

SARGON'S FAME SPREADS OVER ENTIRE NATION

New Scientific Medicine Proclaimed Greatest Medicine of All Time by Tens of Thousands Who Have Taken It

Never before, perhaps, in all history has the demand for a proprietary medicine ever approached the wonderful record that is now being made by Sargon, the new scientific formula which has been accomplishing such remarkable results throughout this section. Its fame is rapidly spreading over the entire country and wherever introduced, Sargon is the most talked of medicine in the country today. Nothing like it has ever been seen before.

Sargon was first placed on the market just a little over six months ago. Its success was immediate and people everywhere were quick to recognize in it a new and epoch-making product—a medicine of great power and extraordinary merit. In leading cities where it has been placed on sale it has required from 70,000 to 100,000 bottles to supply the unprecedented demand, establishing a record probably never before equaled in the history of the drug trade.

Countless thousands of men and women, in all walks of life, suffering with stomach, liver and bowel troubles, some of them of long standing; as well as thousands of weak, thin, nervous men and women apparently on the verge of collapse have voluntarily come forward and testified that they have been fully restored to their normal health, strength and weight by its use.

Still others, who seemed fairly well, yet suffered with constipation in its worst form, indigestion, dyspepsia, headaches, shortness of breath, bad complexion, bad breath, loss of appetite, sleeplessness at night and of terribly dejected, depressed feelings, stated that they have been entirely relieved of these distressing symptoms and restored to health by its use.

Sargon is the result of the last ten years of world-wide scientific research; it embodies new knowledge of certain organs and fluids of the body recently come to light; it is helping build up worn-down men and women by modern methods undreamed of a generation ago.

Sargon may be obtained in Murphy from the R. S. Parker Drug Store.

BRASSTOWN

Taking Brasstown as a whole, not many homes have escaped the flu epidemic. Some homes have cases of pneumonia.

Mr. Maj Payne's family has three patients, two of pneumonia, and one of flu.

Mr. Waldo Scroggs' baby has been very ill for the past three or four days with double pneumonia. The doctors have not had very good hopes of its recovery.

Mrs. Earl Adams has been very ill of late. Their baby which is only twelve days old is very sick at the present writing.

We are glad to learn that Mr. Deschamps has had good luck with his operation and is able to be at home again. We trust he shall soon be out again.

Mrs. Howard Hall has been very ill with side pleurisy and flu. She is getting along nicely now.

Mr. Bill Waldroup, oldest citizen of Brasstown, has been very feeble for the past three months or more. He has had the flu also.

Mrs. C. A. Adams has had flu, but is getting some better. Mrs. Adams' husband died last summer, and she has been working faithfully to support herself and son. Let's all stand by Mrs. Adams, and lend her assistance all along.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. John Deal December 27, a fine baby girl. Mr. Deal has four children in his family.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred O. Scroggs another fine baby girl, not yet named. Mr. Scroggs has eight children in his family.

Preaching services were not held at Mt. Pisgah Saturday and Sunday on account of the illness of the pastor, Rev. H. J. Brown, of Young Harris, Ga. Mr. Brown has been very sick, and his father is not expected to live.

The Mountain Valley Creamery is making rapid progress toward the construction of the new creamery at Brasstown. New buildings are seen in almost any direction one looks on Brasstown.

The new hatchery is just started at the Folk School, and is expected to be completed soon.

Mr. Howard Hall has moved to Clay County where he intends to build a new dwelling house soon.

AUNT JANE STANDRIDGE PASSES AWAY ON JAN. 8

Those of us who have our mothers with us should be especially thankful to God for the beautiful life of a friend such as mother is to us. There is no one on earth that is more loyal to us through all our lives regardless of our successes, failures, sins, and short comings. Such a mother we have lost from our community in the last week. But more than to be a good mother of the home, Aunt Jane Standridge was truly a mother of Israel.

Professing faith in Christ forty years ago, Mrs. Standridge has been a vessel fit for use in the Kingdom of our Master. Aunt Jane has known what the true title for the soul's abode has meant, and has therefore not wasted her life, but saved it for a life beyond. She has left an undying influence that is still speaking to us, and will richly bless the lives of all who come in contact with it. The poet has said some things that ought to cause us to prize our mothers dear:

"One day God sent his angels
On swift and joyous wings,
And bade them seek unceasingly
For heaven's most cherished things."

For many days they wandered,
Then came with shining eyes,
Laden with jewels of faith and trust
And love that never dies.

Then God in tenderness bent down
And gave these gifts most rare—
These priceless jewels of heaven itself—

To mothers everywhere.
Aunt Jane was born in Towns County, Ga., near the head of the Hiwassee river close to the Zeke Brown farm, April 10, 1859. She died January 8, 1929. She lived to be 69 years, 8 months, and 28 days old, and was a witness for Christ 40 years as a member of Little Brasstown Baptist church. She was ever known to stay by the cause of Christ, and to stand for the true Gospel of Christ. Brother Martin told in his talk that he had known Mrs. Standridge for years and had never known a harm word spoken of her, but that she was always in deep sympathy with church work.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. F. Conley, assisted by Rev. Columbus Martin. Both men spoke highly in favor of Aunt Jane's privileges to share the eternal life prepared for those who have done the Lord's will.

Mrs. Standridge is survived by three children—Mrs. Ida Clayton, Mrs. Laura Hogan, and Miss Betty Standridge. Her husband died April 21, 1901.

