

Rites Held For Mrs. Dockery, Of Hangingdog

Funeral services for Mrs. Martha Leona Dockery, 88, of Hangingdog, were held at the Baptist church there Saturday morning at 10 o'clock with the Rev. Fred Styles officiating. Burial was in the church cemetery. W. D. Townson was in charge of funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Dockery died last Thursday after having been ill for several weeks.

The wife of the late W. R. Dockery, she had been a member of the church from which she was buried for more than 40 years.

Funeral services were Noah and Rollin McDonald, Z. C. Ramsey, Walter and William Radford and Ira Allen.

Surviving are five sons, Ben Erwin, Wit, Jack and Bob, and one daughter, Mrs. Sarah Rhodes, all of Hangingdog; 54 grandchildren and 66 great grandchildren.

REVIVAL CLOSES

A successful revival closed at the New Hope Church of God Sunday night. Thirty-six conversions and 26 Baptisms were reported during the meeting. About 60 members partook of the communion service.

NEWS PICK-UPS

Sheridan Stiles has been wearing a shirt around town the color of a spoiled candy bar.

And of course Abe Hembree had to make some kind of a remark about it.

"Well", says Sheridan, sitting on the Coca-Cola cooler, "It won't be long until Landon'll be sendin' me a dozen like it".

"Yeah", says Abe, "but not from Washington".

Lyle Martin can almost tell you how it feels to sleep with lightning.

During a heavy electrical storm the other night, a bolt of lightning split a huge poplar tree into three pieces just several feet from the open window next to which he was sleeping.

They say a miss is as good as a mile—but he'd rather have the mile.

Wish someone would tell us what that big wooden box is that looks like a casket is in the county commissioners office. It's been there ever since we came here two years ago and apparently it has never been touched.

It does make a good bench, though when the commissioners are busy and you have to wait about an hour to see them.

Incidentally while we were picking up that item we asked Marion Simonds "if he knew anything".

"Just tell 'em I'm working like the devil", he said not even looking up.

Hugh Adams and his Boy Scouts are going to Carolina beach. The natural assumption is they'll hitchhike it. He says they have been practicing that long-drawn thumb jerk instead of going through their Scouting paces for the past two months.

Which reminds us of the colored boy who said he never did have any luck bumming a ride because nobody could see his thumb at night.

There's always something sad about seeing a dog struck by an automobile. Somebody ran over one in the street Sunday night, and it just squealed everytime you touched it.

It's probably one of those same curs that fights and howls all night long in the alley down under our window and that we throw Coca-Cola bottles at.

But, darn it, it is a dog and it has got feelings.

Funny remembrance of a meeting between two drunks who didn't know each other when they met at a dance:

"Waddaya say, buddy. Feelin' good?"

"O K. Wanna make anything of it".

They are still wondering who that boy was we had on the front page last week. Some think it was Oscar Hunt when he was young. Goodness! For the last time we don't know.

To The Citizens Of Cherokee County:

I want to make this statement to you through the paper so I will not be misunderstood nor thought neglectful by some as performing the duties as Sheriff of your County.

I am continually receiving reports of stills being located in certain places with no name signed to these reports. I have acted at various times upon these reports and after making long trips I found that some were false. I will pay no attention to reports from now on unless a name is signed to them. I want you to send these reports with your name signed to them and I will keep it strictly confidential.

Come along and let us work together with confidence in each other and enforce the law, and by this we will have a better county in which to live.
