Limit Catch In U. S. Forests Is Changed

The limit of fish permitted by each fisherman on the Nantahala Forest Cooperative Wildlife Management Areas this year has been changed over previous years to correspond to the limit allowed under State regulations.

Each angler will be permitted to catch either 12 brook trout or 12 rainbow trout or a total of 12 trout of either species. The kinds of bait to be used is left to the discretion of the angler so long as he stays within the regulations permitted under State law. Either artificial or natural bait can be used and several lures will be permitted on each leader.

It is believed that the absence of restrictions on methods of fishing in these areas will tend to make for better fishing with possibilities of each angler catching his limit.

Don't forget the opening date, May 18, 19, and 20.
