TO MY VALENTINE

When lacy valentines are on their way again,
From man to maid,
And from Cupid's bow drops of scarlet stain
A soulful serenade,
I find myself renewing youth's desire—
Strange, secret longings kindle into fire,
As pulsations into rhythm start
From my heart.

Instead of graying hair I see gold shine
With ruddy light,
Above eyes, that look so sweetly into mine,
Deep blue as night,
Though youth has fled, oh, many years ago,
My love still sheds the same effulgent glow,
So I send this card, lest you forget,
I love you yet.