WHY NOT STOP THE CRUEL PRACTICE OF TRAPPING ANIMALS

Boy Scouts do not trap wild animals. Read the following and then give your decision.

Have you, readers of this article, ever thought very much about the practice of trapping with a steel-trap? Suppose we go into the details of it a little. In the first place, the things trapped are not senseless, inanimate objects, but creatures with brains, nerves and sensations just like our own. To capture them the trapper has to use a device of such acknowledged cruelty that humane societies have been fighting it for years and at least one state has finally outlawed its further use. So cruel that one writer has described it as "the most fiendish device of arrest ever invented by the human brain," and if anyone doubts this, he has only to spring a good, strong steel-trap on his hand, or foot, and leave it there for twelve or twenty-four hours, by way of test.

In trapping, the intended victim hasn't even the small chance for its life that the creature hunted by dog or gun has, for the trapper has to use deceit and treachery in his trade, often concealing the trap from sight and using some sort of alluring bait.

All this might be excusable if the animal could be instantly killed as soon as trapped, but this is seldom the case. A day and a night in the trap must be a common occurrence—longer if the trapper is negligent. We are going to let two other writers describe one of these woodland tragedies, and we must bear in mind the fact that these innocent creatures have committed no crime to merit their suffering—although they interfere with the plans of human beings sometimes—they are merely searching for food that God intended them to have:

"Here is an innocent, harmless, wild animal that starts out in the morning in search of its daily food. It steps in a steel-trap and is held a prisoner. It is far away in the woods and there is no one near to release it, or to feed it, or to mercifully put it to death. In its struggle to get free the bones of its leg are broken and the poor suffering creature is held there a prisoner for hours, perhaps for days and nights, amid the ice and snow in a zero temperature, for most trapping is done in winter. Any one of three or four things may happen to it. If it is very cold it may freeze to death; if it was short of food when it got caught, it may starve to death; in order to get free it may gnaw off its legs; or it may live until the trapper comes and mercifully or unmercifully, from whichever point of view you look at it, puts it to death and ends its suffering."

"Tis midnight in the forest cold and bleak,
The north wind drives the snow,
The icy reeds
Bend o'er a cruel trap where, faint and weak,
A timid furry creature slowly bleeds.

Faintly above the wind she seems to hear
Her little babies crying for her care;
She writhes in agony, and moans in fear.

For two long nights she has been dving there."

All this brings up a question that is a constant source of wonder to the writer and one hard to understand. How can "Christian" people—some of them are really good and kind, in every other respect, and our good friends—how can people like this be so utterly indifferent to the sufferings of the lower forms of creation? Some starve and neglect their stock and poison the stray cat or dog that annoys them; others, not so bad, will sell the faithful old family horse for a few dollars, take the old dog, or even tiny baby kittens, off for miles and abandon them to a unknown fate, apparently without a qualm of conscience.

Why, not so long ago, a correspondent, writing from one of our church's institutions, told how a little dog that had been taken in and treated as a pet, on becoming troublesome, was taken off in a car by his friends (?) and "lost." Poor little dog! We imagine it took him a good while to be convinced that his friends were not coming back after him. An easy death at home would have been so much better than being turned out to starve—for where would a dog get food unless some one gave it to him if you don't want an animal yourself, why suppose that anyone else wants it? But the most regrettable thing about it was the example set the youthful participants in the affair.

Then there are those, not unkind themselves, who are indifferent to the great cruelties going on about them. How many "good" people protest at the cruelties attendant on the shipping of our food animals or the atrocity of the caged and performing animal—two of the most cruel and senseless practices that humanity is guilty of. Think of shutting a man up in a cage for life for no other reason than to be stared at by a selfish crowd and as a means of gain for his keeper! Shocking! No one would be allowed to do it, of course. Well, if it is such a terrible thing if inflicted on a person, why is it right to afflict any other animal that way? Imprisonment is, if anything, harder on them than it would be on a person, especially wild animals, but the great majority of people never give it a thought!

Safety, silence and simplicity are features of the new Ford six-brake system

ONE of the first things you will notice when you drive the new Ford is the quick, effective, silent action of its six-brake system.

This system gives you the highest degree of safety and reliability because the four-wheel service brakes and the separate emergency or parking brakes are all of the mechanical, internal expanding type, with braking surfaces fully enclosed for protection against mud, water, sand, etc.

The many advantages of this type of braking system have long been recognized. They are brought to you in the new Ford through a series of mechanical improvements embodying much that is new in design and manufacture. A particularly unique feature is the simple way by which a special drum has been constructed to permit the use of two sets of internal brakes on the rear wheels.

A further improvement in braking performance is effected by the self-centering feature of the four-wheel brakes—an exclusive Ford development. Through this construction, the entire surface of the shoe is brought in steady, uniform contact with the drum the instant you press your foot on the brake pedal. This prevents screeching and howling and makes the Ford brakes unusually silent in operation.

Another feature of the Ford brakes is the ease of adjustment.

The four-wheel brakes are adjusted by turning a screw conveniently located on the outside of each brake plate. This screw is so notched that all four brakes can be set alike simply by listening to the "clicks."

The emergency or parking brakes on the new Ford require little attention. However, should they need adjustment at any time, consult your Ford dealer for prompt, courteous, and economical service. He works under close factory supervision and he has been specially trained and equipped to help you get the greatest possible use from your car over the longest period of time at a minimum of trouble and expense.
