Mrs. Halcombe a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McLain, of Sylva, had lived in Asheville for the past 30 years. The family moved to Murphy for a short time about 10 years ago. Mr. Halcombe is a conductor for the Southern Railway System.

Top Dressing Of Small Grain Should Begin Now

Results of demonstrations conducted in this county by farmers last year show that for every dollar spent on top dressing, three to four dollars was returned in increased yields.

To the farmers who have small grain this year it is now time to make side applications of Nitrate of Soda or Sulphate of Ammonia. This application should be made when small grain is about five or six inches high of just before renewed spring growth starts. It has been found that most farmers wait too late to top dress their small grain, therefore they do not get the desired results. This application should be at least one hundred pounds to the acre.

Also where the farmers used only Acid Phosphate in the fall, an additional application of 20 to 50 pounds to the acre of Muriate or Sulphate of Potash will be found beneficial.

Says Newspapers Are Big Help To Farmers

North Carolina farmers find their newspapers a valuable source of agricultural news and helpful information, according to a statement by Dean I. O. Schaub, of State College.

Papers in both the weekly and the daily groups carry numerous stories keeping the farmer and his family posted on what is going on in the field of agriculture and home economics, he pointed out.

Other stories give helpful suggestions regarding better ways of doing things on the farm and in the country home, the dean continued.

A number of county farm and home agents over the State have reported that with few exceptions, the farm family getting ahead and making the most of its opportunities is a family that reads newspapers regularly.

There are nearly 200 county newspapers in the state published weekly, semi-weekly, or tri-weekly, and practically all of them have a regular policy of carrying timely farm news Dean Schaub said.

He added that much of the agricultural progress of the State can be attributed to the constructive efforts of newspaper in keeping their rural readers well informed.

And the State College extension service, of which Dean Schaub is director, is firmly convinced that anything it can do to help the newspapers supply their readers with worthwhile agricultural news is a service to farm people of the State. County farm and home agents and

2 BOYS SAW WAY OUT OF ANDREWS JAIL FRIDAY NIGHT

Dubbs Wheeler and J. V. Palmer, who sawed their way out of the Andrews jail Friday night, had not been apprehended this week. It is believed they escaped into Tennessee or Georgia.

Andrews police had them locked up holding them on a charge of "breaking and entering" and breaking a large plate glass window in the Bruce Fisher store in Andrews.

Policeman Kimsey Wyke said this week some one must have slipped the boys a hack saw which they used to sever their iron bars and escape in the middle of the night.

Policeman Neil Sneed at Murphy was warned to look out for them following their escape but he said he did not see them come through Murphy.

"The Circus" Coming To Andrews March 4-5

The Circus, a comedy with a circus background, is to be presented by the Andrews High School Athletic association Thursday and Friday at the Andrews high school auditorium.

The association is extending every effort to make this show, which features the most and the best Andrews talent, the biggest event Andrews has had in a long time.

New Circular Shows Fertilizer Methods

Fertilizer may be compared with fire in certain respects.

Properly used, both can be made valuable allies to man. But used in the wrong way, they can become agents of destruction.

When fertilizer is applied in concentrated doses too close to the seed, the powerful chemical action may render the seed barren or low in germinating ability.

Experiments have proven that the best way to fertilize cotton, for example, is to apply the fertilizer in bands two or three inches to the side of the seed rows or two or three inches below the seed level.

Much of the seed from last years cotton crop is low in germinating power and this means that farmers need to be especially careful this spring in applying fertilizer properly said Emerson R. Collins, agronomist at the N. C. Agricultural Experiment Station.

The experiment station has just published a circular prepared by Collins to show the results of experiments in applying fertilizer to cotton and other crops.

It is entitled Agronomy Information Circular No. 104, "Investigation of the Mechanical Application of Fertilizers for Cotton in North Carolina, with Some Results for Other Crops Obtained in Other States."

Free copies of the publication may be obtained from C. B. Williams, head of the agronomy department, N. C. State College, Raleigh, Collins stated.

At the height of the recent flood, a 7 pound boy was born to Mrs. Carson Haley in a hospital for ferreuses at Kenova, W. Va. He was appropriately christened "Noah," because he survived the disastrous flood.

Bermuda Grass Helps Save Terrace Outlets

Good Bermuda grass sod gives just as effective protection as masonry for terrace outlet channels and is more practical and economical, in the opinion of W. C. Wooten, Statesville farmer who cooperates with Soil Conservation Service and State College Extension Service.

Construction of terrace outlet channels to control water emptied from terraces is just one of the erosion-control practices that Mr. Wooten is following on his 262 acre farm. Outlet channels are emptied into pasture of woods where the water is spread out and absorbed into the ground.

A three year rotation, consisting of cotton and corn, small grain and lespedeza, has been established on 160 acres under cultivation. Approximately 120 acres have been terraced, 25 acres of which are strip cropped.

Wooten improved his pasture sod by planting a mixture of legumes and grasses. He has a soil improvement demonstration plot on the farm.

Vines and shrubs have been set out on a severely gullied area of five acres. These plants will provide food and cover for wildlife as well as control erosion.

extension officials and specialists at State College are urged to keep constantly on the alert for any farm news or helpful suggestions they can give the papers.
