the western district will be held at Fryemout Inn, Bryson City, on October 12th, from 10 o'clock in the morning until 2:30 in the afternoon, according to announcement of N. E. Wright, of Bryson City, who is president of the western district.

"It is sincerely hoped that every county in the western district will have all members of their boards of public welfare present," stated Wright in making the announcement, "as well as a representative of interested persons from each county."

Mrs. Kathleen Warren, Superintendent of Public Welfare for Cherokee county, is scheduled to address the meeting on the subject "Welfare Program for Rural County," and Mrs. John C. Campbell, President of the Folk School at Brasstown, will address the meeting on "The Economic Value of Welfare Work."

JONES DECLINES NOMINATION AS COMMISSIONER

G. W. Jones, one of the nominees for County Commissioner on the Democratic ticket, on account of being postmaster at Postell, declined to accept the nomination. R. H. King was put on by the Democratic executive committee to take the place of Mr. Jones.

The regular business meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church was held last Tuesday afternoon in the ladies parlors with Mrs. J. H. McCall as leader. Social Service was the topic for the afternoon, and interesting phases of the subject were presented by Mrs. H. P. Powell, Mrs. E. B. Norvell and Mrs. H. G. Elkins. Following the program, Mrs. E. B. Norvell, the president, presided at a short business session.

Mrs. Mary E. Nelson and children and Miss Thisia McLain of Topton spent the last of this week with Mrs. Mattie A. Taylor.

The program for the day follows:
 10:30—Registration.
 10:30—Economic Value of Welfare Work, Mrs. John C. Campbell, President Folk School, Brasstown.
 11:00—Welfare Program for Rural County, Mrs. Cathleen Warren, Superintendent Public Welfare, Cherokee County, Murphy.

 12:00—County Health Program—Dr. C. V. Candler, Sylva.
 12:30—Juvenile Court in a Rural County, C. A. Hayes, Waynesville.
 1:00—Luncheon. Introduction of Luncheon Speaker, Mrs. S. W. Black, President First District Woman's Federated Clubs, Bryson City.
 North Carolina's Chief Need; Social-Mindedness, Dr. Hyden Ramsey, Asheville.

MANY EXHIBITS AT ANNUAL COUNTY FAIR

Estimated that Ten Thousand People Passed Through Gates During Four Days Event

The Cherokee County Fair opened Wednesday morning on what officers had predicted would be the biggest event ever staged in this section, and all predictions were fulfilled in excess. It is estimated that ten thousand people passed through the gates during the four days of the fair, and the fact that there were 312 exhibitors and 1636 individual entries, far exceeded the expectations of the association.

"Never have we had such crowds, such high class exhibits and such a number and variety," stated W. M. Fain, president of the fair association in summarizing the success of this year's showing Friday night. "We have had people to tell us that our exhibits were equal to any they had seen at much larger fairs, and even at the Southeastern Fair."

The fair got off under rather inauspicious circumstances Wednesday morning, when cloudy weather threatened to visit the usual down pour of rain, but the sun came out and dispersed away the clouds for the day and for once the fair started off without a shower of rain. However, later in the afternoon the clouds reappeared and Thursday morning were hanging heavy, with intermittent showers throughout the day, with Friday displaying the same temperament. Despite this fact, the fair got off to a good beginning, with exhibits larger and more varied and the inclement weather failing to dampen the ardor and spirit of the crowds.

In going through the display or exhibition building, one witnessed such a variety of different products, in such sizes and quality, indeed he is prone to think of this section as the "land flowing with milk and honey," where supremely beautiful dahlias grow as big as peck measures and the lowly pod of okra grows as large as a squash, and where laziness is the chief mania of the hard times pupil and prophet.

The display in the exhibit hall may be briefly classified as follows: Farm and Field Crops, fruits and grapes, canned goods, preserves and jellies, pantry supplies, flowers, hand and art work, school exhibits, minerals and stones, curios and heirlooms.

Among the farm and field crops were found large and unusually good displays of rye, wheat, buckwheat, oats, peas, pumpkins, soy beans, corn, cane, and stock beets, with alfalfa, clover orchard grass, soybean and peavine hays. Among the garden and truck exhibits: watermelons, tomatoes, squash, onions, hot and sweet peppers, pimento peppers, English peas, turnips, lettuce, mustard, turnips, radish, beets, celery, beans, cucumbers, okra, peanuts, eggplants, apples, pears, grapes, parsley, kale, spinach, rhubarb, and both Irish and sweet potatoes. All of these exhibits were said to have been the best ever seen at the local fair, and even in western North Carolina.

Among the canned goods were found excellent exhibits of fruits, such as peaches, pears, blackberries, dewberries, cherries, apples, grapes, huckleberries; among vegetables, soup mixtures, tomatoes, pumpkins, string beans, rhubarb, kraut, sweet potatoes, corn, lima beans, English peas, okra, pimento peppers and field peas; among the pickles: cucumbers, sliced tomatoes, Dixie Relish, sweet peaches and pears, watermelon rhine pickles, beets, onions, chili sauce, chow-chow, and pepper; among the marmalades, peach, pear, grape and apple; while among jams, blackberry, dewberry, strawberry, raspberry, huckleberry, plum and apple butter, with apple, grape, plum, black berry and dewberry jellies; and peach, watermelon rhine, strawberry, pear, apple, cherry and quince preserves.

In the pantry supplies department were unusually good and appetizing displays in cakes, pies, custards, all kinds of small cookies, candies, biscuits, loaf bread, corn muffins, butter, dried fruit, mayonnaise, grape juice, etc.

