The Twelfth Annual Rhododendron Festival will be held in Asheville June 19-24, according to an announcement made here by Robert F. Phillips, General Chairman of the Festival executive committee.

Dates for the event have been set to coincide with the annual flowering season of the purple rhododendrons on the high slopes and summits of the mountains of Western North Carolina. The annual pageantry of the mountain floral display is expected to be at its height during the festival period.

Rivalling the magnificent purple flowers of the rhododendrons in brilliance and color, the Rhododendron Festival will be one of the most colorful civic fetes held this year in the United States. During the twelve years of its history the Festival has attracted international attention.

Four parades of floats and gaily costumed marching groups, three major dances, a pageant involving participation by nearly 1,000 people from all parts of Western North Carolina, a series of pioneer and Indian Sports events, a boxing card featuring leading heavy, middle and lightweight boxers, will be included in the extensive program of the week.

Not the least among the attractions will be ours of the rhododendron flowering areas of the mountains on Mount Pisgah, in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park and in the noted Craggy Rhododendron Gardens near Asheville. In all of the noted flower areas, thousands of acres will be aflame with the purple flowers which burst into bloom in dense masses covering hundreds of acres of mountain slope and summit.

The most beautiful girls in ten southern states will attend the festival this year as state sponsors from the various southern states. The Rhododendron Grand Parade, the Carnival Night Parade, the Mutt-Dog Parade, the Baby Parade, will be notable processions of the week and the night affairs of the Military, Rhododendron and Sponsors Balls, will be leading social events of the period.
