8 Causes Listed For Costly Farm Fires

The vast majority of the fires which damage thousands of dollars worth of farm property at this season of the year are due to carelessness and the use of defective equipment, says David S. Weaver, head of the Department of Agricultural Engineering at N. C. State College. There are eight principal causes of farm fires.

Weaver lists them as follows: (1) Poorly constructed or defective flues and chimneys; (2) inflammable roofing material which ignites when sparks settle on it; (3) lightning; (4) spontaneous combustion; (5) careless use of smoking materials; (6) improper handling of kerosene and gasoline; (7) defective stoves and furnaces; and (8) lack of safe and adequate wiring for electricity, or the wrong use of electric appliances.

To make an analysis of the fire hazards in the home, the State College engineer suggests that members of the family go from room to room with paper and pencil, asking and answering the following questions: Does the stove pipe fit into the chimney flue snugly? Is it necessary for the stove pipe to pass through a partition, and if so, is the partition protected by a metal thimble? How close does the stove pipe come to the walls and ceilings, and could this distance be increased? Is the can of kerosene or gasoline in the safest storage place, away from the stove?

Is the attic and cellar free of rubbish and combustible materials? If there are smokers in the family, are all ash trays metal and are they placed where they will not be knocked on the floor? Is all wiring properly insulated, and are the fuses of the right size to protect the electric system?

In Mobile, Ala., S. R. Young was fined $10 for breaking a window of his cell in the city jail.