The showing of cattle and hogs was the best and largest the fair has ever had, due largely to the fact that a new building for housing these exhibits was prepared several weeks ago. There were 34 entries of cattle, 20 entries of hogs and 72 entries of poultry, 3 entries of geese, 2 entries of turkeys, one of sheep, one of goats, and seven of horses and mules.

Guernsey was the predominant stock among the cattle entries and Leghorns or egg producing breeds were predominant among poultry entries.

Foamite Demonstration
 One of the features of the program for Friday was the Foamite demonstration by the American La France Fire Engine Company. A pit 3 feet deep, and 18 feet in diameter was filled with 400 gals. of oil and gasoline, set on fire and allowed to burn until the blaze reached a height of around 100 feet, then the foamite chemical and water mixture was used putting it out. 90 pounds of foamite was used and the water was taken from the Valley River several yards away. It required but forty seconds to extinguish the flame. Some two thousand people witnessed this demonstration, including representatives from fire fighting agencies as far away as Sweetwater, Tenn., and Waynesville, N. C. This was the second time the demonstration of this new chemical has been publicly demonstrated in the state, it was said.

An interesting feature of the booths was the one depicting the different phases of the welfare work in the county, and the Girl Scouts. The booth was attractively arranged, with paper houses and clothes pins painted and dressed as people. Among the posters displayed was one giving the promise of Girl Scouts, and one giving the Laws of Girl Scouts, with different phases of the Welfare Work as follows: Mother's Aid; Help People to Help Themselves; Help Those In Distress; School Attendance; Preventative Work; Wholesome Recreation, etc. This booth was arranged by Mrs. Cathleen Warren, Public Welfare Superintendent, with the assistance of the two troops of Murphy Girl Scouts.

Dr. S. C. Heighway's display of relics and heirlooms was unusually interesting, showing the dresses he wore as a baby, one of his mother's dresses, and one worn by his grandmother, which represented the styles of those times, and which were well preserved both as to color and fabric. His exhibit of Indian relics was very interesting, showing pipes, spear heads, arrow heads, dishes, and various articles manufactured and used by the Indians when they inhabited the land, some of which were perfect specimens. Dr. Heighway has a valuable collection of Indian relics, which have been collected over a period of many years.

The exhibit of the Murphy Graded school was attractive, interesting, instructive, and very neatly arranged. It showed what the pupils of the different classes and grades are doing, and also showed that much time and effort had been expended in preparing the different articles on display, such as hand painted pottery, health bulletins, crayon work, illustrations, Japanese lanterns, etc., etc. A study of the display of this school, which was the only school display on exhibit, was well worth anyone's time.

A list of prize winners will be carried as soon as available.

MURPHY WOMAN LAID TO REST SUNDAY P.M.

Mrs. A. K. Dickey Was Well Known and Beloved In This Section

Mrs. Mattie (McLeod) Dickey, 67 years old, wife of A. K. Dickey, beloved and prominent Murphy woman, died at her residence Friday night at 11:15, September 28th, after an illness of several weeks. All that loving hands and medical science could administer was done to no avail. The Death Angel hovered near, and Mrs. Dickey passed out quietly and peacefully, crossing the great divide and entering the land from whose bourne no traveler ever returns.

Mrs. Dickey was a member of the Baptist church since early youth, and always lived a devoted and consecrated life. She lived to see all of her children grown and holding prominent positions of responsibility in the affairs of the state and nation. She was born at Ducktown, Tenn., and lived for a number of years at Washington, Ga., later moving to Murphy where she spent the remaining years of her life.

Funeral services were held in the Baptist church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 by the pastor, Rev. T. L. Sasser, assisted by Rev. H. P. Powell, pastor of the Methodist church, and interment was in Sunset cemetery.

She is survived by her husband and six children: Mrs. W. T. Smalley of Macon, Ga.; Rev. H. C. Dickey, of Williamston, N. C.; Misses Hattie Lou and Helen Dickey, of Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. Fred Christopher and Mrs. Neil Sneed of Murphy.

CANNERY PEOPLE VISIT MURPHY

Mr. J. A. Pollard and Mr. Dick Scruggs, of Sweetwater, Tenn., representatives of the people who are seeking to establish a cannery at Murphy, spent several days in town this week interviewing prominent business men and citizens, in the interest of establishing a cannery at Murphy for canning beans and tomatoes.

The cannery has been assured, provided 400 acres of beans and tomatoes can be secured for furnishing such a business. Those who are interested in establishing a cannery here, had a booth at the fair and secured 49 acres during the first three days.

A cannery at Murphy would be a great help to the farmers of this section, in giving them—absolutely guaranteeing—a market for 400 acres of beans and tomatoes, at a price which is said to be above the average for these products on the acreage basis.

If you want a market for your beans and tomatoes—400 acres of them—a cash market, at that—it would be to your interest to see R. W. Gray, county agent, B. W. Sipe, or W. M. Fain, as soon as possible, secure one of the contract blanks and fill it out and thus help to bring a market to Murphy that is badly needed. It is understood that beans and tomatoes only are wanted the first year, however, when the cannery company gets started it expects to can other products.

Do the farmers of this section want such a market? It is up to them, and the response they make to this call will largely determine whether they shall have such a market.

Do your bit now! Don't wait!

Few legumes add more nitrogen to the soil than sweet clover. The crop is proving valuable to piedmont farmers.
