Fifty-two years, a user of commercial fertilizer.

That is the record of T. J. Parker, Tifton, Ga.

He has used Chilean Nitrate of soda ever since 1878, according to the South-wide contest conducted last year to find the pioneer nitrate users in this country. For more than half a century he has had consistently good results in fertilizing corn and other crops.

The first commercial fertilizer used by American farmers was Chilean nitrate, which was shipped to this country in 1830. This material did not come into wide use until after the civil war. Nitrate from Chile is now used at the rate of about three-quarters of a millions tons a year.

INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION JUNE 1 TO 6

Event Is Second "Made In North Carolina Week" Set Aside
By Proclamation

North Carolina's greatest industrial exposition, a program which hundreds of thousands of individuals and every community may have a share, is scheduled to be held on the dates of June 1-6, inclusive.

This event will be the second "Made in North Carolina Week" set aside by proclamation of Governor O. Max Gardner and sponsored by the State Department of Conservation and Development.

The main features of the week will be displays of North Carolina-made products in retail store windows and special sales of these goods as a merchandising feature. Community functions, covering a wide field are being planned for cities and towns throughout the State. These will include banquets, joint civic gatherings, style shows, and other features.

Some of the local trade organizations have notified the Conservation Department that special studies of the industrial development and further prospects of their communities are being undertaken as a feature of "Made in North Carolina Week". Schools and women's clubs are among the organizations featuring the program with projects and studies.

Observance of programs such as have been outlined, according to officials of the Conservation Department, will enlist the interest of many times more people than an event fixed at a single location. They point out to their knowledge, that this movement is the first attempt on the part of any commonwealth to stage an event of this kind on a State-wide scale with an invitation to every manufacturer and retail merchant to take part. Such a celebration gives an opportunity literally to bring an industrial exposition to the door of virtually every citizen of the State.

"This program," said officials of the Department, "can be staged virtually without any cost in the various communities. What little expense as will be involved by the merchant and manufacturer may be classed as an investment for more business."

Woman's Club to Meet

There will be a call meeting of the Woman's Club in the club room on Wednesday, May 27th, at 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of transacting business, etc. After the business hour, refreshments will be served. All members are requested to be present.

Memorial Service For Confederate Vets Held at Andrews

Memorial services for Confederate veterans who have died were held at the Andrews cemetery Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the Lillian Mayfield Cover chapter of the Children of the Confederacy.

Attorney Don Witherspoon of Murphy delivered the memorial address. He sketched briefly the history of Cherokee county and recounted the part her citizens have played in peace and in war. The speaker related the story of the removal of the Cherokees to the West, and the sale of lands to the white settlers. He mentioned by name many of the pioneers who first settled along Valley river.

The first county government was explained in interesting detail and the beginning of Murphy, the county seat, recited. The speaker appealed to the present generation to maintain the worthy traditions of their forefathers by setting the "ship of State" into the harbor of successful government.

After the address of Mr. Witherspoon Miss Mary Forsythe spoke of the work of the Children's chapter of the U. D. C. She then unveiled a monument at the grave of L. C. Nichols, Confederate veteran who died a few weeks ago.

Mr. Witherspoon was introduced by Mrs. Wayne Walker, leader of the children's chapter.
